RUSSIAN TRADE DELAYS BRITISH EMPIRE ACCORD

Parley Extended as Canada Fights On.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 16.—The British imperial economic conference is still deadlocked tonight. The situation is regarded as so serious that it was decided to continue the negotiations at least until next Saturday instead of winding up on Thursday, as had been intended.

This decision was taken late at a meeting of all the delegates and the S. S. Empress of Britain, the liner on which the British delegates were to have sailed for home on Saturday, changed her departure until Sunday. Conference leaders at the same time said flatly no bargain of any kind had been made, although certain newspapers had published the alleged details of an agreement.

All pretense has now been dropped that the conference is anything but a heated battle over Russia. Canada regards the sterilization of Russian trade with Britain with all that it implies in the way of subversive propaganda and revolution as the most important thing in the world.

Fight Over Russia.

Britain, on the other hand, is anxious to keep her Russian trade, which is growing and profitable, and to safeguard millions of pounds of credits which her nationals have granted Russia in connection with that trade.

All other questions, such as tariff preferences and quotas on meat, wheat, copper, and other things, sink into insignificance in the face of what Canada regards as a threat to civilization.

At first Premier R. B. Bennett of Canada, who is leading the fight on the soviets single handed, pressed for a complete embargo on Russian goods entering Britain. The British demonstrated that this was impossible on account of Britain's trade treaty with Moscow which was negotiated by the late William Graham, president of the board of trade in the last Labor government.

Bennett Tries New Path.

Mr. Bennett then switched to find some other way around. This way might be either anti-dumping regulations, in which case the difficulty was to define dumping, a high tariff in which case the Russians probably would absorb it by cutting prices, quota regulated imports, and so on. Some objection has been raised to each plan.

THE TRIBUNE'S correspondent learned today that for days British and Canadians have been laboring to "find a formula"—a phrase beloved of all conference delegates—which will satisfy both sides. Several times it seemed that an agreement had been reached, and on each occasion either the Canadian cabinet or the full British delegation found a flaw and the work began over again.

Desperate efforts were made today to arrive at a final agreement. The Canadian cabinet was in a practically continuous session and the British delegation was on hand for consultation. Negotiators came and went, but nothing resulted.

Renew Struggle Today.

Finally it was realized that the physical limitations of time made an adjournment on Thursday impossible even if an agreement would be reached and it was decided to postpone the final plenary session and try to find a way out again tomorrow.

After an agreement is reached the various clauses must be put into writing and passed by lawyers for both sides and then approved in their entirety by the delegations as a whole. The leaders of the delegations will meet formally tomorrow to receive the reports of some committees and clean up formal business, but they will also be in attendance continuously for the more serious business.

The commodities involved in Canada's demand for restrictions on Russia are lumber, which is most important of all; wheat, salmon, asbestos, coal, and oil.

Russia Big Stumbling Block.

With Russia out of the way, it is felt that it will be easy to settle the questions of preferences on empire goods such as wheat and meat in the British market. Meat may be the subject of a quota, but it is unlikely that there will be any tariff on foreign meat.

Mr. Bennett it still pressing for a preference on wheat, although the western wheat growers insist they do not want it. They argue they would rather have cheap British textiles and machinery.

Actress Balks Steel Official's Suicide Plans

A finely developed plot to prevent the suicide of a wealthy Cleveland steel official at Nigara Falls was successful in Chicago with a De Maupassant finish yesterday.

The characters in the drama—which extended from the Falls to here—are: Carl W. Ohlson, 36 years old, married, expert metallurgist and secretary of a steel treating company in Cleveland; a prominent and beautiful young actress, and a well known Chicagoan, president of a Cleveland steel concern. Interspersed throughout are operatives of the Burns Detective agency.

It was last Saturday that Ohlson's automobile was found on the brink of the Niagara cataract. In it was a note stating that he had ended his life. However, Ohlson had not committed suicide. He was alive in a Niagara Falls hotel room, undecided whether or not to die before seeing the actress friend, it was said.

Leaves Note in Match Box.

Before Ohlson could make up his mind events of fictionlike nature transpired in Cleveland. On starting for the Falls he had visited a restaurant where he had been in the habit of meeting the actress friend. There he left a match box containing a brief farewell note. In it, it is said, he wrote to her that he was going to end his life and asked her to telephone him at the Falls. The note gave a hotel telephone number.

Meanwhile Burns detectives, who had been put on Ohlson's trail, found the match box—mainly by accident—before the actress received it. They communicated with her and asked her to aid in thwarting her friend's design.

The actress reached Ohlson by telephone. She pleaded with him not to jump into the falls. He asked her to see him once more. At the suggestion of the detectives, the actress said that she could not get to Niagara Falls, but could meet him in Chicago. Ohlson consented to coming here.

Keep Tryst in Grant Park.

Yesterday he arrived. The rendezvous with the actress was kept in Grant park, near the outdoor art fair. Burns agents seized him. They took him to a hotel not far from the loop. There Ohlson and the actress were left alone. Ohlson, it is asserted, threatened to jump out of the suite window. The actress begged against such a deed, but Ohlson, informants said, dragged her to the window and was about to jump.

Here the actress brought her histrionic ability into play. She wept. She raged. She pleaded.

"If you jump, I'll jump, too," she cried.

She won. Ohlson backed away. A private detective quieted him. Not long afterward the Chicago head of the steel company talked to Ohlson. Last night Ohlson was in a sanitarium just outside of the city. The actress was back in Cleveland. She had gone by plane. I. R. Harris, a Cleveland attorney, was in the city looking after Ohlson's personal interests.

781 RESCUED FROM SINKING EXCURSION BOAT IN OHIO RIVER

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Seven hundred forty-eight passengers and a crew of 33 men were removed safely from the excursion steamer City of Memphis tonight when it struck a rock in the Ohio river here and began sinking.

The steamer reached shore safely but was listing badly when the last person was removed.

The boat was returning from Rose island, a resort about ten miles from here, to New Albany, Ind. Police reported the boat struck a rock near the locks in a dam.

As the steamer began taking on water rapidly the passengers became alarmed but officers maintained order and there was no panic.

Mathilde Oser Lands on Way to Visit Mother

New York, Aug. 16.—[Special.]—Mrs. Mathilde McCormick Oser arrived today on the liner Majestic on her way to Chicago to visit her mother, Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick, who is seriously ill. Arrangements had been made for Mrs. Oser, who is accompanied by her husband and their two children, Anita, 7, and Peter 5, to fly from Newark to Chicago, but the airplane, which was in readiness, was not needed.

A radio message was sent to the Majestic stating that her mother was much better and that Mrs. Oser could travel by train with her family. She was met at the pier by Robert D. Gumbel, private secretary to her uncle, John D. Rockefeller Jr. The Osers will stay at the Rockefeller estate at Tarrytown tonight and will leave for Chicago tomorrow.

Rockefeller May Come.

Information was lacking as to whether John D. Rockefeller Jr. would join the party to visit his sister. He was reported today as on vacation in Maine.

The present journey is the third the Oser family has made to this country since Mathilde was married at the age of 18 in April, 1923, in England to Mr. Oser, who was then 45 years old. With her husband and two children, Mrs. Oser visited America in June, 1929, spending the winter in California and returning to Switzerland the following May. Again last fall they spent some weeks in America.

MRS. M'CORMICK IMPROVED.

Reports from her suite in the Drake hotel last night indicated a measurable improvement in the condition of Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick. For the present, at least, the patient has gained. Early in the evening Mrs. Fowler McCormick, the former Fifi Stillman, landed at the municipal airport with her son, Alexander Stillman, with whom she has been spending the last couple of weeks at a camp in the north woods. They arrived in a Bellanca plane and went to Mrs. McCormick's apartment in the Drake Towers. Fowler McCormick has been a frequent visitor to his mother's room.

BETTY COMPTON IS REVEALED AS MAYOR'S FRIEND

Sherwood Figures in All-Day Quiz.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 16.—[Special.]—The mysterious "unnamed person" who has figured so sensationally in the Jimmy Walker case was officially disclosed today as an "unnamed lady," and later was unofficially named as Betty Compton, the stage star, who is now living in England.

Mayor Jimmy, fighting against removal from office in the hearing being conducted by Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, himself exposed the sex of the "unnamed person." He did so from the witness stand, referring to the person as "her" and "she." In fourteen months of the investigation of the mayor's activities the sex of the person had never been disclosed.

Asked About Identity.

Then afterward, in an interview outside the hearing room, the snappy mayor of New York was asked directly if the person were not Betty Compton, and he replied in his characteristic wise cracking way:

"Who else could it be?"

It has been learned upon absolute authority that Miss Compton's name appears on many records which have been shown to the governor and which have laid in open sight many times among the documents strewn on the counsel table of Samuel Seabury, the mayor's chief accuser.

The evidence has shown, even while the name has been so carefully guarded, that the "person" received a check for $7,500 from a brokerage account of Mayor Walker's and that cash and stocks valued at $75,000 were turned over to her from the various accounts of Russell T. Sherwood, the mayor's missing financial agent.

Miss Compton, described by the mayor from the witness stand as his "personal friend"—although without his mentioning her name at the time—was last seen on Broadway in the lead of "Fifty Million Frenchmen," in which she played with William Gaxton.

She was married about a year ago to Eddie Dowling, a scenario writer, and went on a honeymoon to Bermuda, but shortly thereafter a rift in the romance occurred and they were divorced. Miss Compton going to live in England.

Roosevelt Learns of It.

Gov. Roosevelt, who has many times in these last two days directly opposed efforts of counsel on both sides to spread Miss Compton's name over the public record of the case, learned tonight that it had become public.

He insisted emphatically that the name of the "person," as he still referred to her, was in no case whatever included in the official records of the proceedings.

The mayor in his testimony referred to the "unnamed person" as having been his personal friend; he offered to explain his "arrangement" with her, as it was expressed on one occasion, but the governor refused to permit an explanation.

Mayor Lets Name Out.

After the mayor had electrified the hearing room by using the feminine pronoun in referring to the unnamed person a recess was taken. The mayor was on his way to the corridor of the statehouse when newspaper men accosted him and sought further enlightenment on the "she."

"I've no objection to giving her name out, none whatever," Jimmy declared. "All this talk of chivalry is the bunk; the lady's name is known all over the country.

"You can also find out easily that she banked more money in New York banks than I ever had."

"Who is she?" asked a newspaper man.

"How long have you been in town?" the mayor wise cracked in return.

The mayor explained to the reporter while others gathered to listen that, while he had no objection to the name being published, the governor had passed an injunction upon it and he could not violate it.

"Who Else Could It Be?"

"Well," the reporter persisted, "was it your friend Miss Betty Compton?" and the mayor's quick reply, as quoted, was the "Who else could it be?"

The mayor spent an entire hectic day under the cross-examination of Gov. Roosevelt on the subject of his dealings with his man Sherwood, who

Prince? Spy? Woman Kills Him; Mystery

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Aug. 16.—In a shabby hotel in the heart of old Paris a pauper known as Prince Edgar Serge de Bourbon, who said he was the natural son of the late Emperor Francis Josef of Austria-Hungary, died a death today as shadowy as his strange life. His throat was cut by his Spanish mistress.

According to the woman's story, the tragedy was the epilogue to a clandestine romance going back even before the death ten years ago of the adventurer's American wife, Clara de Cosse Conger of Ohio, said to have been the niece of the late Edwin H. Conger, who was at one time United States minister to China. A son, Rudolph de Bourbon, is believed to be living in the United States. The crime of passion takes on a strange flavor from the fact that the dead "Bourbon" was 62 years old and the slayer 38.

Believe Him Old Spy.

Among those here who know something of the secrets of international intrigue there is a strange suspicion that behind the sordid drama is an espionage mystery. They insist that instead of being a prince the man who once cut a wide swath in the social circles of Europe and the United States was Carlo Lorioli of Milan. He was arrested as a spy by the British in 1916 and turned over to Italy, where he was later acquitted.

Provost de Saint Cyr, an architect and close friend of the white haired man with the features of an aristocrat, insists that the victim served as a general in the Austrian army during the war. He is also supposed to have led the Melissori uprising against the Turks and, in recognition of his services, to have been elected their tribal chief.

The "prince" met his death in his paramour's room at dawn. His body was found by a servant, who had accidentally opened the door to the room. A razor had been used—two parallel slashes having been made in the throat of the elderly Lothario.

Gives Herself Up.

The murderess had left the room immediately and had slipped out of the hotel at 6 o'clock.

Two hours later she appeared at the nearby police station. She was severely dressed and spectacled, with the air of a provincial school teacher.

"My name is Condelaria Brau-Soler," she began. "I was born in Saragossa. I make a living selling my own beauty products. I cut my friend's throat with a razor a little while ago and I imagine you will find him dead."

"Who are you talking about?" the police asked.

"Prince Edgar of Bourbon," she replied.

Mme. Brau-Soler told police that she had been the supposed Bourbon's mistress for several years.

Feared Life of Misery.

"He visited me frequently at my hotel," she said. "But he always went home before daylight. Lately he began begging me to live with him. I refused. I feared misery and ill treatment at his hands."

According to the woman, the "prince's" insistence led to a violent quarrel last night and which was resumed at 5 o'clock this morning.

"He threatened me with a razor," she continued. "He cut my arm and I snatched the blade from him, slashing him twice across the throat. Then I went to the Spanish embassy and, finding nobody there, came here. I met the prince in Barcelona and left my husband to come to Paris. I have spent all my money and pawned all my jewelry since I joined him."

Police are inclined to doubt the woman's story of the struggle. The wounds were so clean that they believe the adventuresome derelict must have had his throat cut in his sleep.

MINE STRIKERS PLAN MARCH ON PITS TOMORROW

Diggers Defy Threat and Stay on Jobs.

BULLETIN.

Benton, Ill., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Sheriff Browning Robinson of Franklin county and his deputies broke up a picket line of miners at the Peabody No. 11 mine at West Frankfort tonight to enable the night crew of 25 men to return to work. There were about 75 pickets at the mine, some of them women.

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Taylorville, Ill., Aug. 16.—[Special.]—Coal miners in the Taylorville region held stubbornly to their right to work today despite an impending invasion by several thousand strikers which is scheduled for Thursday noon.

At Springfield—27 miles away—fully 4,000 miners from Springfield, Gillespie and Belleville who protest acceptance of the new $5 per day basic wage scale, decided at sundown that they would make an unarmed advance upon Taylorville Thursday. They will attempt to convince about 1,100 men now working the four Peabody mines at capacity that they should cease labor until new negotiations with the mine operators for a higher wage are completed. The old scale called for $6.10 per day.

Swear In Vigilantes.

Citizens of Christian county, of which Taylorville is the seat, are responding loyally to an appeal from Sheriff Charles Wieneke that order must be preserved and hundreds were made special deputy sheriffs today.

Almost every available man of the town was pressed into this vigilante service. Business men and members of the American Legion were recruited into a hastily formed home guard to repel any invasion.

The strikers met all afternoon on the banks of an old reservoir in Springfield. Dozens of speeches were made and in a vehement chorus the men agreed to "strike until we get our demands."

The sun had disappeared behind the green banks of the reservoir before the final announcement of action was made.

Bring Fists, Not Guns.

"Men," called a leather-lunged spokesman for the union presidents from the side of the embankment, "come back Thursday noon prepared to stay two days. Don't bring any arms; bring your fists. Bring cars and money if you have any, but don't bring firearms; get that straight!"

No destination for Thursday's expedition was announced; none was needed.

"Let's go home," shouted the miners, filing down the slope to their cars and trucks, but they had not progressed far when Freeman Thompson of Springfield, a former candidate for the United States senate on the Socialist ticket, attempted to speak.

"Throw him out!" came a roar, and the crowd rushed back toward a concrete abutment which Thompson was attempting to use as a platform.

"Get the halter for him; don't listen to him!"

Thompson tried to speak in this bedlam, but gave up and retired from the scene. The miners then left.

Hope to See Governor.

It is anticipated that a group of the strikers will attempt to gain an audience with Gov. Emmerson tomorrow to request that barricades blocking two main highways to Taylorville be removed. Such a committee attempted to see Mr. Emmerson today but was told he was ill and not able to receive them.

Another possibility is that a group of the strike leaders will be on hand at the pit mouths of the mines here tomorrow morning, when the workers go down to labor, to attempt to dissuade them.

These protestors are a part of the group which claim that a referendum on the 35 scale—which came after weeks of negotiations following announcement by the mine operators that they could not continue the old $6.10 scale—showed the bulk of the 45,000 miners in Illinois opposed to the lowering of their wage. The ballots were stolen before counted, the high union officials say.

Contend Scale Lost.

The protestors scoff at this story of theft. In a petition filed by Dan McGill, former president of the Springfield Federation of Labor, it is alleged that when the votes of 106 of the 200 unions in the state had been counted the referendum was found to have been losing by 4,000 votes.

At Benld Sunday about 10,000 miners from all over the state met and agreed not to work under the new scale. This report was carried to the meeting today—which was more or less of a rump convention—of district No. 4, which has a membership slightly in excess of 6,000.

Taylorville is ready, but it is not courting trouble. It hopes that the miners will be allowed to work unhindered after months of inactivity.

The mines are virtually the economic blood of the community and the citizens seem determined to see that they remain open. "You can get an idea how important they are to us by these figures," said Mayor Cud Wilkinson today. "In 1926, the four Peabody mines were worked 200 days and the pay roll was $6,000,000. Even in 1931—last year—when the depression was in full effect, they were worked 143 days with a pay roll of $2,500,000. The 1931 pay roll of our paper company was only $250,000. The mines are our real life."

Voted 2 to 1 for Scale.

"The Taylorville miners ratified the $5 scale by a vote of almost two to one and they feel this entitles them to earn a living if they choose," the mayor added.

If the pickets come here they will find plenty of opposition. Sheriff Wieneke has not announced just how many men he has deputized, but the number is believed to be between 1,000 and 1,500. The two main highways into the town have been barricaded—road machinery, tractors and other farm implements blocking the way from Decatur on route 48 at Stonington, fifteen miles away, and a similar homely bastion was erected at Harvel, also on route 48 from Springfield, which is about an equal distance from the mines.

Work Despite Pickets.

West Frankfort, Ill., Aug. 16.—[Special.]—Despite the presence of scores of pickets at mine No. 19 of the Peabody Coal company this morning, a reduced force of men continued hoisting coal today. The mine local voted yesterday to discontinue work, in protest against the $5 wage agreement. Members of the local went to the mine for work this morning in large numbers.

Strike at Galesburg.

Galesburg, Ill., Aug. 16.—[Special.]—Three hundred miners at the East Galesburg mine went on strike today in protest against the new $5 scale. The men have been working part time all summer at the old $6.10 rate.

14,000 MINERS AT WORK

With 14,000 men back at work in 43 shaft and strip mines, executives of the Illinois Coal Operators' association yesterday viewed opposition to the compromise wage agreement as slowly but definitely on the wane. State officials of the union were reported optimistic that the $5 basic rate would be accepted shortly by all the holdout districts without violence.

Mines already in full operation, according to the association, include the following shafts:

Bell & Zoller company, one mine at Centralia and one at Peoria.

Consolidated, one mine at Herrin.

Chicago, Wilmington, and Franklin, two mines at West Frankfort.

Cosgrave-Meehan, one mine at Marion.

Franklin County Coal company, one mine at Herrin.

O'Gara, one mine at Harrisburg.

Old Ben, one mine at Ezra and one mine at Johnston City.

Peabody, three mines at Taylorville, one at Danville, one at Duquoin, one at Harrisburg, and two at West Frankfort.

Canton Coal company, one mine at Canton.

Union colliery, one at Dowell.

Moffat, one at Sparta.

Strip Mines Working.

In addition there were two smaller shaft mines reported in operation at Peru, two at La Salle, and six long wall mines in that district. The Belleville mine of the Southern Coal, Coke, and Mining company was to begin hoisting coal today, as were two U. S. Fuel company mines at Georgetown.

STUDENT PARTY ASSAILS OUSTER FROM MINE AREA

Investigators' Protest Is Sent to Governor.

Thirty university students who were ousted last Monday from the coal mining district of downstate Illinois, where they had intended to investigate conditions, returned to Chicago yesterday and held a meeting in a private residence near the University of Chicago to express their indignation.

After discussing the "armed bullies" who had prevented them from entering Franklin county, in the approved pink patois the students drafted a firm and vigorous telegram to Gov. Emmerson, which demanded an armed escort of state police to attend them on a second expedition into the mining district.

Demand an Investigation.

"We demand an investigation of the activities of Sheriff William Groves of Jefferson county and of Sheriff Browning Robinson of Franklin county in barring us from the mining district," the telegram read. There followed a recitation of the injuries suffered by members of the party in being forced to spend Monday night in the open air of a tourist camp in Mount Vernon.

Jerome N. Sampson, University of Chicago post graduate student, was leader of the group, which is composed of recruits from several middle western universities. He said his party was confused by the downstate sheriffs with the group who recently entered the Kentucky mining district to encounter armed resistance and that the students had been given rough verbal treatment inconsistent with their status as amateur investigators of social conditions.

Six Students Freed.

As the students debated, word came from Benton, Ill., that six students who were arrested on Monday night and yesterday in Franklin county had been released from jail last night and escorted out of the district by deputy sheriffs. The officers exacted a promise from the students that they would "get out of Franklin county and stay out." Those released were Joseph Hamburger and Henry Forblade of Commonwealth college, Mena, Ark.; Victor Sulerts, Fred Glatzer, A. O. Carlson, and his wife, Beatrice, all of whom said they were University of Chicago students.

"We've got trouble enough in Franklin county without these young people fooling around," said Sheriff Robinson.

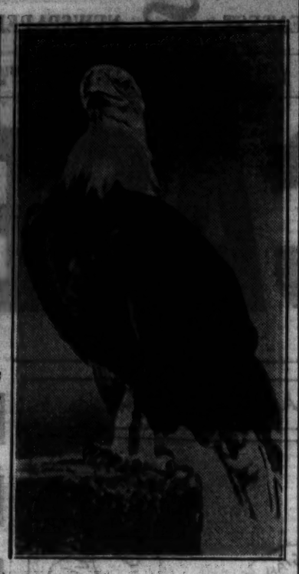
G. E. Q. JOHNSON TAKES OATH AS U. S. JUDGE TODAY

United States Attorney George E. Q. Johnson will take the oath of office as a federal District judge today in the court room of Federal Judge George A. Carpenter on the sixth floor of the federal building. At the same time his assistant, Dwight H. Green, will be inducted into office as United States attorney.

The oath of office will be administered by Charles M. Bates, clerk of the District court, in the presence of the four District judges and a large gathering of officials and friends. Attorney Johnson will arrive this morning from his summer home in New Troy, Mich, where he has been recovering from a major operation.

EAGLE ON QUARTER CHANGED

Head of golden eagle, which has replaced bald eagle on new quarter. [Associated Press Photo.]



The traditional bald eagle, which has given way on new bicentennial quarter to a golden eagle. The bald eagle has bare legs.

It's a Mystery

Washington, D. C., Aug. 16.—[Special.]—While it was denied in official quarters today that the national bird had been changed, there was no explanation available why the new bicentennial quarter dollars have on their reverse side a golden eagle instead of the conventional and traditional bald eagle.

This discrepancy, discovered by Science Service, when brought to the attention of treasury officials elicited merely the information that Secretary Mills, court of last resort in such matters, was away on a vacation.

The difference between the two birds is that the bald and official eagle, once characterized by Benjamin Franklin as "thievish as well as rapacious and generally lousy to boot," has bare legs, whereas the golden eagle wears a fine set of feathered chaparejos.

One observer remarked that perhaps it was a juvenile bald eagle, since the bald eagle does have feathered legs in infancy.

BRITAIN DECREES SETTLEMENT OF INDIAN PROBLEM

LONDON, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Prime Minister MacDonald tonight made public his plan for allotting seats to Hindus, Moslems, Sikhs, untouchables, and other bitterly antagonistic races, creeds, and classes in the future provincial legislatures of British India. The verdict doubtless will be displeasing to all Indian communities, the prime minister predicted.

The cabinet's most important decision was to continue the present Indian voting system of separate electorates and to fix the proportions of Hindu and Moslem seats in the Punjab and Bengal. The Moslems, under the plan, barely won the Punjab with 86 seats out of 175 outright and three more available in a special voting category for landholders. The Sikhs, another disturbing factor in the Punjab, must be content with 32 seats.

The untouchables in some provinces will have two votes apiece, one in general constituencies, the other for members of their own class. Thirty-seven seats were allotted to women throughout India.

SPAIN IMPRISONS GRANDEES; MOVES TO GET ESTATES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Spain, Aug. 16.—Spanish aristocrats who dabble in monarchist revolts will lose their vast estates, according to a bill prepared by Premier Manuel Arana's government and signed by President Alcala Zamora today. The bill, which also calls for the cancellation of royal privileges and rights, will be presented immediately to parliament before the courts begin to try the hundreds who were arrested following the recent revolt led by Gen. José Sanjurjo.

Two of the richest grandees in Spain are now in jail, with other less aristocratic prisoners, charged with aiding in the revolt. They are the duke of Medinaceli, who owns enormous properties; the duke of Infantado, who owns a vast water power site. Another wealthy aristocrat, Marquess Juan Ignatio Luca de Tena, proprietor of the Spanish daily, A, B, C, was also clapped in jail today. In his paper, which is now under a ban, he wrote the day before the revolt that "events will show it is not only the republic which knows how to use force." His palace and the southern branch of his paper were burned during revenge riots at Seville.

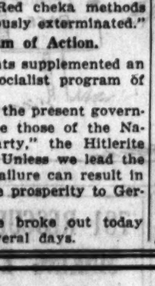
The republic has been able to effect impressive economies as a result of the rebellion. Two of the highest paid jobs in Spain, the directorships of the civil guards and carabinieri will go out of existence and a half dozen generals and hundreds of officers implicated in the movement who were retired on full pay during the army reform will be left without a cent if they do not lose their lives.

NAZIS AND REDS OPEN DRIVES TO CRUSH VON PAPEN

Communist Chief Ready to Call Strikes.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 16.—Today Chancellor Franz von Papen's government of Germany was caught in a crossfire from right and left. Communists on the left raked it by announcing plans for a nation-wide strike to bring about forcibly unemployment relief measures. Adolf Hitler, on the right, led his National Socialists in a verbal attack on Von Papen's policies.



FRANZ VON PAPEN.

Ernst Thaelmann, communist candidate for president at the April elections, directed the drive which is designed to enlist 3,500,000 Reds against the government.

"The masses of the people must fight against the hunger offensive of the government and the National Socialists," he said in appealing for participation in the proposed strike. "The fight must be on the widest possible basis."

Outlines Red Plans.

Thaelmann outlined economic strikes, rent strikes, agitation by the jobless, and a general strike in all cities as the communist line of action.

Hitler, in his first detailed statement since his rejection by President Paul von Hindenburg as chancellor last Saturday, predicted that Chancellor von Papen's government would plunge Germany in chaos.

"We are going to continue the fight," he said. "I'll never sell my movement for a mess of pottage."

Explaining further his refusal to accept a subordinate position in the German cabinet, the Nazi leader exclaimed:

"My lieutenants would forgive me if I made a mistake, but never if I would renounce my principles. On matters of principle there can be no compromise. If the massacre of my comrades continues I will be compelled to order them to defend their rights and then Red cheka methods will be instantaneously exterminated."

Nazi Program of Action.

Hitler's statements supplemented an official National Socialist program of action.

"The policies of the present government can never be those of the National Socialist party," the Hitlerite statement said. "Unless we lead the government only failure can result in attempts to restore prosperity to Germany."

Political violence broke out today after a lull of several days.

GERMANS SMASH MILLION ATOMS WITH NEW TUBE

5,000,000 Volt Test Proves Success.

BERLIN, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Success in another great atom smashing goal of science—disintegration of masses of atoms—was announced today by the German General Electric company.

The Germans claim to have pulverized atoms by the millions instead of the few hit and miss smashes achieved by previous scientific methods.

It will be necessary to have apparatus capable of smashing atoms in vast masses before scientists expect to fathom the secrets—and possible uses—that lie behind the atomic barriers. The Germans say the tube they used has been dismantled so a still larger one may be set up.

How Test Was Made.

The tube was built by Fritz Lange and Arno Brasch. It is a 5,000,000 volt X-ray tube, made by "cascading," that is, by hooking together, end to end, several X-ray tubes.

Each unit of this cascade, according to the brief announcement, is 2.40 meters long, about eight feet. But how many are hooked together is not stated. The cascading is employed to spread the tremendous electrical energy so that it does not destroy the tube containing it.

If the tube operates in the usual way, the 5,000,000 volt current produces a stream of glowing electrons such as are visible on a small scale in a radio tube. These strike a metal target and the smashing impact gives off three kinds of rays—gamma, which are immaterial and similar to the rays of radium; alpha particles, which are heavy units corresponding to the nucleus of a helium atom, and electrons, variously called beta rays and cathode rays.

Pierce 20 Centimeters of Lead.

The announcement says the electron rays in the big tube have a range of more than 30 feet, but does not make clear whether all this is in air.

The gamma rays are said to pierce 20 centimeters of lead. This is a surprising penetration. A few centimeters of lead stop radium's gamma rays.

It is neither these penetrating rays nor the electrons that smashed the atoms, however. That was done with heavy particles. The announcement does not state whether these particles were protons—heavy positive charges of electricity—or alpha particles. They could be either.

It is stated that the particles were accelerated as they shot from tube to tube until they were traveling at a rate of speed equivalent to 1,000,000 volts.

PRINCE? SPY? WOMAN KILLS HIM; MYSTERY

said that his father was generally supposed to have been the old emperor of the dual monarchy of Austria-Hungary. Francis Josef. "Prince Edgar" told associates, forced Princess Alice to marry her uncle, Albrecht von Hapsburg, before Edgar's birth.

The mystery of his identity deepened tonight when a dispatch from Vienna said that a search there had failed to reveal any trace of an Edgar de Bourbon. Reports that Princess Alice of Bourbon had a son whose name was Edgar were denied by her eldest son, Archduke Josef Ferdinand, who lives in a castle at Mondsee. He said his mother was married in 1868 to Grand Duke Ferdinand of Tuscany, archduke of Austria, who died in 1908.

It was also revealed that "Prince Edgar" had once married a Milanese woman and had deserted her when she became a mother.

Son Located in Cleveland.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Rudolph de Bourbon, 35, automobile sales and mechanical expert, said late today he believed the elderly man found dead in a Paris hotel was his father, Prince Edgar de Bourbon d'Este. He added that he had received no word of his father's death and could not be certain until he did.

"I do not know what my father was doing in Paris since I have not heard from him for years," the son said.

He added that his mother, the former Clare de Cosse Conger of New York City, who died ten years ago, married the prince 36 years ago. The son, who for some time was manager of an automobile sales company here, at present is unemployed.

JOBLESS FATHER OF TEN DIES OF BULLET WOUND

Edward Heller, 46 years old, father of ten children, died yesterday in the county hospital of a bullet wound in the abdomen. He was shot last Thursday by Thomas Casey, owner of a soft drink parlor at 4431 South Wells street. Casey, who had been at liberty in bond on a charge of assault to kill, was rearrested yesterday and held at the Stockyards police station for the inquest.

Mrs. Heller, at her home at 123 West 45th street, told olice that none of her children were working.

SECOND SON BORN TO LINDBERGHS IN JERSEY HOME

Successor to Kidnaped Baby Arrives.

BY TOM PETTEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 16.—[Special.]—A second child—a son—was born to Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh early today, and tonight the mother and baby were reported as "doing well." The awaited successor to the kidnaped and slain Charles Augustus Jr. arrived at 7:30 a. m. at the Englewood, N. J., home of Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, Mrs. Lindbergh's mother.

Col. Lindbergh was reported to have been in high spirits, chuckling when he telephoned the news to the press agencies in accordance with an agreement he made several days ago in exchange for no watch being kept on the gate.

Tonight complete silence regarding the new Lindbergh heir was maintained at the Morrow estate. There was no further statement to be obtained from Dr. Edward Hawkes in Manhattan, the specialist who brought both the Lindbergh babies into the world.

Not Home to Callers.

The doctor's secretary late this afternoon said the physician would not discuss the Lindbergh baby and that any details would have to be obtained from the father. Col. Lindbergh, as is his custom, was unavailable to callers.

The watch outside the estate gate that had marked the birth of the Lindberghs' first son was missing this morning. On June 22, 1930, all the world endeavored to gain intimate information of the arrival of the first heir of the famous flyer and gathered no information whatever until the proud grandfather, Dwight W. Morrow, now dead, decided he could withhold the information no longer.

This morning the Morrow estate was quiet except for the rumble of the milk wagon and the arrival of Dr. Edward Hawkes and three other specialists to attend the mother. The event had been anticipated ever since the night last March when kidnapers stole into the nursery of the Lindbergh home in the Sourland hills.

Makes Appeal to Press.

Col. Lindbergh, in a statement issued from the office of Col. Henry Breckenridge today, said:

"Mrs. Lindbergh and I have made our home in New Jersey. It is naturally our wish to continue to live there, near our friends and interests. Obviously, however, it is impossible for us to subject the life of our second son to the publicity which we feel was in a large measure responsible for the death of our first.

"We feel that our children have a right to grow up normally with other children. Continued publicity will make this impossible. I am appealing to the press to permit our children to lead the lives of normal Americans."

Born in Same Room.

The child, said to have weighed 8 pounds, was born in the same wing of the big house in which little Charles Augustus Jr. was brought into a tragic world a little more than two years ago.

For more than a month Mrs. Lindbergh had been under constant medical supervision. She had returned to her mother's home from her own place near Hopewell from which her first baby had been kidnaped. Mrs. Lindbergh had borne up so bravely under the strain of the kidnaping that her physicians expected no difficulty about the birth of her second child. Mrs. Morrow and the three other Morrow children went abroad more than a month ago, but the grandmother had hurried back from her holiday to be with Anne in the great white house.

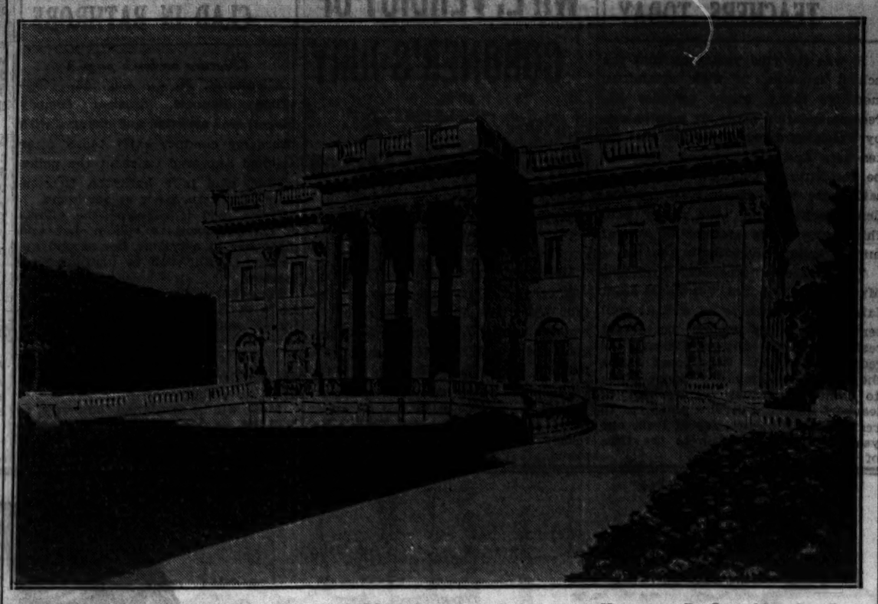
Mrs. Lindbergh is now 26 years old. Col. Lindbergh is 30. Their first child would have been two years old last June 23 if the tragic events of last spring had not occurred.

Disasters Since 1930.

Great changes and disasters have visited the Lindbergh-Morrow homes since 1930. Senator Morrow, while in the midst of his senatorial campaign, died suddenly last October. Then Charles Augustus Jr. was stolen from his crib on the night of March 1. As an aftermath of the kidnaping there was the suicide of Violet Sharpe, the Morrow maid, when her name was apparently innocently dragged into the crime.

The first Lindbergh baby was sought throughout the world after having been stolen until his skeleton was found on May 12 in a thicket five miles from the Hopewell home. Millions watched and sought to help during the seventy-two days of a world-wide hunt for the kidnapers. A $50,000 ransom was paid through Dr. John F. [Jafsie] Condon, but the child was already dead.

"Marble Palace" of Mrs. Belmont Is Sold



The $8,000,000 "marble palace" of Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont at Newport, R. I., which has been sold to Frederick H. Prince, Boston financier and sportsman. The house has been boarded up since 1914.

May Reopen House

Newport, R. I., Aug. 16.—[Special.]—The fabulous marble palace, Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont's $8,000,000 Newport "cottage," which has been boarded up since 1914, has passed to Frederick H. Prince, Boston financier and sportsman, by sale, it was learned today. Gustave J. S. White, society sportsman who trades in real estate, was given as agent of the sale. The price was not named.

Whether Mr. and Mrs. Prince, who are active in international social affairs, intend reopening the huge mansion on Bellevue avenue this year was not indicated. Prince is in Newport now for the King's Cup races, in which his yacht, Weetamoe, eliminated for the America's cup by Enterprise, is entered.

The Princes are lavish entertainers in Boston, in Paris, and at their château in Pau, France, where Prince is master of the local hounds. They sailed last winter for France with seven servants, twelve horses, and 27 hounds.

Quite as much as the recent paralytic stroke suffered by the octogenarian Mrs. Belmont in Paris, the passing of Marble Palace reminiscently marks the end of a long gone era when American society represented an organized entity. With the building and furnishing of the Marble Palace in 1892 by the late William K. Vanderbilt as a birthday gift to his wife, the age of ostentatious display ushed in by the post-civil war bonanza reached a climax.

10,000 Cuban Doctors Strike Against Low Cost Clinics

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, Aug. 16.—President Machado tonight decreed immediate government intervention in a strike of 10,000 physicians, members of the National Medical Federation of Cuba, who walked out at noon today in protest against the treatment of patients in clinics at low cost.

Three hundred doctors abandoned their positions and services in eight of Havana's most important private clinics and hospitals. Others stopped treatment of more than 3,000 patients confined in institutions. At least half of these patients are seriously ill. The strike also affects 250 branch clinics throughout the island, where about 6,000 persons are confined.

Government Assumes Control.

In his decree tonight, President Machado ordered Octavio Zubizarreta, secretary of interior, to assume control of all private medical associations and institutions.

Zubizarreta ordered Carlos de Cespedes, secretary of sanitation, to appoint government physicians to replace the strikers so patients' lives will not be endangered.

President Machado also sent an urgent message to the directors of the Medical federation, demanding that the physicians return to their posts immediately and promising government arbitration and settlement of the trouble within 72 hours.

Charge Medical Class Ruined.

The institutions against which the physicians are striking are owned and operated by wealthy Spanish regional associations with a membership of 450,000 men, women and children.

Membership fees in the institutions are $2 monthly and the services to members include complete treatments for all illnesses, confinements, operations, and burial. A membership is included without additional cost in social clubs for sports, dances, and free education of the members' children.

The directors of the medical federation claim that the institutions have virtually ruined the medical class, depriving physicians not connected with the institutions of a chance of making a living. They insist that members of the institutions with incomes of more than $100 monthly be immediately dropped.

The directors of the institutions insist that no legal procedure exists to enforce the federation's decision. They insist that the services of the institutions should not be regulated by incomes or ability to pay higher fees to private physicians.

STATE GRILLS BAIN KINSMAN ON BANK DEALS

Fisher Admits Signing of Transfer Papers.

W. Merle Fisher, son-in-law of John Bain, spent a harried afternoon yesterday on the witness stand as Special Prosecutor Edwin J. Raber shot rapid fire questions at him concerning his part in the alleged conspiracy which is blamed for the collapse of the Bain bank chain. Fisher, Bain, and the latter's two sons are on trial on the conspiracy charges.

W. MERLE FISHER.

Fisher underwent his ordeal before Judge John M. O'Connor, who is hearing the case without a jury, without the moral support of his "in-laws." The elder Bain is ill at home and his two sons spent the day reviewing evidence in the case, it was stated.

Fisher's defense to the prosecutor's verbal attacks consisted principally of a series of denials. He denied that he read clearing house reports on the condition of Bain banks, although one such report stated that the West Englewood Trust and Savings bank, of which Fisher was vice president and cashier, contained $1,175,000 in doubtful assets.

Admits Signing Papers.

He admitted signing transfer papers in transactions by which, the prosecution alleges, Bain juggled assets from one of his projects to another, but he asserted that he didn't know what the transactions were about. On direct examination, he had testified earlier in the day that he signed one such paper because it had already been signed by another official of the bank, so he thought it was all right.

Several times Fisher sought to shift responsibility in matters about which he was questioned to John Bain. At the end of the session, however, Prosecutor Raber fired a rapid series of questions concerning a trust fund which witnesses had previously testified had been handled principally by Fisher. When they reached this point Fisher began to squirm in his chair as he made his denials and explanations.

Questioned on Trust Fund.

The trust was one for $40,000 established by Robert Esplin, an old acquaintance of John Bain, for the benefit of his wife, Anna, and her mother. John Bain was the trustee with power under the trust agreement, which was read by Prosecutor Raber, to handle the trust in any way he saw fit. The examination on this point follows:

Q.—Did you know Bob Esplin? A.—Yes, I went to Bible class with him and we played golf together.

Q.—This trust agreement states that the trust shall be invested in United States bonds, municipal bonds, and first mortgages on improved real estate. How do you justify the purchase for it of a Crawford Highlands mortgage, which was on unimproved property? A.—Well, that was bought before the trust was created, and Mr. Esplin agreed to put it in.

Q.—Mrs. Esplin told you they were going to submit this stuff to a lawyer, didn't she? Why did you write her a letter asking them to see you first? Was it an attempt to disarm them so they wouldn't go to a lawyer at all? A.—No, it wasn't that at all.

Q.—The trust agreement provides that John Bain, as trustee, was to handle the property in any way he saw fit. As a lawyer yourself, didn't you think it was wise for them to see a lawyer about an agreement like that? A.—I didn't tell her not to see a lawyer.

Q.—And the officers of your bank were putting their own stuff into this trust? A.—That's not so.

Q.—Wasn't Crawford Highlands John Bain's own stuff? A.—Yes, that was a liability of his. In fact, he was interested in all the stuff that went into that trust.

Q.—When you put $6,000 in the notes of John Bain Trust 687 into that trust you knew the clearing house report had said that that trust was $200,000 short in its assets, didn't you? A.—I didn't put those notes in.

Then Prosecutor Raber turned the discussion to a mortgage bond issue on 44 feet of frontage adjoining the West Englewood bank. Although this land was worth only $50,000, he asserted, the Bains put a $200,000 bond issue on it.

Q.—By your own computations, by your own appraisals, the land and building is worth only $172,000? A.—Yes, that's right.

Q.—Yet you put some of those bonds in the trust? A.—No.

Q.—Did Esplin select them? A.—No.

Her Pseudo Husband Grand Success, Says Duped Girl

As a pseudo husband, Arthur L. Fischer was a grand success. The girl he tricked into a mock marriage ceremony so informed the police yesterday. The 25 year old bad check artist and bigamist, held by Oak Park police for prosecution on the latter charge, never omitted flowers and candy and always helped her with the dishes, Miss Lillian Koehl of 1010 Pleasant street, Oak Park, recalled sorrowfully.

Believing herself married to Fischer, Miss Koehl was found sharing an apartment with him at 114 South Maple avenue on Monday when he was arrested for writing a bad check for $50. Lieut. Harry Wilson, chief of detectives in Oak Park, who had taken Fischer into custody before on a similar complaint, had a good memory for faces and recalled that this was not the wife he had encountered previously. He didn't believe his prisoner when he said "She died," and the records justified his incredulity.

Faints When She Learns Truth.

Miss Koehl, who knew her "husband" as Harry L. Fischer" and thought he was on the Oak Park police force, fainted when she was informed that he had been married twice before, once bigamously. His legal wife is said to be Mrs. Margaret Hobbins Fischer of Appleton, Wis.

As she signed a complaint against him in the Oak Park station, Miss Koehl, member of a pioneer family of the suburb, related how the glib poseur had hoaxed her. They met three months ago when her car broke down. He was passing and offered to help her. He towed the car to a garage he told her he owned, and had it repaired. A month later their banns were published in St. Edmund Roman Catholic church, to which she belongs. She gave up a position in the Central Republic bank.

One day Fisher informed her he had obtained permission from her parish priest to be married on the south side of Chicago, and they made the trip to a church "near 19th street" which she cannot now identify. It was closed so they went to a nearby house which he said was the rectory, and went through a purported marriage ceremony by a man in clerical dress, whom Fischer addressed as "Father Casey," Miss Koehl said.

She turned over to Fischer $300 in cash and her automobile, which he sold, pocketing the proceeds. They had occupied the apartment at 114 South Maple for about two months. Miss Koehl indicated that she would not remain in Oak Park when the case is completed.

Bonds of $20,000.

Six feet tall and prepossessing of appearance, Fischer was brought before Police Magistrate Martin McGrath yesterday. His bonds were set at $20,000 and he was taken to the county jail when the case was continued to Aug. 23.

Miss Koehl, Mrs. Mary Privil, a divorcée who was his bigamous wife, and possibly his legal wife will testify against him. Other witnesses who may be called are Miss Dortha Hefel, a waitress who had refused his proposal of marriage, and a Detroit girl who cashed a bad check for him for $100.

"I feel sorry for my two wives, but I don't feel sorry for myself," smiled the confidence man as he was led away. "I never went through any kind of marriage with Miss Koehl."

U. S. AUTHORIZES IMPROVEMENT OF INNER HARBOR

Improvement of the Chicago inner harbor was authorized yesterday by Secretary Patrick J. Hurley. The work, which will cost $75,000 and will start on Sept. 1, will be done by army engineers under Col. W. G. Caples. The tops of the present wooden cribs will be torn out just below the water line and the stone breakwater will be recapped with concrete. The breakwater extends from the coast guard station at the mouth of the river to a point off Van Buren street.

SELLS MILK OF CUT PRICE DAIRY AND IS BOMBED

One of three men in an automobile tossed a bomb upon the roof of Joseph Kreda's delicatessen at 3858 West Roosevelt road late last night. The explosion tore a hole in the roof and did about $100 damage.

Kreda and Fillmore street police said that they believed the bombing was due to Kreda's selling of cut price milk supplied by the Meadowmoor Dairy company, 1334 South Peoria street. Kreda was slugged on July 13 by two hoodlums who purchased a bottle of the Meadowmoor milk and then hit him with the bottle. On the front of Kreda's store is a sign advertising the company's milk.

The Meadowmoor started operations in June shortly after a bomb was tossed into the place. The concern sells milk for 9 cents a quart and pints for 6 cents. Other dairy products are correspondingly lower.

WOMAN KILLED BY AUTO ON HER WAY TO CHURCH

Miss Ruby Pellegrino, 65 years old, 3037 Arthington street, left her home yesterday on her way to attend mass at Our Lady of Sorrows church, Albany avenue and Jackson boulevard. At Albany avenue and Harrison street she was struck and fatally injured by the automobile of Samuel Danza, 726 South May street.

This death increased the 1932 motor toll in Cook county to 723.

Coroner Frank J. Walsh yesterday made public a report on the number of traffic accidents which resulted in fatalities during the first six months of 1932. The report shows that 43 persons were killed in railroad accidents, 24 in street car crashes, and five in elevated line accidents, while 551 were killed by automobiles.

WEST PARKS PAY RECORD ORDERED PRODUCED TODAY

Pay Roll Padding Charges to Be Aired.

Records of the west parks board which, it has been charged, will disclose widespread pay roll padding in the park system, must be produced before him today in the Superior court, Judge Charles A. Williams ruled yesterday.

The records are sought in connection with the mandamus proceedings by which two former park jobholders are seeking to regain their positions. The charges of pay roll padding were made to Judge Williams by their attorney, Michael F. Ryan.

A Change of Titles.

His clients are Joseph C. Kotlengar, 2051 North Kedzie boulevard, former general foreman of west park boulevards, and Bernard F. Burgeson, 321 South Central avenue, former concrete construction foreman in the parks. They charged that the park board, while pretending to abolish their jobs, which were under civil service rules, in effect merely changed the titles, and then gave the positions to Republican politicians.

"The proceedings started April 27, but continuances and extended arguments on motions and demurrers have prevented the production of the pay roll records in court. Yesterday, Judge Williams denied attorneys for the park board a change of venue, and ordered that the trial of the mandamus action, with the pay roll records on hand as evidence, be started today.

Demands Pay Roll Records.

Attorney Ryan has asserted repeatedly before Judge Williams that although the pay roll accounts are supposed to be public records, open to inspection by citizens, he has been denied access to them.

He said that although Kotlengar and Burgeson were dismissed on grounds of economy, four Republican ward committeemen on the west side were almost immediately placed on the park pay rolls. William M. Garrison [27th], a cog in the old Republican city hall machine, allegedly got Kotlengar's post, at $450 a month, under a new title of maintenance superintendent of boulevards.

The other ward committeemen who got pay roll berths, at $400 a month, each, according to Ryan, were James Vignola [26th], Paul Rothenberg [24th], and William Lass [23d.

150 Jobless Mexicans Sent Back to Their Homeland

One hundred and fifty unemployed Mexicans left Chicago over the Alton railroad last night for their native land. Transportation was provided by the Joint Emergency Relief fund. Their destination is Nuevo Laredo, across the border from Laredo, Tex. From there the Mexican government has agreed to transport them to their home towns. A group of similar size left for Mexico about three weeks ago.

Wading's Fine on Our City Beaches, Swimmers Discover

The discovery of another swimmer like Johnny Weissmuller on Chicago's public beaches may never happen again if the line of life guards draws any tighter along the lake front. Their boats now float out where the water is 4 and 5 feet deep, and a swimmer is not permitted to go beyond them.

These were the findings of Eddie Deuss, 711 Belmont avenue, an expert swimmer, who wanted to practice in the lake waters but was rebuffed by the life guards at almost every turn. Deuss won two letters on the University of Illinois swimming team in 1927 and 1928. His event was the 440 yard swim, the longest and most taxing race in the Big Ten tank meets.

Start at Oak Street Beach.

Deuss started on his first lake swim at Oak street beach, accompanied by a TRIBUNE reporter. The pair waded out until the water touched their waists and then settled into a slow, easy Australian crawl, Deuss in the lead. The sun was hot but the water was cool and refreshing.

A few minutes of this exercise and a boat popped up in front of them, a red shirted life guard at the oars. "Get the hell back in—you guys," shouted the guard, rowing toward them as if to emphasize his command. The boat would have plunged into Deuss' head had not the swimmer pushed it away with his feet.

The swimmers started back to shore trying to decide whether to mingle with the waders and waterwing bathers in the shallow water or join the sun tan cult on the beach. In shore they encountered another life guard and asked him about the rules governing strong swimmers.

"We Gotta Be Tough."

"Listen, it don't make any difference how good you are," the guard declared. "If you hadn't come in you would have been smacked with an oar. It's our job to be tough down here."

The next attempt was at Jackson park beach. There were three guards in sight there, one patroling the beach in an outboard motorboat, his companions rowing their boats among the outer fringe of bathers. The water was chest high at the boat line.

It was at this point that Deuss and his friend started to swim. They had gone only a few yards when they were halted by a whistle. It was a life guard again. "Come on in," he commanded. "If you go down here you'll be easier to find." The swimmers protested, but were overruled.

Rocky Ledge Beach.

By this time the sun was sinking and the day was almost gone, but the swimmers proceeded to the Rocky Ledge beach at the foot of 79th street. This is out of the south park jurisdiction and the guards here are employed by the city.

When the swimmers passed the life guard boat, the red shirted figure cautioned them not to go out too far. The pair swam the length of a city block beyond the guard. At this point he thrust in his oars and pulled his boat around. Deuss and his companion treaded water for a minute and then swam back.

The new Montrose beach, reached by a half mile of walking through the loose sand of the fill-in, is untenanted by guards in the early morning hours.

Here the two swimmers struck out into the lake. The swimmers were a half-mile out in the lake when three life guards appeared, walking on top of a large sand pipe, carrying their oars. They put a boat in the water. Deuss and his friend swam in.

Differ on Duties.

The officials of Lincoln park and the south park system differ regarding the duties of their life guards, although there is a marked similarity in the conduct of the guards of both parks. H. Otto Weege, superintendent of Lincoln park, believes a strong swimmer should be allowed to go as far as he wants to beyond the boat line. He added that the guard has no legal right to compel him to return.

S. G. Reynolds, assistant superintendent of playgrounds and sports for the south parks, and in charge of life guards, said that no swimmer was allowed beyond the life guard boats. "When the swimmer fails to obey," Reynolds said, "We bring him in and take him to a police station."

EXPECT ADDED CONGESTION IN HIGH SCHOOLS

5,000 More Students to Enter This Autumn.

An increase of more than 5,000 pupils is expected in the senior high schools this September, according to the estimates made yesterday by Benjamin F. Buck, assistant superintendent of schools, and Don C. Rogers, director of research and building survey. There were more than 100,000 pupils and 3,200 teachers in the 24 senior high schools last year.

The estimate was made that 5,000 students will go to the 9th grade of the junior high schools instead of to the senior high schools. This change was brought about by changing the school boundaries as recommended by Superintendent William J. Bogan and approved by the school board on May 11.

Strayer Figures Cited.

This measure will relieve some congestion in the senior high schools, which, Mr. Buck says, are now crowded. According to the recent survey of Dr. George D. Strayer of Columbia university 91.6 per cent of the seating capacity of Chicago high schools is used during the school day.

Dr. Strayer used for comparison the survey made in 1927 by Edgar L. Morphet of Teachers' college, Columbia university, in which it was stated that 80 per cent usage of high school classrooms is normal.

The school board began yesterday afternoon to pay out 1931 tax anticipation warrants to teachers and employés of the educational fund for their services last year in July, August, and December. Warrants are passed out in exchange for mutilated checks at the old City State Bank building at Randolph and Wells streets.

Proxy to Release Warrants.

Following the authorization of a proxy by Mayor Cermak other 1931 warrants to the extent of $6,750,000 will be exchanged. These securities were held in a trust fund to back up the scrip issued in lieu of salaries by the school board last year. School officials believe that it will be a week before technicalities attendant on the issuance of trust fund warrants will be cleared up and payment started.

Constance Binney Wins Secret Divorce in Nevada

Reno, Nev., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Constance Binney, Broadway stage star of a few years ago, was secretly divorced from Charles Edward Cotting at Fallon, Nev., July 25, court files revealed today. Extreme mental cruelty was charged. They were married at Old Lyme, Conn., June 3, 1926. Miss Binney played opposite John Barrymore in "Test of Honor" and "Here Comes the Bride" and starred in Rachael Crothers' "39 East."

TRUSTEES MAY ACT ON NONRESIDENT TEACHERS TODAY

It was reported yesterday that the school trustees, in their committee meetings today, might consider the recommendation made six months ago by President Lewis E. Myers that all teachers and other school employés be residents of Chicago. Mr. Myers said there were about 1,500 nonresident teachers and "the salary paid this group would amount to several million dollars annually."

"In justice to taxpayers," President Myers told the board, "it would seem fair that all teachers as well as civil service employés should be actual residents of the city of Chicago. I recommend that the board take the necessary steps to adopt rules to limit all future employment of teachers and civil service employés to residents of Chicago, for at least one year continuously prior to the time of employment."

TEACHER KILLED WIFE, VERDICT OF CORONER'S JURY

May Call Special Session of Grand Jury.

Marshall, Ill., Aug. 16.—[Special.]—A coroner's jury late today decided that Hubert C. Moor, 32 years old, a teacher in the Robinson High school, shot and killed his wife, a substitute teacher, in their automobile on the highway six miles south of here.

Moor was ordered to jail to await action of the grand jury. State's Attorney Victor Miller said he was considering calling a special jury because the regular grand jury does not meet until November.

Moor will be arraigned tomorrow, so will be unable to attend his wife's funeral in Indianapolis.

Moor appeared at a farmhouse at 6 o'clock yesterday morning and reported that he had been clubbed into unconsciousness and that his assailant had taken away his wife and auto. He was getting out of his car to examine a tire when the attack occured, he said.

William Imle, the farmer, went with Moor to search for the car. It was found half a mile away. The body of Mrs. Moor, with two bullets in her heart, was found slumped in the front seat.

Authorities immediately suspected Moor's story. Two physicians who examined him said there was no evidence that he had been struck. He told an incoherent story, insisting he was dazed from the attack upon him. He admitted there had been a revolver in his car, but the weapon could not be found.

Moor also said he had been robbed of his watch. Today, as he was changing his clothes in the jail before the inquest, the watch dropped from his pocket.

The couple had been to Indianapolis, where Mrs. Moor had visited her parents. They were married six years ago. No motive has yet been discovered for the alleged murder.

"I'm innocent and I'll always maintain I'm innocent," Moor asserted after the inquest.

TAKES 3 POLICEMEN TO SUBDUE ACTRESS CLAD IN BATHROBE

Allenhurst, N. J., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Wilda Bennett, musical comedy dancer, was arrested and charged with disorderly conduct early today after she had appeared twice at the police station, clad in a bathrobe, to complain of a disturbance at her home.

Police said it required the efforts of three officers to subdue her and place her in a cell on her second appearance. She will be arraigned tomorrow.

Miss Bennett appeared in "The Lady in Ermine," "The Good Little Devil," and other musical comedies.

$2,000,000 CITY WARRANTS SOLD; EMPLOYES PAID

City employés got their pay checks for the last half of May yesterday as the result of the purchase of $2,000,000 worth of 1931 corporate fund tax warrants by loop banks. The transaction was completed during the morning, and distribution of checks began at noon.

The pay rolls which were met totaled $1,964,898. The tax warrant sale provided funds to pay all city employés except those of the library board, which has been selling its own tax warrants to meet the pay rolls.

Police Commissioner Allman notified his men through the police teletype last evening that they would receive one-half month's pay today.

SHERIDAN ROAD SHOP ROBBED.

Three armed men yesterday broke the window of the Diane Dress shoppe, 5038 Sheridan road, and escaped with dresses valued at $4,000.

HOPE HELD FOR GIRL VICTIM OF SLEEP SICKNESS

Miss Patricia Maguire, who has been a victim of a form of sleeping sickness since last February, is showing signs of recovery, according to members of her family last night.

Miss Maguire, who is 27 years old, is confined to her home at 523 Clarence avenue, Oak Park, under the care of Dr. Eugene F. Traut of 715 Lake street, Oak Park.

First signs of Miss Maguire's illness occurred Feb. 13, when she became drowsy. That condition persisted until Feb. 15, when she sank into intermittent comas. She is fed with liquid foods. Serum from her own blood is being used to counteract the mysterious malady.

4 ROBBERS ESCAPE WITH $300.

Four bandits escaped with $300 yesterday after holding up a woman and seven men employes in the office of the Ideal Wrapping Products company, 3751 Montrose avenue.

Don't Gasp At.. LiLy Damita's FIGURE!

Eat two salads daily covered with Hellmann's Mayonnaise and within 60 days you, too, may regain the slenderness of youth!

LILY DAMITA weighs exactly 114 pounds. She is five feet three inches tall. And a glance at the measurements shown at the right will prove to you her perfect proportions.

Now how does provocative Mlle. Damita keep her figure so slender? How does she protect her ravishing bodily grace? By violent physical exercise? By starvation diets?

Not a bit of it! Lily Damita can not afford to ruin her health . . . even to maintain her figure!

All she does is EAT SENSIBLY. She cuts out heavy, fattening foods. And in their place, substitutes two inexpensive salads daily . . . one at lunch, another at dinner . . . covered with Hellmann's Mayonnaise. So simple . . . yet so effective!

Indeed, as Mlle. Damita says in her fascinating broken English, "That Hellmann Plan, it is so easy! It takes the weight off in just the right places . . . and in two months' time you will look and feel just wonderful!"

Why don't you start this slenderizing plan at once? Two salads daily . . . a minimum of fattening foods. Follow this plan faithfully, and you can regain much of the slenderness and health that you may so envy in others.

But always insist on Hellmann's, the quality mayonnaise. It is made of only the finest vinegars, oils, eggs, and spices. Then, double-whipped for extra creamy smoothness.

But we warn you! Recently certain mayonnaise makers have started using inferior fillers in a frantic effort to lower their prices and thus fool the public. This the makers of Hellmann's flatly refused to do. Hellmann's Mayonnaise remains absolutely uncheapened, absolutely unchanged. At your grocer's then, tomorrow.

HELLMANN'S MAYONNAISE

THRILLS AWAIT MUSIC LOVERS IN FESTIVAL BANDS

Many Chicagoland Entries Are Listed.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

The gay clamor of a brass band, the glittering flash of light playing against burnished instruments, the colors of uniforms, the toe-tickling throb of drums, the agile direction of the drum major, what can be conceived of more joyous mood?

The drums will crash and the trumpets bray, and they'll cut a dash on their wedding day, sings Pooh-Bah in "The Mikado." He is foreshadowing a festive occasion. If it is good to talk about cutting a dash on a wedding day, it is better to think of it in connection with the Chicagoland Music Festival at Soldiers' field next Saturday night. Certainly the drums and trumpets will be there to do their share, not to mention the trombones, the saxophones, the clarinets, and the piccolos.

Bands Are Welcomed.

In their sponsorship of the Chicagoland Music Festivals, THE TRIBUNE and associated newspapers of the middle west have welcomed band entries. They have known that nine out of ten persons in the whole United States make their first acquaintance with the world of music through hearing band melodies, and that this early acquaintance becomes a lifelong affection.

So it is with peculiar pleasure that the Chicagoland Music Festival sponsors greet the entry of no less than 27 bands and 34 drum corps into the dramatic program of next Saturday night. These are in addition to the festival band of 100 pieces, which, directed by the competent Victor Grabel, will serve as the instrumental focus of the occasion.

List of Musical Groups.

So many have been the entries that it has been found necessary to subdivide the bands as to adult and junior memberships and size of organizations. Here is the list of both bands and drum corps:

ADULT BANDS.

Woodlawn post No. 125, American Legion band.

Italo-American National Union Symphonic band, entered by the Italo-American National union of Chicago.

Groll's Accordion band, which will take part in the parade, but not the contest.

The De Kalb Municipal band, entered by the De Kalb Daily Chronicle.

U. N. I. A. Tempo Star band of Gary, Ind.

British and Colonial Veterans' band.

Studebaker band, entered by the Studebaker corporation, South Bend, Ind.

Holton-Elkhorn band, Elkhorn, Wis., sponsored by Elkhorn Independent.

Whitewater City band, Whitewater, Wis., sponsored by Whitewater Press and Whitewater Register. [The last two are directed by S. E. Mear. The Holton-Elkhorn band is nationally known, having been in continuous service for more than fifty years.]

Milwaukee Kiltie Girls' band.

JUVENILE BANDS.

Camp Roosevelt band, Racine, Wis. This is the Chicago high school students' summer camp band.

Auburn Park Lions band, entered by the Auburn Park Lions club.

Fort Dearborn post No. 268 Junior band, American Legion.

St. Sabina band, Catholic Youth organization.

St. Joseph institute band.

Joliet De La Salle band, Catholic Youth organization.

ALLERTON GLEE CLUB WINNER IN FESTIVAL CONTEST

POLLEN COUNT GROWS, SO DO SNEEZES OF HAY FEVER VICTIMS

If the hay fever sufferers in Chicago sneezed oftener yesterday than usual it can be blamed on the increase in pollen in the air. A count made by the Abbott laboratories showed that there were 19 pollen grains in a cubic foot of air yesterday, compared to 6 grains the day before.

Last night was the second spent in the pollen free ward at the University of Illinois Research hospital by twelve men who are subjects for an experiment by the institution designed to assist those who have contracted hay fever. This group will remain for a week, spending the days at work as usual, but returning each evening to enjoy the benefits of restful sleep in the filtered atmosphere of the ward.

Similar tests made last year showed considerable benefit to the patients, but the apparatus for cleansing the air of pollen has been improved this year and by the end of the hay fever season on Oct. 1 it is hoped a better record will be shown.

ALLERTON GLEE CLUB WINS MEN'S CHORUS CONTEST

Mixed Choruses Will Compete Tonight.

The Allerton Hotel Glee club of 20 young men, directed by Frank Bennett, won the Chicago men's chorus contest of the Chicagoland Music Festival last night in the gold ballroom of the Drake hotel. The group sang "The Builder," by Charles Wakefield Cadman, and "The Comrade's Song of Hope," by Adolphe Adam.

The Polish Representative choir of 90 voices, conducted by Gabriel Chrzanowski, formerly of the Russian Opera company, won second place. The choir sang 'Przyszla Baba Do Faraza," meaning "The Old Woman Went to the Pastor," a Polish folk song.

Third place went to the Irving Park Y. M. C. A. male chorus, led by W. Russell Evans.

Given Honorable Mention.

Honorable mention was given to the Chicago Umbrian Glee club, the second oldest colored glee club in the United States. It was directed by Elmer A. Simpson, one of the five Negro conductors of the Chicagoland Music Festival colored chorus of 2,000 voices.

The judges were Nelli Gardini, vocal teacher; Edgar Nelson, and Richard DeYoung, both vocal teachers and choral directors.

The other male choruses and directors participating in the contest were the Deborah and American Commonwealth Glee club, Max Siegel; Woodlawn post No. 175 American Legion Glee club, Harry J. Stephens; West Chicago Community High School Boys' Glee club, L. H. Swanson; Kearsarge Male Glee club [House of Happiness social settlement], A. M. Kuechmann; and the Hawthorne male chorus of the Western Electric company, P. E. Claxton.

Choruses Compete Tonight.

Under the direction of Mrs. Edmund J. Tyler, who is in charge of the vocal and choral contests of the festival, the mixed choruses of Chicago will compete tonight at 7:30 o'clock in the gold ballroom of the Drake. The organizations entered are the Ukrainian Chorus of Chicago, the James A. Mundy Choristers and Jubilee Singers, the St. Mary's A. M. E. church choir, the Smith-Handy Choral club, the Chicago Concert chorus, the West Chicago Community Choral club, and the Elmhurst Choral society.

The first and second place winners will be heard at 10 o'clock from W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station. Three of the choruses were heard over the radio last night.

Enters Tax Judgments Against Five Companies

Default judgment for delinquent 1930 personal property taxes, accrued penalties and court costs were entered against five companies by Circuit Judge Craig Hood in the tax court yesterday. The companies and the judgments follow: Mayanlake Candy company, 1110 West Lake street, $1,153; Novich Gruenwald company, 912 Chicago avenue, Evanston, $687; Mansfield Cabinet company, 933 North Cicero avenue, $2,231; Stafford Sales company, 6301 South Park way, $1,076; and the Liberty Bond and Mortgage company, 4631 South Park way, $2,152. The judge entered judgment against Charles H. Besley, 118 North Clinton street, for $1,974, after a brief trial.

DIES AS RESULT OF FALL.

Ellis Price, 27 years old, 4010 South Park way, a Negro, died yesterday at the county hospital of a fracture of the skull suffered last Thursday when he fell from a second floor porch at 3608 South Dearborn street.

MOVIE MEN TALK ELIMINATION OF DOUBLE FEATURE

The Allied Theaters of Illinois, composed largely of independent theater owners in the Chicago area, met yesterday afternoon at the Congress hotel to discuss the abolition of "double feature pictures" programs in all outlying theaters. Although no action was taken on the proposal, the members of the organization agreed to try to restrict their programs to one feature and several good shorts. Feature pictures for the new season, which starts on Oct. 1 for the outlying houses, appear to be of sufficient merit to be shown singly, according to the president of the body, Aaron A. Saperstein. The use of "double feature pictures" programs in small theaters has necessitated the showing of many pictures of doubtful merit in order to provide eight pictures each week, Saperstein said.

FREEING OF GUN ROBBERS PUT UP TO LEGISLATORS

Swanson to Confer with County Delegation.

State's Attorney Swanson yesterday asked all Cook county members of the state legislature to attend a conference to be held in the county board rooms next Friday morning to consider the drafting of a law making the crime of robbery with a gun a nonprobational offense.

The action was taken as the result of Criminal Court Judge James J. Kelly's action last week in granting probation to three confessed shotgun bandits. Subsequently, the Chicago Crime commission made public records showing that Judge Kelly had granted probation in 137 of the 269 Criminal court cases he has heard in the last eighteen months.

Change in Ruling Sought.

Meanwhile, Assistant State's Attorney Homer Dodge was preparing a petition to be presented to Judge Kelly asking him to expunge his probation of the three bandits and send them to prison. Judge Kelly based his granting of probation on the contention that the men were first offenders, the prosecutor pointed out.

"But these men, St. Clair McInerney, George Dilley, and Ralph Trimble, ought not to have been regarded as first offenders," Mr. Dodge declared. "Our petition will show that the men pleaded guilty to four different crimes. They staged robberies with their sawed-off shotgun on four consecutive occasions during the months of May and June.

"When they pleaded guilty to the first holdup, that was their first offense. When they pleaded guilty to the second robbery they should have been sentenced as second offenders. The state will contend that it does not matter if a previous conviction has been made one minute or one year ahead of the second conviction."

Arraigned on New Charge.

Two of the bandits, McInerney and Dilley, rearrested as they left the county jail after being put on probation by Judge Kelly, were arraigned before Municipal Judge Leon Edelman yesterday on new charges of robbery. The judge was told that the complaining witness, Randall Prieve, had "gone to Michigan for a few weeks."

"The circumstances attending this case, coupled with the fact of Prieve's absence when he knew he was supposed to be in court, point to something radically wrong here," Assistant State's Attorney Albert Bucciere told the judge.

"This case will be continued until Sept. 2," ruled the court. "Spare no effort to find the complaining witness and bring him back here, by force if necessary."

McInerney is being held in $15,000 bond and Dilley in $10,000 bond on the new charges against them.

BOARD OF TRADE BAND WINS STATE LEGION PRIZE; PEORIA SECOND

Danville, Ill., Aug. 16.—[Special.]—The Chicago Board of Trade band won the Illinois Legion championship at today's convention of the American Legion.

The Board of Trade band also won first prize for bands in the state. Armin F. Hand is the director.

Peoria was second and Belleville third. Kankakee won the drum corps prize.

In competitive drill the Commonwealth Edison post of Chicago won, with Roseland second, Park Ridge third, Kankakee fourth.

James P. Ringley of Chicago, senior vice commander, was elected commander of the Illinois department of the Legion. Mrs. Ada Muckelstone was elected president of the auxiliary.

The Legion defeated, 946 to 110, a resolution criticizing President Hoover for calling upon the army to oust the bonus vets from the capital.

BETTY COMPTON "UNNAMED" ONE IN WALKER CASE

Identity Is Revealed by Mayor Himself.

has been described by the mayor as a law clerk, but who banked close to a million dollars, of which more than $700,000 was in cash.

The governor exhibited more impatient force in cross-examining the mayor on why he has not been able to produce Sherwood for questioning than he has shown in any previous hearing. Jimmy Walker protested that he had used every means possible, including the resources of the New York police department and of the Pinkerton agency, but that his search had been in vain. The governor expressed himself as dissatisfied, despite this showing, and demanded to know why Walker had not taken action to bring Sherwood back when the missing man was located in Mexico.

Wishes He Were Present.

"I wish he were here today," lamented the mayor.

"I wish he were here, too," said the governor, grimly, and his tone was not that used by the mayor.

At the morning session it was shown that the "unnamed person" had received the check for $7,500 from the joint brokerage account of Walker and Paul Block, the publisher. It also was revealed that the "unnamed person" was given the $16,000 letter of credit paid for by Russell Sherwood.

The mayor had denied having any connection with the letter of credit, but in the afternoon session the governor again took up the topic.

Payee Friend of His.

GOV. ROOSEVELT—The payee [the unnamed person] was a personal friend of yours? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Did you know of any reason why Sherwood should have bought this letter of credit for the same payee? A.—I do not, except upon request, and the fact that he had before that, to my own knowledge, transacted business for her, like the preparation of income tax reports and other things.

Q.—You know that of your own knowledge? A.—I did, yes. I didn't see them made out—just as there were for another person who was mentioned during this hearing that he bought stock for.

This other person also is a woman, is also unnamed and her identity is not known as is Miss Compton's. The other woman turned over to Sherwood $20,000 which he invested for her.

Q.—Do you know the name of the person to whom these stocks [bought with the $20,000] were assigned? A.—I have just read it on the back of the certificate which your excellency has shown me.

HE KNOWS THE PERSON

Q.—And you know the person? A.—I do know the person. I know a person of that name.

Q.—Do you know anything about the purchase or indorsement of these certificates? A.—I do not.

The governor then read from a statement prepared by one of Mr. Seabury's assistants, indicating that stocks valued at a total of $41,668.99 were delivered out of the various Sherwood accounts to the original "unnamed person," [Miss Compton].

Q.—Do you know anything about the transfer of these securities out of the Sherwood accounts? A.—I do not. I don't know that it ever happened, but if it did happen I know nothing whatsoever about it.

Try to Get Name In.

A few minutes later John J. Curtin, the mayor's chief counsel, sought for what must be the tenth time to get the name of the person officially in the record. He was discussing the stock certificates issued to the person and he said:

"Let's have the name in the record, because I don't want any confusion."

"Go right ahead," said Mr. Seabury, but Gov. Roosevelt put his finger to his lips, shook his head and finally said: "Sh—."

The name stayed out.

Disappearance Is Recalled.

When the governor opened up his cross-examination of the mayor on the disappearance of Sherwood, he discussed briefly the evidence which has shown that the mayor's agent was subpœnaed to testify before the Seabury committee on Aug. 11, 1931, and that a couple of days later he visited two safe deposit boxes in New York banks, cleaned them out and disappeared.

GOV. ROOSEVELT—Mr. Mayor, have you seen Sherwood since Aug. 11, 1931? MAYOR WALKER—I have not.

Then the governor described the testimony of a witness, Fred C. Harris, a friend of Sherwood, who had told the legislative committee that he had sent mail to Sherwood in Chicago and had told Mayor Walker about this.

Says Name Not Mentioned.

Q.—Have you any recollections of this? A.—I have not. I have some recollection of Harris coming to the Mayfair [the mayor's apartment hotel] but at that time the name of Sherwood was never suggested. Because if it had, I would have reported it to Commissioner Mulrooney, who at that time, and for some time before that, upon request of the committee, had been prosecuting a search for Russell T. Sherwood.

The mayor summoned a detective from among the spectators and took a sheaf of papers from him, which he explained had been brought to Albany by Commissioner Mulrooney and which he said showed the extent of the search made for Sherwood. Walker also charged that the committee's own detectives had located Sherwood in Atlantic City—that they even had hotel and room number—but had not arrested him.

MAYOR TELLS OF SEARCH

MAYOR WALKER—That, I think, was in September and the police abandoned it for a while. They were told by the committee to lay off until they had a further request to continue the search, which afterwards was continued in spite of the admonition to lay off; and I have all the records here, but at my request it continued until right up almost to the moment. During this year we got a clue and the police department went to Iowa, and I will show your excellency letters that led to that, letters coming from, I think, Des Moines, to the sisters of Sherwood, which were taken to the law office and from the law office to Miss Day [his present financial agent] and from her to me. I turned them over to Commissioner Mulrooney, with the suggestion that he employ some private secret agency, which he did. He employed the Pinkerton agency some time before that, with branches in every city and every state, at least, in the country. Now we have all that and to think that I would do that and yet not say that Sherwood was in Chicago if I knew it——

The mayor shook his head as though such a thought was beyond belief.

Examination Spirited.

The governor launched into a spirited examination, frequently showing by his expression that he was dissatisfied with the mayor's answers.

Q.—Now, you got back from Europe what date in 1931? A.—I can ascertain, but it was between the 20th and 30th, I think, of September.

Q.—And you learned then of the fact that Sherwood was wanted by the committee? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—That they had been looking for him for a month and couldn't find him? A.—I suggested they could have found him. They knew he was in Atlantic City.

Q.—What steps did you take at that time toward finding him? A.—I inquired and insisted upon them inquiring from his relatives. We had the police working at that time.

In Touch with Sisters.

Q.—Wait a minute. You say from his relatives. What relatives? A.—Whatever relatives he has. I know he has some sisters.

Q.—Who made the inquiry. A.—The law office. The message was sent by me through Miss Day, who continued to do the services for me that Sherwood used to do, by auditing bills, bringing up the checks regularly whenever they were due for me to sign. She keeps the check book for me just as Sherwood used to.

Q.—And you told her what? A.—That they should spend every possible effort to locate him, but I think at that time he was in Mexico, registered under his own name, and there he was served with a subpœna.

SHERWOOD IN CHICAGO?

Q.—You are getting ahead of time. You got back in September and he was still in Chicago on the first of October. A.—Well, I don't know the dates. I know that up to the time he was served with a subpœna there apparently was no necessity to bring him back, yet if I had known he was there, in view of the fact that the police had been asked, I would have told Commissioner Mulrooney—

Q.—Go on to the next step. What else? You telephoned Miss Day? A.—I saw Miss Day.

Q.—You saw Miss Day and then what else did you do? This was when you first came back from Europe? A.—There wasn't anything else that I know of that I could do at that time. He hadn't disobeyed any subpœna at that time.

Q.—But there had been a subpœna issued for him on the 11th of August? A.—But he hadn't been served with it.

No Knowledge, He Says.

Q.—He had disappeared. A.—Well, now, that is true, but I had no knowledge of that. He was here when I left. I was never requested to get him.

Q.—Wasn't it a matter of public notoriety from the time you came back that he had skipped out? A.—Well, I wouldn't say he had skipped out. He went to be married under circumstances that brought him to Mexico and when it was possible for him to marry—after a divorce was granted—he was married there.

Q.—After you got back from Europe you must have found out that the whole town was looking for Russell T. Sherwood? A.—As a matter of fact, the whole town wasn't looking for Russell T. Sherwood. The police department had been asked to serve a subpœna on him and then told to abandon the idea.

Q.—When did you first discover that everybody was looking for him? A.—I didn't discover at any time that everybody was looking for him. The committee was looking for him.

Admits Reading Papers.

Q.—Didn't you read the papers. A.—I did.

Q.—Do you remember the headlines about when he turned up in Mexico City?. A.—I remember a great many headlines in the papers that emanated from the investigating committee.

Q.—That's not the point. I am talking about the headlines that emanated from the turning up of Sherwood in Mexico City. A.—I remember that and he was served with a subpœna there, and he issued a statement and I expressed myself to the law——

Q.—Did you do anything about it then, when you found out he was in Mexico City? A.—About what?

Q.—About bringing him back? Trying to get him back? A.—Did I do anything then?

Q.—Yes. A.—I had no reason to believe that the subpœna would not bring him back until after he refused to obey it.

DENIES HEARING FROM HIM

Q.—And you didn't communicate with him? A.—I didn't communicate with him. I think you would find the records will show that shortly—on the day he received the subpœna or the day after he left Mexico City and his whereabouts have not been known since.

Q.—And you sent him no telegram to Mexico City? A.—I sent him no telegram, no, sir.

Q.—And you didn't get anybody to telephone him? A.—No, I didn't and I can't understand yet why I should.

Q.—Isn't it a curious thing for you, when a man with whom you had a safe deposit and looked after your personal affairs, disappears, and the whole town is looking for him, and he turns up, not to communicate with him A.—There wasn't any opportunity to communicate with him that I know of after he was served with the subpœna, and I had no reason to believe he would disobey the subpœna.

Cites Mexico City Visit.

Q.—Wasn't it a matter of public record in the newspapers that he remained in Mexico City for several days after he was discovered there? A.—I don't think so. I don't know.

Q.—When did you first hear about the subpœna being served on him in Mexico City? A.—I read it in the paper that he gave a statement.

Q.—You didn't make any inquiry about it? A.—I did make inquiry. I kept making inquiries through the law office. That is the only place I could.

Q.—After that, he disappeared entirely and has never been heard of again? A.—So far as I know he hasn't, so far as we can learn, so far as the police department can learn, so far as the Pinkerton agency can learn.

Presses for More Data.

Q.—I have got to go back and press that a bit more, because I don't understand it. Here was a man that had been associated with you in a personal, confidential capacity for 15 years. A.—That isn't true.

Q.—That you had known him for 15 years? A.—No, I met him when I went in with Senator Blauvelt and there were eight or ten others that the same thing would apply to in that office.

Q.—A man who had been handling a great many of your own personal private affairs during the last four or five or six years? A.—Not so many.

Q.—He made out your income tax reports? A.—Yes, that didn't make him——

DREW MAYOR'S CHECKS

Q.—He paid the bills of members of your family for you? A.—He made out checks which I signed, as a clerk would do or a bookkeeper would do.

Q.—And had a joint safe deposit box? A.—Which so far as I am concerned never had a joint account nor a joint safe deposit vault, because I never used it but in one instance and never was in it and never put anything else in the box.

Q.—Nevertheless, wasn't it a strange thing, normally and naturally, that you didn't go and try to find out, locate him by telephone or telegram, in Mexico City when you first read in the paper that he had turned up there? A.—There was no necessity to locate him until he disappeared, and there was no necessity for me bringing him back as long as he had the subpœna.

Didn't Avoid Subpœna.

Q.—But he didn't have the subpœna when he first turned up in Mexico City? A.—Well, he didn't avoid it, and he was there on his own name. Did it ever occur to you, your excellency, that I wasn't asked to get him? And the other is just equally true; if I had communicated with him, if I told you now that I telephoned to him, the same inference could be drawn that I told him to disappear, so that then his disappearance was without any connivance of mine, without any communication of mine, without any suggestion of mine.

Q.—So you let it ride? A.—Well, now, your excellency may characterize it as you will, but there were the forces of law behind it, and there was my desire to have him, and I would so much rather he were here today; then I wouldn't have to spend so much time on inferences or innuendo.

GOV. ROOSEVELT—I wish he were here, too.

Attorney Curtin notified the governor that he wished to call perhaps a dozen witnesses on the mayor's behalf and sought to obtain blank subpœnas for them. The governor adhered to his original decision on the matter and instructed Mr. Curtin to submit the names of the witnesses he wanted called. The lawyer said he would do so tomorrow.

Throughout the morning session the subject of the "unnamed person" kept cropping up, until finally Mayor Walker himself created the sensation he did by designating the "person" as feminine.

Gov. Roosevelt kept backing away from introduction of the person's name, although the mayor had no objection to giving it, and Mr. Seabury had definitely attempted on two occasions to put the name in evidence.

At the opening of the hearing Mr. Seabury rose and formally offered in evidence the stub showing a payment of $7,500 made to the person upon the direction of the mayor from a brokerage account opened for the mayor by the publisher, Paul Block.

If the stub were received in evidence, it would become a public record and the name would have been divulged at that time. But the governor shied away from it.

"Judge Seabury," replied Gov. Roosevelt, "I think for the time being, if you would let me defer decision on the offering in evidence, perhaps we will be able to arrive at it some other way."

Then, at the windup of the morning session after the mayor had been quizzed at length on his dealings with Russell Sherwood, his missing financial agent, the governor rather gingerly went back to the unknown person.

Quizzed on Block Account.

Gov. Roosevelt referred again to the Block account, and the payment made from it to the unnamed person, and then he put questions to the mayor as follows:

Q.—Come up here. [Mayor Walker walked up to the governor's desk, within a few feet of him]. May I ask you if you received a check payable to the payee? A.—I did not. The check was sent directly to the person named.

Q.—By the broker? A.—By the broker.

Q.—The reason I ask you is that Mr. Block testified that he gave the check to you at the Ritz-Carlton hotel. A.—Now, then, it was always my impression that the check was sent directly, but whether it went in the mail or whether it went through my hand to the person, it got to the person, was intended for the person, it was received by the person as sure as your soul, and arrangements made before that. Now if you want to inquire into that arrangement—

Offer Is Ignored.

But the governor evidently did not want to go "into that arrangement," and the mayor's offer to do so went ignored as the governor went on with questions about the $7,500 check. He noted it was not dated, but finally it was shown that it should have been dated March 1, 1929.

Then Mr. Seabury again offered to have it admitted into evidence, but Gov. Roosevelt said:

"Not for the time being."

The governor went on to question the mayor about a letter of credit paid for by Russell Sherwood and issued to the same unnamed person. The original letter of credit was for $16,000 but subsequent overdrawals, also paid for by Sherwood, brought the total amount to $16,000.

GOV. ROOSEVELT—Do you know anything about that letter of credit? A.—I do not, sir.

Q.—Do you know anything about the subsequent increases? A.—I don't know the amounts, or anything about them.

MAYOR DISCLOSES SEX

These followed some discussion between counsel as to whether the payments by Sherwood were by check or cash, and then, from a clear sky, without any question put to him, the mayor loosed the bombshell disclosing for the first time in all these months that the unnamed person was a "she."

Said the mayor:

"I do know of my knowledge that Mr. Sherwood made income tax reports for this person that has been referred to as the unnamed person, and that an investigation of her affairs will indicate that she had several bank accounts in the city of New York containing large sums of money."

Gov. Roosevelt earlier in the morning session had roused the defense to vehement expostulations when he asked that the mayor go over all the records of Sherwood's various accounts in banks and brokerage houses, and pick out those items which are in any way connected with Walker's affairs.

The mayor had already testified that he kept no records of his dealings with Sherwood, and he and his attorney, Mr. Curtin, protested that they should not be compelled to shoulder the burden of proving how many transactions the mayor had with Sherwood.

Gov. Roosevelt explained that all the records were in evidence, and that he would give the mayor twenty-four or forty-eight hours to go over them, but this seemed to dismay the mayor with equal severity, and, pending a further decision by the governor, the matter was left in abeyance.

The discussion of Sherwood's account had gotten into quite a maze, and the governor proposed a means of simplifying it all.

Wants Accounts Inspected.

GOV. ROOSEVELT—Mayor, in order to check up this whole thing, I am going to ask you, through counsel, if in the course of the next twenty-four hours you will go through all of the Sherwood accounts and see if you can identify in all of them, each and every one of them, any item which originated from you. In other words, deposit items which corresponded to moneys that you gave to Sherwood, either by check or in cash. If you want a little more time I'll give it to you. I'll give you 24 hours. You'll have to sit up all night, perhaps, as I have been doing in this case.

MR. CURTIN—Why should we put to the expense and the time and effort of doing that very thing when presumably it has already been done by accountants paid by the state—and the burden is upon them, anyhow.

GOV. ROOSEVELT—The accounts are in evidence.

Mayor Walker asserted some of the accounts were not in evidence, but Mr. Seabury declared that the full record of all the accounts was available, and he produced them from the record.

Keeps Age a Secret Brushes Away Gray Hair

Now you can really look years younger. Simply brush away those unsightly streaks or patches of gray. It is so easy to do—and at home—with Brownatone. Over 20 years of success recommend this proved method. With an ordinary small brush you just tint your hair back to its natural shade—whether blonde, brown or black. Guaranteed harmless. Active coloring agent is purely vegetable. Does not coat the surface. Actually penetrates the hair. Defies detection. No tell-tale flat "dyed" look. Cannot affect waving of hair.

No need to guess or gamble. Get a bottle of Brownatone today—only 50c. Then cut a lock of hair from your head and apply a little of this famous tint. If Brownatone does not prove it will actually give your dull, streaked, gray or faded hair its natural color, youth and sheen—your money back.

MAYOR'S WIFE HOME FROM ALBANY TRIAL FOR PERIOD OF REST

New York, Aug. 16.—[Special.]—Mrs. Jeanette Allen Walker, wife of Mayor Walker, arrived from Albany at 8 o'clock tonight and was whisked away in the mayor's limousine to the Walker family home at 9 St. Luke's place. She will stay there and rest for the next two weeks. It had been decided that rest at home would benefit her as much as would a stay in a hospital.

Mrs. Walker had left Albany earlier in the afternoon, her ill health following a recent operation having prevented her from attending, except for a short time, the hearings that will determine whether her husband is to be removed from office.

She was accompanied on the trip by Dr. William Schroeder Jr., chairman of the sanitary commission and personal physician to both the mayor and Mrs. Walker, and also by Mrs. Edward L. Stanton, wife of the mayor's former secretary, and A. C. Blumenthal, a friend of Mr. Walker.

FAILS TO KEEP BOOKS

The governor followed up his suggestion that the mayor pick out of the Sherwood records all items originating with him.

GOV. ROOSEVELT — Mayor, to check up once more on that last question, have you got any record of the amount of cash that you gave to Sherwood? A.—No, I never kept any record. I haven't kept any books of any kind, haven't all my life, in fact, but surely not since the first of January, 1926 [when the mayor took office]. I haven't even had my own check book since that time.

Q.—Mayor, did you keep any record of the money that you kept in your safe [at the mayor's home], the cash that was derived from the Block accounts? A.—No, I did not.

Q.—How long did it last you? A.—I have still got some, but not much, very little.

Payments Made to Sister.

The mayor was questioned at some length about payments made by Sherwood to the mayor's sister, Mrs. Nan Walker Burke. He testified that he had given Sherwood cash regularly, which he was to use to send monthly payments to Mrs. Burke, a widow.

The records were brought into question by Gov. Roosevelt, who wanted to know whether Sherwood's accounts showed any deposits of cash, which might have been received from the mayor, and which would show an offset for the amounts sent to Mrs. Burke by Sherwood.

It appeared at length that in the beginning of this matter the Sherwood accounts showed deposits which rather irregularly corresponded with the payments he made to Mrs. Burke. But beginning with August, 1929, and lasting until January of 1930, when the payments ceased, there were no deposits in Sherwood's accounts which could be directly associated with the sums given to the mayor's sister.

W. C. T. U. FORGETS POLITICS ONE DAY FOR RECREATION

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Leaders of the Woman's Christian Temperance union convention here today postponed consideration until Wednesday of political strategy for the coming campaign in favor of an afternoon of recreation.

Mrs. Ella A. Boole, national president, and other officers have said since the delivery of Herbert Hoover's address accepting the Republican nomination for President that the W. C. T. U. probably would not indorse any candidate for President, but concentrate upon election of dry senators and representatives.

A drop of almost one-half from 1912 to 1928 in deaths from liver cirrhosis in the United States was reported by Dr. P. S. Bourdeau-Sisco of Baltimore, director of the organization's health department. "Cirrhosis of the liver is considered a food gauge of the use of alcohol," she said.

GARNER VISITS SMITH; "HOPES" FOR HIS SUPPORT

1928 Candidate Refuses to Say What He Told Him

New York, Aug. 16.—[Special.]—John M. Garner, Democratic nominee for the vice presidency, and Alfred E. Smith, the party's 1928 nominee for President, talked privately for half an hour this afternoon in Mr. Smith's office here.

On emerging Mr. Garner said that he hoped Mr. Smith would support the national ticket. It was the swing of Garner pledged votes that assured the nomination of Gov. Roosevelt for President, wrecking Mr. Smith's last hope of heading the ticket himself. Since then Mr. Smith has been cool. "In support of the Democratic ticket," Mr. Garner said, "I think that former Gov. Smith would be worth as much as any one man. No, change that to worth more than any one man."

"Will he support the ticket?" he was asked.

"I have hopes," said the speaker of the house, now seeking to become presiding officer of the senate, "but let Gov. Smith speak for himself."

Smith Declines to Say.

Mr. Smith spoke for himself as follows:

"About everything that took place between Mr. Garner and myself, I have not a single word to say."

"Will you speak in support of the ticket?" came the question.

"That is the first question in another form," countered Mr. Smith. "I have not a single word to say."

Recently one of Gov. Roosevelt's strategists said that one speech by Mr. Smith would be worth a million votes.

Mr. Garner expressed the hope at lunch time today that he would get to see Mr. Smith while he was on this visit to New York. Early in the afternoon he went to the Empire State building and was admitted at once to the former governor's office.

Garner's Explanation.

"I came to see Gov. Smith because he is a great American, one of the outstanding citizens of New York, and I didn't see how any leading Democrat could come to this city without paying his respects to him," was the first thing Mr. Garner said after his thirty minutes in the inner office were through. "He is not only one of the outstanding citizens of this country, but one of the outstanding Democrats of this state."

"Did you talk about the campaign?" asked a reporter, coming down to cases, and then the speaker expressed his hope that Mr. Smith would help and put the final word up to the 1928 nominee.

At the recent Democratic convention in Chicago the former governor is reported to have sought to telephone Garner at his Washington home in a last stand effort to prevent the swing of votes which subsequently swept the Roosevelt forces to victory, and that on that particular night, with the breaks going hard against him, Mr. Smith could not make his connection. It was rumored pretty strongly that Mr. Garner purposely was not in on that particular night to Mr. Smith.

GOV. ROOSEVELT MEETS ILLINOIS LEADERS TODAY

A quartet of Illinois Democratic leaders are scheduled to confer late today with Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, presidential nominee, about the national campaign in this state.

Thomas F. Donovan, chairman of the state central committee, and Bruce A. Campbell, state campaign manager, are already in the east. They will be joined there today by Patrick A. Nash, chairman of the Cook county committee, and Judge Harry M. Fisher. Their Albany appointment is at 5 o'clock this afternoon.

C. V. Whitney Candidate for Congress Seat

New York, Aug. 16.—[Special.]—Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney of Old Westbury, L. I., will be the Democratic candidate for congress to oppose Congressman Robert L. Bacon in the First congressional district comprising the counties of Nassau, Suffolk and part of Queens.

The announcement that Mr. Whitney had accepted the designation was made in Mineola today by Philip N. Krug, Democratic leader in Nassau county. Mr. Krug, John Theofel, Democratic leader in Queens, and Almon Rasquin, Democratic leader in Suffolk, had acted as a committee to select the congressional candidate.

Mr. Krug said that he had received Mr. Whitney's acceptance by long distance telephone from the Whitney summer camp in northern New York last night.

Mr. Whitney is the son of the late Harry Payne Whitney. He and Congressman Bacon are personal friends and move in the same social set.

Mr. Whitney has heretofore been largely occupied with his racing stable, which is one of the most famous in the country and during the seasons of 1929, 1930, and 1931 has been the greatest money winner in the history of the American turf. In those years the stable, which was founded in the '80s by Mr. Whitney's grandfather, William C. Whitney, at one time secretary of the navy, won a total of $1,171,577. Top Flight and Equipoise are two of Mr. Whitney's winning thoroughbreds.

Cornelius V. Whitney inherited the stable directly from his father, Harry Payne Whitney, who owned some two hundred horses valued at around two million dollars when he died.

W. J. Donovan in G. O. P. Race for N. Y. Governor

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 16.—[Special.]—Col. William J. Donovan, former assistant attorney general of the United States and war time commander of the 165th infantry, the old "Fighting Sixty-ninth," made formal announcement here today that he would be a candidate for the gubernatorial nomination at the Republican state convention to be held late next month.

DOCTOR ADMITS PLOT TO MURDER JAPANESE CHIEFS

Says He Paid Aids $250 for Their Part in Scheme

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Aug. 16.—Dr. Yoshio Imamaki confessed tonight to a plot with three other men to assassinate Admiral Viscount Makoto Saito, Japanese premier, and other cabinet members during the special session of the diet which convenes on Aug. 23.

Imamaki admitted that he had paid his aids $250 for their part in the scheme. In a letter to friend he wrote: "It is more important to feel the pulse of the nation than the pulse of patients during the present crisis. You can expect something of tremendous importance from me soon.

Dr. Imamaki, who was connected with a Tokio hospital, was arrested yesterday with two of his fellow plotters. The latter declared that the physician was the ringleader.

The Manchoukuo government today protested to the soviet consul at Harbin, charging that the red army forces which have been concentrated on the northern frontier of Manchuria since the outbreak of hostilities with China have crossed the border near Manchuli, constructed barracks and started activities amounting to military operations. The protest demands that the forces be withdrawn and the barracks removed.

It is felt here that serious diplomatic complications are likely to follow unless the soviets immediately comply.

Currency Plunges Downward.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

TOKIO, Aug. 16.—Fresh falls of the yen exchange, carrying it below 50 per cent of parity, the lowest level in its history, are intensifying anxiety concerning the future of Japan's currency.

The special session of the diet, which meets next week, will sanction the supplementary budget of about $41,443,000, bringing the total budget for the year up to $488,000,000. The deficit is estimated as likely to be $195,520,000.

Political uncertainties are blamed for the yen's fall rather than the trade situation, which is relatively favorable. The immediate cause is held to be the heavy buying of cotton by manufacturers, who expect further weakness and are taking flight from the uncertainties of currency into actual commodity values.

Expect Further Drop.

In the long run this must be profitable, since cotton exports are expanding and possession of large stocks of raw material bought at low prices is a tangible asset.

Concurrently, exporters are refraining from discounting bills in order to profit by the falling exchange. The present tendancy is to expect further weakness, with contiuation of rising cotton prices reflected in fresh buying and consequent added falls of exchange.

Yet, Japan's trade position is showing improvement. The excess of exports for July was $10,264,800, as compared with about $2,000,000 for July, 1931. Rayon exports are booming, the figures for seven months showing an expansion of 30 per cent over those for 1931.

League Envoys to Indict Japan.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Aug. 16.—Although the forthcoming report on the conflict between Japan and China by the Lytton commission of inquiry of the league of nations is officially still kept in the dark, the British government now has no doubt whatever that it will constitute a severe indictment of the Japanese policy in Manchuria.

Information reaching the government today left no question as to the nature of the document and of the embarrassment it is bound to cause Britain in coming months. The British frankly do not want to see the Manchurian storm blow up again and they make no attempt to hide their anxiety over the decisions they soon will be forced to make.

Official quarters consider the Lytton report a grave inconvenience, to put it mildly, in view of the almost traditional British policy of avoiding antagonizing Japan over Manchuria. That the earl of Lytton, chairman of the commission, is British, is regarded as unfortunate and there is real fear in official circles that Japan will identify his report with the views of the British government to the detriment of Anglo-Japanese relations.

Invalid a Success in Business

Agathe Zimmer, an invalid, shown in her home at 647 Barry avenue, where she conducts a successful business of selling magazine subscriptions despite her physical handicap.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

BUSINESS LOOKS GOOD TO INVALID WHO'S A SUCCESS

Agathe Zimmer Speaks from Wheel Chair.

In her wheel chair, from which she has directed a paying business for the last ten years, Agathe Zimmer, 647 Barry avenue, expressed confidence yesterday that "the worst of the depression is over."

"Despite the so-called depression I've made money," declared Miss Zimmer, an invalid since she was 9 years old. "I'm not going to let the depression stop me from thinking I can get business. If any one can get business," she added with determination, "I can. If I lose a customer I go out and get a new one."

Begins with 25 Orders.

A decade ago, when her family met financial reverses, Miss Zimmer decided she would become independent. Starting with 25 orders, she built up a magazine subscription business that has 2,000 customers living in nearly every state and many foreign countries. She does not visit personally any prospective customer, but uses the telephone in her home, hour after hour.

"In my own mind I wanted to be worth while," Miss Zimmer said as she recalled her early struggle. "I wanted, above all, to make my own living, even with my handicap. 'There is work in the world for every one who wants to work,' I told myself, but what could I do? I had had infantile paralysis and spinal meningitis at 9. Then there was an operation and later I fell from my wheel chair and it was two years before I could sit in it again.

Many Are Society Women.

"While reading an advertisement I decided on the business I'm in. Many of my customers are society women living on the gold coast. I get other customers through magazine gifts. For instance, one of my customers may be traveling in Europe. She makes a gift through me. The recipient keeps on taking the magazine. It may be in foreign languages—Italian, French, Spanish, German. My magazines and newspapers go everywhere."

Miss Zimmer gave a pointer on how to be successful.

"Personality in the voice over the telephone is one of the chief requisites. The telephone voice and the speaking voice differ. You can't see the face and you have to be more careful. The sound of the voice must tell you the kind of a person you are soliciting. Otherwise you might recommend a motion picture magazine to an Atlantic monthly or Harper's client."

Miss Zimmer wheeled herself to the dining room, and into a small elevator which carried her to the second floor, where with some pride she exhibited her office. There was a mahogany file cabinet filled with customers' cards, and a mahogany desk with a telephone close at hand.

"I am proud of my work and of the fact that I made a success of it alone, without influence, without any one to help," Miss Zimmer added. "It is my ambition to be a really big agent. And there is further satisfaction in being able to give my mother who is nearly 85, every comfort."

Miss Zimmer's mother, Mrs. Felix Zimmer, is one of the few living pioneers of Chicago, having resided here for 80 years. She came here from Germany when five years old.

PRESIDENT HOOVER CATCHES 15 TROUT IN CHESAPEAKE BAY

Crisfield, Md., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Making a full day of it around some of Chesapeake bay's best known fishing grounds, President Hoover today hauled in fifteen trout, one of them a three footer.

With the chief executive as he battled with the finny tribe from the deck of the commerce department inspection boat Sequoia and again from a small speedboat was John Crockett, tall, grizzled fisherman of Tangier island.

The President was up long before breakfast for his first indulgence in his favorite recreation. His guests were still asleep, but three of them—Secretary Hurley, Clarence M. Woolley, president of the American Radiator company, and Will Irwin, the author and Mr. Hoover's college mate—later went on a tour of quaint Tangier with Crocket as their guide.

Afterwards Secretary Hurley joined the President in some fishing. The entire party snagged about 40 fish during the day.

The Sequoia headed for an unannounced destination tonight, although it was understood the President planned to be back in Washington tomorrow.

CHARITIES HEAD TO WASHINGTON FOR MORE HELP

Reynolds to Elaborate on State Aid Needs.

Wilfred S. Reynolds, secretary of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, left Chicago for Washington yesterday afternoon to appear before the board of directors of the Reconstruction Finance corporation this morning to answer questions concerning the relief needs of the state. Mr. Reynolds was requested to go to Washington by the board to elaborate upon a report of conditions submitted to the board by the state commission on Monday.

Mr. Reynolds was accompanied when he left for Washington by Corporation Counsel William H. Sexton, a member of the state relief commission, who decided at the last minute to assist Mr. Reynolds in presenting Illinois' plea to the board.

The federal agency is expected to pass upon an additional allotment to Illinois tomorrow, as the $3,000,000 allotted last month will not last longer than the end of this week, Edward L. Ryerson, Jr., chairman of the relief commission, said yesterday. The original allotment was an emergency action intended to care for Illinois relief needs until they could be more thoroughly investigated, and was made following the application of Gov. Emmerson for $10,000,000 for the state.

Show Total Help Needed.

The report submitted on Monday stated that a total of $26,279,475 of federal funds will be required to maintain relief work at its existing standards in distressed areas of the state during the last five months of this year, which includes August. The figure includes the $3,000,000 already advanced. The board of the Reconstruction Finance corporation particularly wanted to learn from Mr. Reynolds the condition of areas that have not so far required relief funds.

Joseph L. Moss, director of the Cook county bureau of public welfare, said yesterday in response to inquiries that the policy of the bureau has been changed since last March to allow relief aid to be given to heads of families that own their own homes.

How Relief Is Given.

"We give relief to persons who own their own homes only after they have satisfied us that they have secured as much money as they can through mortgages and other loans against their property," Mr. Moss said. "In the majority of cases the home owner has only an equity of doubtful value, upon which he can realize nothing."

About ten per cent of the more than 100,000 families receiving relief are home owners, Mr. Moss estimated.

BRITAIN PLANS TAX ON TRUCKS TO AID RAILROADS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 16.—Drastic new taxes and prohibition of unsuitable road traffic was recommended by the joint conference on rail and motor transportation appointed by P. J. Pybus, minister of transport, in an attempt to settle the British rail versus motor war.

The report issued tonight proposed that the entire cost of maintaining highways shall in the future be laid on the users of mechanically propelled vehicles. Of an estimated total annual expenditure on roads of $300,000,000, the conference suggests that $117,500,000 shall be provided by heavy commercial vehicles and the balance by taxes on cars, motorcycles, coaches and motor buses.

Heavily increased duties on vehicles of more than five tons are proposed. In the case of a ten ton motor vehicle, now paying $300 tax, the proposed new tax jumps to $1,410.

BOY LOSES LIFE IN WELL TRYING TO SAVE FATHER

A verdict of accidental death by black damp was returned yesterday at the inquest held in Crete over the body of Michael Hart Jr., 14 years old, who was asphyxiated Monday when he went to the rescue of his father at the bottom of a 35 foot well shaft four miles west of Crete.

The boy's father was overcome while working in the well and Michael went to his rescue. Neither was able to leave the well and a nearby workman, seeing their plight, sent to Crete for an inhalator squad. George Goodenow, a fireman, was also overcome in attempting to effect the rescue. Other firemen using gas masks removed the three from the well and revived the elder Hart and Goodenow. Young Hart was dead when taken from the well shaft.

WRITER DROPS DEAD.

Mishawaka, Ind., Aug. 16.—[Special.]—Frederick Kronewitter, 41, writer of poetry and prose, dropped dead here today.

PROVIDE STEADY JOBS FOR 25 IN WILMETTE DRIVE

Steady employment has been found for twenty men and five women in Wilmette's "man a block" campaign, it was announced last night by Charles W. Lerch, 1715 Highland avenue, Wilmette, the chairman of the movement.

"Our plan is to procure 1,000 hours of work a week for our unemployed," said Mr. Lerch. "Thus far 423 homes have pledged one hour's work a week. The plan is 35 per cent effective so far."

Wilmette has been divided into 57 sections, in each of which 20 home owners are sought for pledges. They are expected to pay 50 cents for an hour's work. More than 60 men have been given part time work on that basis, exclusive of the twenty-five men and women steadily employed. Most of the home owners who are providing work are people of moderate means, Mr. Lerch said.

"Trust our fine fabrics to cheapened soap flakes? ...NEVER!"

Let's interview these women who have learned the secret of running beautifully appointed homes, of maintaining lovely wardrobes . . at minimum expense.

Do they risk using cheap lye-laden soap flakes . . that so often fade and ruin garments? Or do they stay with safe American Family, so pure it protects the life and beauty of everything it touches?

"I've always used American Family," says Mrs. Leonard S. Florsheim. "It never leaves a soap film. White things iron smoother. Colors stay just like new. And I have the comfort of knowing that my finest pieces are as safe as in the drawer unused."

"In our kitchen we use American Family for all our dishwashing and cleaning," adds Mrs. G. A. Hendricks. "It's so quick and so safe—especially for my gold-encrusted china. And it makes my crystal goblets simply sparkle."

"I couldn't get along without plenty of this pure soap," declares Mrs. George A. Carhart. "Look at my floors (smooth and polished as mother-of-pearl) . . and these stair steps (of richly colored oak). They're twenty-one years old and have never been cleaned with anything but American Family."

Why is American Family so much faster . . so much safer? The reason is very clear. Years ago, Kirk's American Family was created especially for the hard water of this Great Lakes region. It dissolves more quickly—makes a double-suds so pure that even the most alluring colors, the most fragile fabrics come through washing after washing fresh as new.

To save a penny or two is often good economy . . but never when it means that you must risk your hands and precious clothes in a suds that may be fraught with ruin! How much wiser to effect your saving in the longer life, the continued beauty of your treasured washables! For after all, it is cheaper . . far, far cheaper . . to buy good soap than to buy new clothes!

THE FARMER, NOT THE RICH, IS KING IN NEW ZEALAND

Conservative Hand Rules; Reds in Minority.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NEW PLYMOUTH, N. Z., July 24.—[By Mail to Avoid Censor.]—In this quiet end of evening, where the country road comes out from miles and miles of solitary pastures and winds along the smooth green Tasman sea under the still white beauty of Mount Egmont, one may almost capture the spirit of the New Zealand passion for rural life.

It came first, of course, from the love of English hedgerows and lonely moors. It is reproduced here in the untamed rows of yellow furze that borders all these country roads in little lanes leading to "Jerseyvale" or "Greenmeadows," but it departs from old world village poverty in a marked inclination for roominess and spacious views. It may take a whole hillside and a grove of pines, looking out upon sea and mountain, to satisfy one small family. They are prideful homes, too, inclined to bright paint on the roofs and a touch of gayness in the windows.

Land of Bitter History.

This land has had a bitter history. Over its precious acres have swept the Maori wars, another story of the whites and Indians in America. The old trenches are yet to be seen where pioneers and blacks died under the advancing war of this civilization.

Now, instead of a wandering tribal civilization, with men and women who drew strange dark designs on their faces and had a wooden god, we have this around us. It is England and Scotland transplanted and widened out to new horizons of individual welfare. Every child is cared for and must go to school. Everybody reads. The latest books are in the country bookshop. The newspapers, still of English style, with want ads on the first page and sports and women's features before the news, are of excellent standard.

No Class Imposition.

There is a higher social group, basking in vice regal atmosphere, but it is no class imposition on the countryside, as in old England. The people that follow the hounds and make annual trips to London are not the rulers of this land. This rugged farmer, driving a gig or herding his cattle to market, is the king of his world. The city laborer may look with longing eyes toward Russia and think that this new country has cheated him of his rights, but he remains distinctly in the minority, on the opposition benches, in this parliament of man.

The farmer of New Zealand has used the state to his advantage, as he supposed. He has been against great monied monopolies coming into his country and has, therefore, consented to the state entering the field of railroad, electric power, tramways, and other common services. It is considered just as natural for the state to do this as for it to run the postoffice or the water supply.

Beyond this he has not intended to go in state socialism. He remains an individualist of the New England type, where his heritage rests. He has watched the progress of the labor movement with some uneasiness, and now, when his very livelihood and land are threatened, he has stepped in and demanded lower wages.

The awards of the days of prosperity have been broken. His shearers will have to take a forty per cent cut because the people of London cannot afford so many lamb chops or new woolen clothing. His nearest natural market, Asia, has been closed to him by British politics and he is tied to the tail of London economically. He is laboring under high land costs and nearly every home and farm is mortgaged. The government bureaucracy which he has built and the social legislation to which he has consented is drying up the taxation sources.

The farmer bears the burden stoically. He is reminded that the pioneer who cut down these forests, sowed seed from England for their sheep between the stumps, made roads around mountains and fought the natives every foot of the way, had a much harder time.

Adverse Effect on Character.

One of the questions which men of education are asking today as they look at the boys who have grown under the state spoon feeding system, is whether this spirit of initiative has been killed. The public service is admittedly high grade, with a minimum of graft, but it has taken away many opportunities for individual initiative and development, and its character result is still to be found. Its effect on art and literature has been mediocre and political thought was probably higher in the early days than now.

What has been produced here is a remarkably balanced decentralized democracy, with the deep shadings of wealth and poverty absent. There are few great estates and wealthy families, but many that have been comfortably off until the last year or two, when the crash of the over seas market revealed the weakness of the system under which they were living. The secondary enterprises depend upon the welfare of the primary producers, and the state, it has been found, cannot control this to order or cut the cloth of wages by political fiat.

Built on New Order.

There are areas of unused land, but wherever the valleys appear, wherever the hills will support sheep and cattle, little communities have grown and the roadside is dotted with farm homes, not too far apart, each one neat and built with an eye for beauty of outlook.

The distinctive trees are the pines, as in the Vermont hills. The gray green elusive charm of the Australian bush is not here. The delicate wild grasses of the desert give way to the ordered green of the sheep pasture. The rough Australian countryside with its casual slapped up houses in remote valleys is changed here to a definite rural life of permanency and purpose. Not the casual occupancy of the sheep camp, but the home for generations.

New Zealand has taken a new way. Its cities are relatively unimportant. Its wealth and political power lie in these small town areas. The towns are many and well built. There are wide paved streets, good public buildings, many little shops and a few public hotels of the excellence of the cities.

New Plymouth, for instance, is the center of a butter and cheese factory district. There are 350 of these little factories, controlled by the farmers. In Hamilton, another good sized town, the Cooperative Dairy has a three story building and the turnover last year was six and a half million pounds. This is said to be one of the really successful cooperatives in the world.

Palmerstown, Wanganui, Napier, Hastings, towns of 15,000 or 20,000, are among those that dot the island. The seacoast has no monopoly on the population of New Zealand, as in Australia. This is not the edge of an empty platter, but a well filled plate.

Get Perverted View of U. S.

The traditions and politics and manners of England are reproduced here, and there is no anti-British sentiment apparent, as in New South Wales or other parts of the northern continent. The attitude toward America is exactly that of England. British propaganda is taken here without much question.

The chief interest in America is in the movies, the gangster stories, and wondering whether America "will commit suicide" much longer by continuing to demand the payment of war debts in gold. There is some quiet satisfaction expressed regarding American economic troubles, a sort of I told you so attitude. Little American news is printed here and such as does come over the cables is touched with the note of British comment and patronizing attitude.

The national political conventions in Chicago were wild, hysterical, animal-like affairs, according to the British report. The organ at the Stadium was an instrument of human torture, not music. The delegates were ruled by noise rather than reason. The outlook of the conventions was parochial, with little regard for the world policies in which England is interested.

New Zealanders recall, however, that when the American fleet visited these waters the sailors were immensely popular with the people, but when the English fleet came they failed to touch the same spark of friendliness. So perhaps the British political writers are wrong after all.

FARMER STRIKE CUTS TRUCKS TO SIOUX CITY FROM 600 TO UNDER 10

Sioux City, Ia., Aug. 16.—[Special.]—Fewer than 10 trucks carrying farm produce or live stock, in comparison with a normal 600, were permitted to enter this city today by more than 1,000 farmers picketing the highway. The selling strike of the farmers was also reported to have had some effect at Des Moines.

One hundred deputy sheriffs of Woodbury county were patrolling the roads today to escort any trucks carrying farm produce which might attempt to enter the city. They were armed and had instructions to keep the highways open, but few farmers apparently dared an attempt to run the blockade.

Milk distributors were bringing in sufficient supplies from other cities by train, they reported. The city dwellers were forced to rely on their home gardens for vegetables. For the first time in several years, large shipments of hogs were received by rail, growers not attempting to ship by truck.

The executive committee of the Farmers' Holiday association met at Des Moines and decided to extend the strike movement beyond the borders of the six states represented in the association. Officials said they had telegrams of sympathy from farmers' groups in Montana, Ohio, Indiana, Colorado, Kansas, and Oklahoma.

Packing plants in Keokuk and Mason City reported "very little effect" of the movement.

South Dakota Avoids Strike.

Yankton, S. D., Aug. 16.—[Special.]—E. H. Sauber, secretary of the South Dakota Farmers' union, said today that no plans had been made to call a strike of farmers in this state and that any action taken by Iowa farmers would not be indorsed "at least at present."

REV. HUFF OPENS NEW ATTACK ON BOARD OF TRADE

Tells His Members Grain Pit Isn't Needed.

The Rev. Clarence E. Huff, president of the Farmers' National Grain corporation, in a speech at the corporation's annual meeting at the Morrison hotel yesterday, predicted that the closing of the Chicago Board of Trade, if ultimately resorted to, would not be detrimental to the public interest.

The board was ordered suspended for sixty days by the special federal commission of three cabinet officers for its refusal to admit the grain corporation to its clearing house operations. This order is now being fought in the federal courts.

A Fool's Task.

Mr. Huff asserted that those who seek to alienate farmers from the cooperative marketing program as represented in the farm board's efforts, undertake a fool's task. The attitude of defiance of the Board of Trade, he added, probably marks the final stand of private tradesmen against cooperatives. In predicting that closing of the trade board, if it is closed, would work no hardship, Mr. Huff said:

"Other commodities find their way to markets in a manner at least as satisfactory as does grain, and very largely without such operations as are carried on by the Board of Trade. It may easily be that we shall find substantially better ways of price determination than those provided by the Board of Trade."

These remarks and others which were made by the grain corporation chief were carried to Peter B. Carey, president of the board of Trade, and leader in the fight against the suspension order.

"Why All the Commotion?"

"If what Mr. Huff says is true, and if the machinery that organized exchanges have developed for marketing of grain is unimportant, why has he run to Washington and attempted to move heaven and earth in an unsuccessful effort to obtain for his organization what he describes as full rights on the Board of Trade?" retorted Mr. Carey. "It seems a bit inconsistent to urge on the one hand that the Farmers' National is the one and only method for grain distribution and then on the other hand to ask unusual favors from the Board of Trade as a marketing agency. What the Farmers' National has demanded can be given to no other corporation under our rules."

In his speech Mr. Huff criticized the Board of Trade as an organization intended largely for private profit at the expense of the farmer. Later Walter I. Bean, vice president and treasurer of the National Farmers' Grain corporation, announced that the organization had earned more than $1,000,000 net and funded a $16,000,000 debt to the federal farm board.

Defends High Salaries.

Mr. Huff, who is a minister and who receives a salary of more than $1,000 a month as head of the Farmers' national, mentioned that the salaries of the officials of the corporation have received public attention. He defended those salaries by declaring that in exchange the "grain growers of America are receiving devoted and intelligent service."

At yesterday's annual meeting James C. Stone, chairman of the federal farm board, was a principal speaker. He urged a new pledge to the grain corporation members to support the farm board. He mentioned that at the closing session of congress efforts were made to repeal the agricultural marketing act and to abolish the farm board. Repeal of the act, Mr. Stone declared, would set agriculture back 20 years. He challenged the statements that the farm board is broke, citing that in three years it has turned back 35 per cent of its appropriations.

Elect Directors.

The stockholders met in executive session late yesterday and elected three new directors. They were Carl J. Martin of Lansing, Mich., who succeeds L. J. Taber; A. R. Shumway of Milton, Ore., who succeeds F. J. Wilmer; William A. Shulberg of Preston, Idaho, who succeeds Jess W. Wade.

The new directorate then reelected the present officers. They are: C. E. Huff, president; William H. Settle, vice president, and Charles B. Steward, secretary. The officials and directors will meet again today to determine future policies of the corporation.

Evanston Turns On First Unit of Lighting System

Mayor Charles H. Bartlett turned on the first unit of Evanston's new $1,240,000 ornamental lighting system last night. Citizens participated in a motor parade which followed. The area lighted last night covers thirty-three city blocks in the south end of the suburb. The entire system, to be completed in three months, covers seven and one-half square miles.

Eight Days of Varied Travel..Chicago to the Saguenay River in Old French Canada..Return

ALL EXPENSES $154.25 PERSONALLY ESCORTED

Sailings: June to September

CRUISE to the heart of Old French Canada. We take you by rail to Toronto, Queen City of Canada, where your foreign adventure begins. You set sail on a luxurious steamer, one of the world's largest fresh water fleet. You will visit en route the metropolis of Montreal and the fortress city of Quebec, Gibraltar of North America.

You will cruise among the Thousand Islands—set like a thousand jewels in azure blue waters—experience the thrills of shooting the great St. Lawrence Rapids. Near Quebec you will pay your respects at the miracle shrine of Ste. Anne de Beaupré and hear the thunder of Montmorency Falls, higher than Niagara.

Beyond Quebec the high Laurentians follow the St. Lawrence and you cruise in the shadow of these ancient mountains. The steamer puts in at fashionable Murray Bay, and quaint and lovely Tadoussac, Canada's oldest settlement. The glory of the Saguenay River, seen at sunset and again at dawn, is a spectacle to impress the most widely travelled. The wild grandeur of Trinity Bay, guarded by the tremendous capes, Trinity and Eternity—the ship's siren reverberating like giant laughter among the eternal hills—gives you a touch of the loneliness, austerity and beauty of the silent places.

A spirit of gaiety prevails for the entire journey, and there is not a dull moment on ship or shore. You dance to the music of a lively orchestra. Delicious meals satisfy ravenous appetites. You will vote this the best vacation ever.

Remember, every expense on this enjoyable cruise has been foreseen and included in the figure quoted above, as well as stop-overs at important hotels en route. A courteous escort relieves you of every travel worry.

JOKER IN INDIANA TAX SLASH BILL MAY BOOST LEVY

Permits Increases Should "Emergency Exist."

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The special tax relief session of the Indiana legislature, which adjourned at 2 o'clock yesterday morning, passed a law which limits all tax rates, state and local, to a maximum of $1.50 per $100 of assessed values, except where an "emergency exists." The average tax rate throughout the state for 1931 was $2.87. Therefore, the new law cuts taxes 47 per cent, except where an "emergency exists."

The "emergency" clause is the legal authority to boost the tax rate above $1.50, and it was predicted in Indianapolis yesterday that office holders and politicians will declare "emergencies" and boost the tax rates all over the state.

Creates County Board.

To adjust the rates in a county down to $1.50, the new law creates a board of the county auditor, three aldermen and three persons selected by the circuit judges. If five of these seven decide there is an "emergency," they may boost the rate above $1.50. Any ten taxpayers may protest a higher rate to the state tax commission, which after a hearing shall determine finally what the maximum rate shall be for any county.

It is consequently impossible to estimate what the tax savings will be, because the number and size of the "emergencies" cannot be forecast. For more than a month of the 40-day session the legislators have been advertising the $1.50 bill and law, and encouraged the impression to be spread that Indiana taxes would be reduced about 50 per cent.

Indiana's total assessed valuation for 1931 was five billion 73 million, on which its taxes totaled $145,647,092, which necessarily means an average tax rate of $2.87. If no "emergencies" are declared, the rate for 1933 will be $1.50, which would decrease the tax bill 47 per cent.

Decrease Assessed Valuation.

But the assessed valuation has been decreased to approximately four billions for 1933. Theoretically, that would mean another saving of about 20 per cent, but the office holders and politicians will probably increase the rates, which it is claimed they are permitted to do under the "emergency" clause, to offset that 20 per cent cut in valuations.

It was predicted in Indianapolis yesterday that the "emergency" clause will be eliminated at the regular session of the legislature next year, so that real estate and personal property will have a fixed maximum rate of $1.50. To offset the loss it is planned to create new taxes, such as income or sales taxes.

Apparently the only government in Indiana which cannot take advantage of the "emergency" clause is the state government. Its tax rate of 29 cents has been reduced specifically to 15 cents. Accordingly, it is predicted that the state will have a deficit of $5,000,000, partly offset by new sources of revenue.

LOMBARD HAS 2 COLLECTORS AND A VILLAGE ROW

Citizens of Lombard, Du Page county suburb, discovered yesterday that as the result of a row in the village board the preceding evening they now have two town collectors. A. C. Anderson, the old collector, has refused to surrender his office to Frank M. O'Meara, who was appointed his successor. The Lombard village collector was formerly paid on a fee basis. Last year the village board passed an ordinance replacing the fee system with a salary of $2,400 a year.

Anderson collected his salary but four of the trustees charged that he also withheld $1,500 of the fee collections. Part of this sum, it was charged, he loaned to R. G. Clarke, the village clerk, and to J. C. Weiner, village auditor. The alleged shortage, according to Trustees C. Galen Sedwick, P. H. Dempers, Richard Groote, and Leo E. Mayer, was disclosed by an audit of the village books. Weiner pronounced this audit in error and he was also dismissed by the four trustees, who form a majority of one in the village board. They demanded that Clarke, an elected official, resign.

Clarke refused, and Weiner and Anderson refuse to consider themselves fired, holding they were appointed for terms of one year, expiring Jan. 1, and cannot be ousted until then.

FLYER BOARDMAN CRASHES IN TEST OF SPEED PLANE

Injury May Be Fatal to Atlantic Hero.

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 16.—[Special.]—Russell N. Boardman, who made a non-stop flight from New York to Istanbul, Turkey, in the winter of 1931, with John Polando of Boston as his flying partner, was critically injured today when his plane crashed near the Springfield airport.

The plane fell about 800 feet, whirling and spinning and apparently entirely out of control, and landed in heavy, high underbrush. Physicians tonight gave Boardman a fifty-fifty chance to live.

The transatlantic flyer has been testing out his new speed plane, the Gee-Bee R-1, here in preparation for the Thompson trophy race in Cleveland the latter part of this month. He had just taken off this afternoon from the Springfield airport for an airfield where he has been trying out the racing plane, when the Gee-Bee junior sportster faltered and spun to the ground.

Apparently Engine Trouble.

Witnesses said that Boardman seemed to encounter engine trouble and that the plane dived apparently because of loss of power. William Heaton, federal aviation inspector, who was at the airport and saw the accident, however, said that the machine went into a low roll, then into a right spin and then into a left spin as it hit the ground. He would advance no theory as to the cause of the accident.

A cursory investigation of the wreckage disclosed that the controls were all right, it was said. Employes of the port found Boardman unconscious under the controls.

Severe Brain Concussion.

Physicians at Springfield hospital said that Boardman had a severe concussion of the brain, possible internal injuries, and severe body lacerations. No bones were broken, apparently.

The flier was conscious this evening, and it was said it would probably be twenty-four hours before they would know the extent of his injuries.

Boardman had a narrow escape late yesterday when his racing plane, in landing at high speed on the Bowles field, apparently struck a slight bump and just missed taking a ground loop. Unofficially the plane had been clocked at more than 300 miles an hour and there were high hopes that it would win the Thompson trophy.

Word of the accident was telegraphed to Mrs. Ruth Kendrick Boardman, his wife, in Mattapoisett, and to his brother, Earl Boardman, who had flown in the day from Springfield to New York.

Aviation Notes

An invitation to hold the 1933 convention of the National Aeronautics association in Chicago in connection with the World's Fair will be carried to Washington today by plane. The invitation is signed by Rufus C. Dawes, president of the Century of Progress, and will be presented to Senator Hiram Bingham, president of the association, by Mrs. Phil G. Kemp, wife of the governor of the organization for Illinois. The plane, a trimotor Stinson, will also carry Lieut. Col. Kemp, Dr. Benjamin Wyatt, the Rev. James Organisciak of Chicago, and Dement Schuler of Dixon and Fred W. Walter of Joliet.

The Graf Zeppelin plans to make five trips between Friedrichshafen, Germany, and Pernambuco, Brazil, this fall, carrying air mail. The first departure from Germany is scheduled for Aug. 29. A special cachet is being provided for each trip for philatelists.

The third dance of the season for aviation enthusiasts is to be held Saturday night at the Sky Harbor Flying club in Northbrook.

7,000 Farmers at Picnic Arranged by Farm Bureau

Monmouth, Ill., Aug. 16.—[Special.]—Seven thousand farmers of the fourteenth Illinois district gathered here today to attend the annual district farm bureau picnic at which Mrs. Henry J. Mies of Pontiac, president of the state federation of home bureaus, and Earl C. Smith, president of the Illinois Agricultural association, were the principal speakers.

GIRL, 16, JAILED FOR THREATS TO ROBBERY VICTIM

Mary Segretti, 16 years old, 808 South Winchester avenue, was sentenced to 60 days in the Bridewell yesterday by Municipal Judge Harold P. O'Connell on testimony that she had threatened the complaining witness in a robbery case against her brother, Henry, 19 years old, and Ralph Ciagni, 17, of 1011 Cypress street.

Leonard Bingston, 4615 Johnson avenue, Western Springs, who identified the youths as the robbers who took $25 from him in front of 422 South Seeley avenue, testified that Mary told him: "You've been reading in the papers about men being taken for a ride. The best thing for you to do is to stop prosecution."

The girl denied Bingston's charge and fainted when police led her to the bull pen. Segretti and Ciagni were held to the grand jury in bonds of $20,000 each. They were arrested in an alleged attempt to rob Frank Rozhon, 4932 Archer avenue, a milk wagon driver, on Aug. 12.

CHICAGO STAND ON SEAWAY HIT BY VANDENBERG

Monroe, Mich., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg said here tonight that "the St. Lawrence project cannot and in my opinion will not be permitted to break on the rock of Chicago's municipal selfishness."

Senator Vandenberg is a member of the sub-committee of the foreign relations committee appointed to conduct hearings on the St. Lawrence treaty preliminary to the December session of congress.

Characterizing the St. Lawrence project as the greatest public undertaking since the building of the Panama canal, and vastly more important in its economic potentialities he analyzed the possible "obstacles that lie in the pathway of its approval by the senate."

"Insane nationalism" was his characterization of opposition based on the argument that some sort of "synthetic" canal should be constructed in preference through United States soil.

In analyzing Chicago's opposition he said that its spokesmen base their opposition on the case of the Mississippi waterway "because they do not dare to defy the order of the United States Supreme court whose terms on diversion are written into the treaty."

"One must laugh," he said at the resentment of Chicago over permitting Canada to have a voice in such a treaty when he considers that the dominion has 4,000 miles of frontage on the lakes as contrasted to 63 for the state of Illinois."

Shelters 'Destitute' Pair; Home Looted; 3 Seized

Hyde Park police arrested Mr. and Mrs. Howard Jones and Miss Bonnie Granstaff, 30 years old, last night on charges of Roy Buchanan, 55, of 1046 East 43d street, a street car motorman, that they looted his home of personal articles valued at $200. He said that Miss Granstaff, who was his housekeeper, brought the Joneses to his home last week as a destitute couple and that he sheltered them. Several days later, he said, all three disappeared. They were trailed to a Drexel boulevard hotel.

NAVAL RESERVISTS' BOMBS HIT HOUSE, PERIL BEACH CROWD

New York, Aug. 16.—[Special.]—Naval reservists tossing smoke bombs from training planes at a marked target on Center Island today treated residents of Canarsie to some excitement.

A twenty-five pound smoke bomb, which police said came from the planes, crashed through the rear porch roof of an East Third street house where Philip Schwab resides with his family. No one was hurt, but firemen were called when the bomb set fire to the porch roof and slightly damaged it. The bomb made a fourteen inch hole in the roof and filled the house with smoke.

Another of the smoke missiles dropped into the water about fifty feet from a point on the Canarsie shore where excursionists were waiting for the Rockaway boat and sent them scattering. The bombs made no detonation, but sent up a column of smoke.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE VICIOUS CIRCLE OF TAX EXEMPTION.

Scrutator recently called attention to the fact that a man with a taxable income of $50,000 is as well off at the end of the year with a tax exempt bond yielding only 3¾ per cent as he would be if he owned an ordinary bond yielding 5.43 per cent. As incomes increase the disparity grows. A man with a million dollar income must invest his money in a security yielding more than 10 per cent to do as well by himself as he would if he bought a tax exempt bond yielding only 3¾ per cent.

Obviously, the higher the income tax rates are set the greater becomes the advantage of tax exemption. This fact operates in the first place to throw increasing sums into nontaxable bonds. Therefore, the government's revenue from the higher incomes is depleted. As more than two-thirds of the total collections from personal incomes is paid by those with incomes of more than $50,000, it is apparent that punitive taxation of wealth must serve chiefly to dry up the sources of taxation.

Precisely because income tax revenues fall off the government is obliged to issue more tax exempt securities to pay its bills. And to help balance the budget the government also raises the income tax rates, thereby driving more money into tax exempts. It would be difficult to find a neater example of the vicious circle.

Some people think the way to break this circle is to forbid the issuance of tax exempt securities, but if that plan were adopted the result might well be that the government would find difficulty in borrowing money. It is able to find lenders now partly because of the superior rating which government paper generally enjoys, but more especially because of the cash value to the investor of tax exemption.

The best way—and, indeed, the only way—to break the circle is to reduce government expenditure and thereby reduce income tax rates. As the advantage which tax exemption affords begins to disappear the evils of tax exemption will largely disappear. Money will again tend to flow into productive investments because it will pay to put money into private ventures.

MORE DEBT.

Last week directors of the R. F. C., the secretary of agriculture, and members of the farm board met with nearly a hundred live stock farmers and dealers to begin organization of the system of agricultural credit corporations provided by the new emergency relief act. Through this system stockmen and farmers are to be enabled to borrow more money. No doubt there are many cases in which borrowing is necessary, but the wise man will not borrow from the government if he can possibly avoid it. Past borrowing has not helped agriculture to meet the hard times. It has made them harder. The farmer's debts have not helped him, and more debt will not help him. Loans even from the federal government must be paid back and that payment taxes the borrower and depletes his profits, if and when he has any. The only alternative to paying is repudiation, which not only strikes at the foundation of the financial and economic system that supports civilized society, but is the ruination of individual character.

Very few of the borrowers from the federal government will not be losers in the long run. For the individual as well as the governments, national and local, the way out is not by more borrowing, more debt making, but by economy and thrift.

FEDERAL SUBSIDIES FOR TORTURE.

A reader has called attention to reports of barbarities to prisoners employed on road construction and repair in some of the southern states, notably Florida and Georgia. He thinks that where such conditions are tolerated the federal government ought to refuse its subsidies to state road programs.

Even those who believe the federal government is justified in subsidizing road building by the states can hardly quarrel with this opinion. A state which pays no wages to its road laborers ought to be getting its roads so cheaply that it has little need for subsidies.

Men whose only offense is poverty have frequently been railroaded into the chain gangs after only the form of a trial before a rural justice of the peace. Foul food, brutal and sometimes murderous discipline, and insanitary quarters have been exposed repeatedly until there can be little doubt of the facts. When the federal government pays a subsidy to a chain gang state it is sealing that kind of thing with its approval.

It is bad enough to take the money of Illinois and Wisconsin taxpayers to build roads in beggar states. The offense is compounded when the money is used to encourage the torturing of citizens.

THE REDEMPTION OF WILHELM II.

It appears from reports from London that Europe's Public Enemy No. 1 is about to be restored to fair character and high renown. The former kaiser is to be taken back into the Order of the Garter and his banner is to be returned to the chapel of St. George at Windsor. The crown prince also is to be restored. The rites of the order, its paraphernalia, trappings and symbolism seem gorgeous tomfooling these days. Most of the surviving royalties of Europe, solvent or insolvent, have banners as Knights of the Garter. One king, if not deposed, can get by on proper ceremonial occasions if too much is not asked of him, but cloth of gold meetings are a strain on the institution. Kings assembled cheapen the commodity. The archaism can't hold the breath of life.

Respectful journalism protects the scene when a king enters it and familiarity is kept at its distance, although occasionally such a democrat as Theodore Roosevelt, thrown by circumstances into the charmed circle, has spilled the beans as he did in the letter describing what happened at the funeral of Edward VII.

The Order of the Garter could be made a very dangerous thing for the crowned heads if it tempted them into a convocation of the knights. King Arthur, Richard the Lion Hearted, and Louis IX. would not be equal to it now. Kings should not only be seen alone, but they should be thought of alone. Greengrocers make just as good an assembly.

The redemption of Wilhelm II. through the Order of the Garter is one way, however, of writing off the war guilt. It's the best the even minded statesmanship of Great Britain can do short of the return of the German colonies, which, in the parlance of the day, is unthinkable. The former kaiser is restored to the countenance of the royal brotherhood, and certainly not as a contrite sinner. Kings are not supposed to meet necessity of repentance. They err not, neither do they sin. To concede otherwise would be to question the stability of the institution.

Furthermore, there is the more charitable opinion gaining ground that with causes so complicated as those of the war one man cannot embody all the evil intentions. Such scapegoating is too convenient an atonement.

THE CALIFORNIA GENIUS.

The attendance at the Olympic games in Los Angeles was largest on the opening and closing days. The opening day was devoted to speeches and a parade; the closing day's program included a few unimportant competitions and a lot of speeches and ceremonies.

The conclusion seems inescapable that the southern Californians really like hokum. They would rather see a pageant depicting something than the real thing. Indeed, they enjoy games only because they offer an excuse for floats representing the marriage of Southern California to the Oil Industry attended by young ladies representing Liberty, Citrus Fruits, and the Spirit of the Coöperation Among Walnut Growers.

It is no accident that the people of the Los Angeles region are preoccupied with the weather. People with a genius for glorifying the less important would regard the weather as the most inspiring thing in the world.

ABATING A NUISANCE.

The state police command is to be commended for its prompt action in giving protection to motorists from improper arrests in the Dixmoor speed trap. Two state motorcycle police have been stationed on this stretch to warn motorists and check up on "any rough stuff" that may be tried. The law is not helpless against this public nuisance. All that is needed is action by existing agencies. State's Attorney Swanson has made a good start in Cook county. The state law department and police should enter the campaign and stay till the end, which will not be long if they use their authority energetically.

IS PEORIA IN "CHICAGOLAND"?

[Peoria Journal.]

The Peoria delegation to the Chicago Association of Commerce meeting last week apparently accepted the sentiment expressed by Murray M. Baker, one of its spokesmen, that Peoria was a part of "Chicagoland," although situated midway between Chicago and St. Louis.

Commercially, there is small doubt that the ties which bind Peoria to Chicago are stronger than those which bind us to St. Louis. Commerce, transportation, travel and politics confirm the union with Chicago. St. Louis is in Missouri. Chicago has the whip hand in state politics and therefore its policies directly affect Peoria and central Illinois.

If inland waterway development follows its charted course Peoria will soon become the barge distributing center for the metropolitan district of Chicago. THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE says there is no reason why Peoria should not become the "Atlantic City of Illinois." It is the principal port on the Illinois river and some day may be provided with a 40 foot scenic highway skirting the river and connecting with Chicago.

Peoria yields to no inferiority complex when it consents to be included in "Chicagoland." Chicago is the second city of America as Peoria is the second city of Illinois. The two cities have much in common. Chicago can do more for Peoria than Peoria can do for Chicago.

Only a smug banality would resent affiliation with Chicago, which is destined to be the greatest city of America and the greatest clearing house of business and industry.

OUR SENIOR ADMIRAL.

[The Daily Telegraph, London.]

In the news that the king, as senior admiral of the fleet, yesterday took command at maneuvers and led the home fleet out to battle practice, there is something to touch the imagination of every Englishman. We are a royalist and a maritime nation. We are all of us—without regard to station or shade of politics—stanchly loyal to the throne; all but the most earthbound of our landlubbers have a soft spot for the navy. To find these two ancient and well loved institutions thus brought into conjunction appeals most happily to our sense of fitness.

Even without this culminating touch we cannot read of our fleet in being without a thrill. This thrill is something more than affection, though we all love a sailor; something more than pride, though to imagine—or, still better, to see—that magnificent machine in action does make us hold our heads a little higher. Behind these emotions is a deep, half-unconscious sense of gratitude. Islanders can never forget their insularity. There is not one of us who does not know, when he stops to think, that it is to our still unsurpassed navy that we owe our very existence.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

PRIMER ON INVESTIGATIONS.

AN INVESTIGATION is "the act of investigating; careful inquiry or research." It is of several varieties—scientific, business, and political. The latter is the more prevalent. An investigation also may have many purposes. It may be to secure delay in making a decision until its timeliness is dissipated. It may be to produce such conflicting evidence as to becloud the issue. It may be to provide a junketing trip for members of the committee. Such investigations are known as congressional, state, or municipal investigations.

Congressional, state, and municipal investigations are made by committees or commissions. They involve long trips, often to foreign countries. Costs of these trips are borne by the taxpayers. Costs are greater than results. No sponsor of an investigation ever has been known to refuse its chairmanship. Sometimes the chairmen need secretaries. In political life relatives of chairmen or legislators make the best secretaries.

Subject of an investigation may be what makes a woodpecker woodpeck, involving visits to national parks and forests. It may be to find out why Americans drink better liquor in Europe than at home, with a trip to Europe. It may be to determine how can a mayor make money on stocks he never owned. It may be why do candidates for office spend money, and how much, to be nominated and elected, with fees to field men—the resultant finding "Because."

Investigations are a peculiarly American institution. They are very useful to the junketeers. They are usually very useless to the taxpayers. That's why we have investigations.

SONNET XLII.

I whisper to you through the bolted door, bare my heart behind the curtained pane.
The silver nights we held so dear before are dead forever, and the autumn rain streams down, relentless, on a sloping field where once we battled over love till breath was nearly gone from us. And your bright shield was faith that guarded you from instant death;
my shield, sincerity, before my face blinded me. Our swords were words of fire with which we sought to weaken and displace the enemy we feared to free: desire.

We fled that night forever from the hill each loath to take the credit for the kill.

COOLED AIR IN HOT WEATHER.

THE movement for cooling of living places and workshops is growing with considerable rapidity. At first only a few places were cooled in hot weather, and these served only a small section of the population, and for brief periods. The restaurants were one of the first groups to take it up. When the air in a restaurant is hot people lose their appetites. Either they will not eat at all or else they limit themselves to cold drinks and salads.

The restaurants first tried to meet this situation by setting their tables in gardens, under trees, or on the sidewalks under awnings. Wherever in America there is much persistence of German influence garden restaurants are to be seen, whereas tables on the sidewalks give evidence of French and Italian influence. But there are limitations to such opportunities in American cities, and a way had to be found to get customers to eat meats and fats, and heavier meals in hot weather. Some restaurants solved the problem by air conditioning.

The theaters found air cooling good for their business. The people were much more liable to while away an hour or two in a movie if the air there were cool. The theaters made a mistake by cooling the air to 70 degrees, or, at any rate, making it too cool. When people are dressed for very hot weather they are uncomfortable when in an atmosphere that is 25 to 30 degrees below that for which they are dressed. The theaters would have done better had they held the air at 10 degrees, or thereabouts, below the outside temperatures.

Probably the next group to take up cooling were the railroads. They installed it in dining cars, to the great satisfaction of their customers. Cooled air in dining cars must have added a few cents to the average check. The disadvantage of the plan was that the dining car conductors found the customers tended to linger too long at the tables. The remedy consisted in cooling the club cars and chair cars. Sleeping cars followed.

Before long we expect efficiency engineers will be submitting estimates that show employers the loss in output in a factory during hot weather, the increase in summer production that could be expected to result from air cooling, and the net gain after subtracting cost of installation and upkeep of refrigerating apparatus from increased income because of increase of production. About that time, managers of office buildings will offer space for offices in cooled buildings, arguing that employés in such offices will do more work and make fewer errors.

Finally, the demand for cool air will extend to housewives. The cooks should be given a vote on this question. It is to be hoped that by that time we will all understand that in hot weather air should not be cooled to 70 degrees. The proper objective should be ten to fifteen degrees below the temperature of air as registered in shady places.

NO GREAT HARM DONE.

Mrs. H. F. writes: I have a son 4 years old who sucks his thumb when he is in bed and at no other time. He squirms a lot before he goes to sleep. He is restless, but apparently comfortable. I was a thumb sucker when a child and I remember how getting my thumb in my mouth seemed to soothe me. Shall I try to break the habit? If so, how? Will having him circumcised help?

REPLY.

It is better to break the habit, but do not take it too seriously. If you fail, no great harm will be done. Thumb sucking tends to deform the top of the mouth and to disarrange the teeth. It carries dirt and bacteria into the mouth. On the other hand, it is natural for a child to suck and sucking the thumb is on the borderline of being natural, if not instinctive. It is somewhat soothing. While it is better to break the habit, the chances are that its continuance will do no harm, and the boy will stop of his own accord in a few years. Efforts to break the habit may be carried far enough to do harm. Try having him wear metal mitts, or wrap his hands at night, and put some quinine on the thumb covering. Give him rewards for his successes. Do not punish him for his failures. Above all, do not become impatient with him. Having him circumcised will not help.

"FALSE APPETITE."

Mrs. R. E. R. writes: 1. What is a false appetite? I am six months pregnant and every night I get awfully hungry. I never give in to this hunger, however.

2. Will my not eating have any ill effects on my baby? My diet is milk, fruits, and vegetables. I just can't eat meat or eggs in this condition.

3. Although I am overweight, instead of gaining, I have lost thirteen pounds. What causes this?

REPLY.

1. We sometimes hear sounds incorrectly, see things other than as they are, feel hot when the object is otherwise. Appetite is the way that nature calls for food. Like all other sensations it may get twisted, sound a false note, or otherwise do queer stunts. Pregnant women are rather prone to have perverted appetites. As a rule they should disregard them. They are no more to be trusted than are head noises.

2. If the mother's diet is improper her baby is liable to pay the penalty.

3. You should have medical advice. Most pregnant women need to eat some yeast and some whole grain to get the vitamin B complex they need. Overweight may be a danger signal. If the weight increases unduly and the blood pressure rises there may be danger of eclampsia. If you are overweight and losing flesh you may be on good, safe ground. On the other hand, maybe you should not be resisting your appetite. If you can't eat meat and eggs, don't try.

CHEWING GUM AND SEEDS.

W. K. writes: 1. Is there any harm in swallowing chewing gum or orange seed?

2. Are they eliminated?

REPLY.

1. Some, but not much. Nothing can be said for the practice and something can be said against it.

2. Yes. When this fails trouble brews.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

Letters to this department must be signed with names and addresses of writers.

DEPENDS UPON PROOF.

Chicago, Aug. 12.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I own a building on which there is a bond issue. The interest falls due semi-annually, and I have, at the request of the bank, been paying my interest monthly to the bank, so that it wouldn't be so hard to meet the obligation all at one time. Recently the bank closed and nearly all of the interest money was in the bank. The bondholders are now demanding their money, but I cannot pay, due to the bank closing. The money was not put in either savings or checking account, but merely was being kept by the bank. I talked to one of the officers and he stated that the money could not be paid out any more than could a checking account. Doesn't my case come under a preferred claim? J. B.

If you can prove that your cash was kept separate as distinguished from being merely represented by a bookkeeping entry in your favor, then you would be entitled to follow it as a preferred claim.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

CERTAIN ASSETS PLEDGED.

Chicago, Aug. 12.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—In case a company fails, what protection have bondholders for money invested in that company? E. R.

Bonds ordinarily are secured by a pledge of certain assets of the corporation. The bondholders would be entitled to continue to look to these assets. We suggest that you examine the wording of the trust indenture securing the bonds.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

PROBATE PROBABLY NECESSARY.

Oak Park, Ill., Aug. 12.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—The owner of an estate amounting to about $500 in stock in a Wisconsin building and loan died without leaving a will. Together with a sister and brother I am one of the heirs. I have paid all the bills of the deceased and to reimburse me the other two heirs express their desire to waive all claims. 1. Will the estate have to be administered and if so, how will I go about securing the administration? 2. Can I do this myself or must one employ a lawyer? J. W. M.

1. Depends upon whether the transfer officers of the corporation are willing to recognize your rights without probate. We suggest that you take this matter up with them.

2. If probate proceedings are necessary it probably would be advisable to employ an attorney.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

INSURANCE PREMIUM.

Chicago, Aug. 12.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A merchant insures his property through an insurance broker. He paid the broker the premium for this insurance, securing in return a receipt marked paid from him, stating the date of the policy, policy number, name of insurance company, property insured, and the amount of premium paid. If the broker fails to pay the insurance company can the company cancel the policy for nonpayment of premium? J. C.

Depends on whether the broker was the insurance company's agent or the customer's agent.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

AUGUST 17, 1916.

WASHINGTON.—There will be a showdown tomorrow on President Wilson's plan to avert the threatened railroad strike. With the arrival in Washington tonight from New York of the 640 district officials of the four great brotherhoods of railroad employés, this was made known not only by officials of the administration, but also by leaders of the men. At the big conference tomorrow with the brotherhoods the President is expected to propose that they be granted without qualification an eight hour day and that they leave the question of overtime pay and other matters open to further discussion—perhaps to a federal commission.

PARIS.—The largest single day's gain since the opening of the giant allied offensive along the Somme front was accomplished in today's actions, according to the French official statement. Systems of German trenches along three sectors aggregating 4,700 meters, a total of almost three miles, fell before the terrific drives of French and British troops. Along one of these sectors, 2,000 meters in length, the powerful bulwarks of the kaiser's defense were occupied to a depth of 300 to 500 meters, Paris reports. A large number of prisoners, the exact number not yet obtainable, fell into the hands of the allies. This latter action was in the district south of Maurepas.

OTHER WAR NEWS.—The Russian war office reports that 358,000 Teutons were captured between June 4, the beginning of the present offensive, and Aug. 12. The Slavs advanced slowly in Galicia and the Carpathians in yesterday's fighting. The Italians continue to push nearer Triest, taking 353 prisoners. It is reported the Germans are preparing to defend Triest. The United States consulate at Venice was showered by fragments of bombs from Austrian flyers in a recent aerial attack on that city. Paris reports allied gains in the Balkans.

CHICAGO.—Henry H. Honoré died at 4:27 p. m. yesterday, in the presence of his five sons and daughters, all of whom had been gathered for hours around his bedside in his residence, 341 Lincoln parkway. The five children are Mrs. Potter Palmer, Mrs. Frederick Dent Grant, Judge Lockwood Honoré, Adrian C. Honoré, and Nathaniel K. Honoré. Mr. Honoré, who was in his ninety-third year, suffered a heart attack Aug. 10. Henry Hamilton Honoré—the business world knew him simply as "H. H." and his most intimate friends as "Harry"—was of French ancestry and was born in Louisville, Ky., on Feb. 19, 1824. His paternal grandfather, Jean Antoin Honoré, had been a friend of the Marquis de Lafayette, and it was largely due to Lafayette's interest in the American revolution that Jean Honoré came to America from Paris in 1781.

PITTSBURGH.—After handling rattlesnakes and other venomous reptiles for nineteen years, Gustav A. Link, expert of the Carnegie museum, died today following the bite of a rattlesnake yesterday. He was demonstrating the anatomy of the snake before a class of University of Pittsburgh students when the reptile struck.

CHICAGO.—The marriage of Miss Gladys Anderson, daughter of Bishop and Mrs. Charles P. Anderson of 1621 Prairie avenue, to Haven ReQua, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. ReQua of 3629 Grand boulevard, will take place on Sept. 4 at the country residence of the bride's parents near Long lake, Wis.

TUITION FEES AT CRANE.

Chicago, Aug. 9.—I am a student of the Crane Junior college. I should like to know why it is considered necessary to charge a tuition fee of $100 per year in a public, and supposedly free, school of Chicago.

Why is it that Chicago cannot support at least a junior college? Is the sum appropriated to education too small? No! If this sum were properly handled Crane students would not be forced to forego a college education. There are 5,000 political appointees who are receiving a salary of $50 a week from the board of education while doing absolutely nothing to earn that salary. Why are not these employés dismissed and the millions thus saved used as Chicago taxpayers meant them to be used—in support of Crane and other public schools? Why are not operation costs reduced to the same level that is prevalent in other cities and the money used for education costs?

All these would be actual, effective steps toward economy. The tuition fee measure is only meant to throw dust into the taxpayers' eyes in evading the real issue. For the city would save absolutely nothing by making Crane students pay tuition. These fees would not begin to pay for the actual costs of a school like Crane. Any small saving would not even be a drop in the bucket compared to the millions being spent.

As against this small seeming saving consider the real loss incurred by the loss of prestige to the city, the great loss to deserving students who are unable to pay tuition fees, and who will thus be forced to lose their only possible chance for a necessary education, and the subsequent loss to the city of well educated, intelligent citizens. Now, how can a paltry saving of about $50,000 stand up against these real losses?

Why don't you join us in showing how the board of education is trying to sidestep the question of making some real economies? Why are you letting them fool the taxpayers? And why not help carry out the American ideal of an equal chance for all, thus allowing those of us who cannot pay $100 a year to obtain the education we are working for? MARY ANNE NORIN.

LET'S GO.

Chicago, Aug. 11.—Brother, if you will go out and look today perhaps you will find a little work, a little business. Now as never before it is true that it will not come to you. You will have to go after it. And when you have found that little bit and taken it back with you to your office or factory you will have found something else: hope and encouragement.

And then when some other brother comes in to see you tomorrow or the next day for a little bit from you, you will have something for him, a share of your bit, a cheerful word, encouragement, hope. That is what all men need now, just a little, and business will pyramid on that small start. Let's all go out and try. ALDEN S. BAKER.

AUNTIE SAM.

Tecumseh, Mich., Aug. 10.—It would seem that Mitchell V. B. Kennedy is in error when he says in today's TRIBUNE that the government has for several years discontinued the practice of giving away leaflets telling us how to manage our affairs. No longer ago than last January the writer received two leaflets, one giving instruction on how to buy furniture, the other telling how to make clothes for children. These came franked from Washington, entirely free and unwanted. The government had better turn its attention to really worth while affairs. Most of us can furnish our houses and dress our children.

MRS. HERBERT E. RICE.

HOME BREW.

West Lafayette, Ind., Aug. 13. — In these times when business is slow one gets to thinking about this, that, and the other thing. Naturally when the day is hot a lot of us think of a glass of cold, foamy beer. The thought comes to my mind: Would beer sold by the government bring much revenue? A lot [more than most people realize] of people are making a pretty good tasting home brew with plenty of kick for about 1½ cents a pint. Could Uncle Sam compete or would the home brewer cease operations? G. C. M.

A PLACE TO SAVE.

Belvidere, Ill., Aug. 9.—In your issue of Sunday, Aug. 7, the article by Arthur Sears Henning, with accompanying table, "How Millions Are Wasted," prepared by the Chicago Tribune Press Service, is of particular interest to postal employés.

Items of wasted millions pertaining to the postal service totaled $76,950,000, but included only two items of loss incurred in handling second class mail: $700,000 on account of copies of publications sent free in county of publication and $400,000 reduced postage on religious publications.

Postal employés, as well as the publishers of small newspapers, noting that the total amount of the subsidy to publishers is not listed, are wondering why the publishers of small newspapers are singled out and attention is not called to the total amount of the subsidy, which in 1931 was in excess of $96,000,000. They fail to understand why country newspapers are made the target and no mention is made of the $96,000,000 that metropolitan publications, such as THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, are paying in dividends instead of postage.

Will you permit me to venture the statement that if business principles were exercised to the point of requiring publishers to pay a rate of postage commensurate with the cost of handling, that, under normal conditions, the deficit of the postoffice department, would disappear?

I do not presume to suggest that your press service intended to omit the item of the publishers' subsidy of $96,000,000, which should have been third highest on your list of wasted millions—greater even than the cost of alleged prohibition enforcement. The omission was undoubtedly an oversight as, without question, the support of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE would be given to a movement in congress that would establish a rate of postage for all publications adequate to cover the cost of handling. The attitude of THE TRIBUNE is always so eminently fair that it could not do otherwise.

ELLIOTT O. ANDREWS.

MIDSHIPMEN'S MILK.

Great Lakes, Ill., Aug. 11.—In Mr. Arthur Sears Henning's recent article on the farm run by the navy at Annapolis I wish to add some information to place the situation more clearly before the general public.

Granting that the figure of $145,000 is the government allowance for running this farm, we must also credit the government with some return financially on this investment.

During the period 1916-1919 I was a midshipman at Annapolis, one of 2,400. Our monthly pay of $50 was charged at the rate of $30 to $35 for our mess bill.

You will grant that out of this sum a figure of $5 per month per midshipman would be a very conservative charge for milk and fresh vegetables furnished the table. This amounts to a total of $144,000 which is returned annually to the United States treasury by the midshipmen for services rendered by the farm.

Therefore we see that this money credited to the United States treasury balances the government expenditure, and that the farm has been run at no real expense to the government.

G. H. DANA,
Lieutenant, U. S. Navy.

CAPITAL PUNISHMENT.

Oak Park, Ill., Aug. 9.—Your editorial this morning, "Crime and Restraint," is a fine example of THE TRIBUNE'S ability to think. It is in keeping with your arguments against prohibition, and just about as logical, if that word may be used in describing your frequent vaporings.

You chide Michigan for supporting Frederick Nash, the killer from Ludington, but fail to note that he is at least in jail. In Illinois he would not come to trial for many months, provided they could catch him, and then it would be postponed, with continuances, retrials, etc. His only disadvantage here would be his lack of money to pay for his freedom or light sentence. Fred Burke, tried in Michigan, has been in jail for some time. If Illinois had been able to get him he would still be out on a very inadequate bail and the trial delayed for months or years. Michigan may support her criminals, but she does it in jail, whereas Illinois supports them out of jail by the public still being robbed, murdered, etc., as usual. G. V.

ANOTHER DAY AND ANOTHER FOOD(?) HUT AT CORNERS

James Murray, Late of Atlanta, Is 'Mine Host.'

A $25,000 hot dog and barbecue stand is scheduled to be opened today by James Murray, who recently served a prison term for the Rondout mail robbery, his wife, Jennie, and Ray Kerr. The brick structure, with a two story tower, stands on the northeast corner of Harlem and North avenues, across the street from the Hayes, Inc., $30,000 stand in which Murray's wife own 100 shares of stock.

Murray's stand is in the city of Chicago, while that of Frank M. Hayes, whose "eating huts" were called "love nests" by certain village trustees, is in Elmwood Park. Hayes said yesterday he suspected that Murray intends to sell beer in the new place. Records at the city hall disclosed that no license had been taken out for the operation of a lunchroom at the address of Murray's place.

Serves Five and One-Half Years.

Murray returned to Chicago from Atlanta penitentiary in May, 1931, after serving five and one-half years of his 25 year sentence for participation in the $2,000,000 Rondout mail robbery. When he returned, William A. McGrath, chief federal parole officer, who is keeping an eye on Murray's activities, announced that he would not be permitted to return to his old pursuit, the beer business. Mr. McGrath is on his vacation now.

Hayes said that when his place was opened, about the time of Murray's return, Kerr sold 100 of his 150 shares of stock, or 20 per cent of the business, to Mrs. Murray. Shortly after the opening, he charged, Mrs. Murray and Kerr attempted to show him how to run the place on a "profit making basis." Hayes refused, he said, to be shown.

Later Kerr, who had disposed of some more of his stock to Frank Clark, brother of Ald. John S. Clark, attempted "strong arm tactics" and was ousted from the board of directors, according to Hayes.

"Fight to the Finish."

Hayes said he did not welcome the competition but that he was "in the fight to the finish." Murray and his wife, he said, visited their place daily during the construction.

Building permits for four eating huts already erected by Hayes were received yesterday from the Elmwood Park authorities. Monday night the trustees had debated for an hour on the question of whether the huts were primarily for eating or love making, with Trustee Albert Redmer bitterly attacking them as "damn shacks" and "love nests." Mr. Hayes said his huts were eating huts in every sense of the word and were popular with families.

ILEANA AND HER BABY PLACED UNDER HEAVY GUARD; FEAR BOMBING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Aug. 16.—An extra detachment of gendarmes, armed with rifles, today was thrown around the villa at Moedling, near here, where the youngest of all the Hapsburgs, Archduke Stephen, is progressing nicely. His mother, Princess Ileana, sister of King Carol of Rumania, is also doing well.

PRINCESS ILEANA.

Police headquarters said reinforcements were necessary because it was feared Macedonian revolutionaries would bomb the villa. Several Macedonians were arrested here today. One is alleged to have possessed a detailed plan of the villa. The action of the revolutionaries is said to be directed against Ileana's sister, Queen Marie of Jugo-Slavia. Rather than risk the lives of others in the villa, it is reported that Queen Marie will return to Belgrade tomorrow.

Against strong objections of many of the older Hapsburgs, Archduke Anton, father of the child, held out today for giving his son only the one name, Stephen. No other Hapsburg has less than seven Christian names. A family council of all the Hapsburgs and the Hohenzollern Sigmaringens has been called for next week to determine the nationality of the child.

BOY EXPLORER, 13, BRINGS TROPHIES FROM FIJI ISLES

Hartley DeGerald, 13-year-old explorer, came back to Chicago from the Fiji Islands yesterday lugging under his arm a pair of vivid straw mats. He handed the trophies to his mother when he arrived on a Chicago and North Western train that brought him from the west coast.

"Here," he said. These are for you." Then he added casually, "A king in the Fijis gave them to me."

Hartley is the son of John DeGerald, 2115 West 54th place. He has been on so many travel trips that one more or less is merely another adventure. "I went native," Hartley said. "The islands were a lot nicer than I thought they would be from reading books about them. I was the guest of a king, or native chief, and we ate fish and yams squatting down on the floor. I even dressed like the natives."

Last year Hartley went into the Mackenzie river region in the Arctic. The year before he toured the Carribbean Islands and touched South America, and before that he visited interesting spots in this country. Next year he plans to visit the Belgian Congo.

CUT DR. O'BRIEN'S BAIL IN MURDER CASE TO $12,000

Dr. William A. O'Brien Jr., who is accused of the murder of his wife, was granted a reduction of bail from $25,000 to $12,000 yesterday by Judge Leon Edelman in the Felony court. Attorney Lawrence B. Jacobs appeared for O'Brien and said he believed he would be able to furnish the lower bond and obtain O'Brien's release from the county jail. A coroner's jury found that Mrs. O'Brien's death was due to poisoning but did not accuse the husband. Capt. Joseph Goldberg of the Albany Park district then placed the charge of murder against O'Brien. He will be arraigned in the Felony court Sept. 1.

DECLINES TO ASK A REHEARING ON TRANSIT RULING

Attorney General Carlstrom yesterday notified loop and near north side property owners, who had requested him to petition for a rehearing on the State Supreme court decision which upheld the validity of the transit unification ordinance and the enabling legislation upon which it was based, that in his opinion a petition for a rehearing is not justified.

Before reaching his decision the attorney general held conferences with attorneys representing the property owners, the city, the transit companies, and other interested parties. He held that the points raised by the property owners had been adequately covered in briefs and arguments before the court. A mere restatement of the position of either party, he said, does not come within the rules authorizing a petition for rehearing.

Walter L. Fisher, transit attorney for the city, expressed pleasure at the attorney general's decision. He said that the companies, presumably, would now go ahead with the various steps involved in the consolidation, but that it would take some time to complete the reorganization.

MRS. J. A. PATTEN IS GUEST AT C. M. T. C. CAMP

Mrs. James A. Patten, widow of the wheat king, yesterday attended the celebration in her honor at the citizens' military training camp at Fort Sheridan. She lunched as guest of honor with the 2,000 citizen soldiers and later inspected the camp. Brig. Gen. Frank C. Bolles, Fort Sheridan commander, spoke of Mrs. Patten's understanding of the underlying purpose of the citizen camp.

"The primary purpose of these camps is to develop good citizenship," he said. "Preparedness will take care of itself if that is done."

The camp members drilled in the morning. In the afternoon more than 200 contestants competed in a track meet on the athletic field donated by Mrs. Patten.

FREE POLICEMAN IN A MYSTERIOUS SHOOTING CASE

After hearing testimony that the mysterious shooting in the home of Policeman James Kerrigan at 4143 Berkeley avenue several months ago was accidental, Judge Leon Edelman dismissed a charge of assault to kill against Kerrigan yesterday. The shooting, however, wasn't explained to the satisfaction of Assistant State's Attorney Thomas Johnson Jr., who asked that Kerrigan's son, James Jr., who is also a policeman, be held on a charge of perjury. Judge Edelman took this request under advisement.

Sergt. Charles Requa of the detective bureau, whose squad captured Kerrigan Sr. after the shooting, was a witness at yesterday's court hearing. He said that the wife of Kerrigan Sr. was shot through the jaw and that the son was also wounded. It was necessary to throw a tear gas bomb into a room where Kerrigan Sr. was barricaded to make the capture, Requa said. At that time, according to Requa, young Kerrigan accused his father of the assault, saying: "It's the old man again. He shot my mother!" However, Mrs. Kerrigan testified yesterday that she had shot herself accidentally and the son said he was injured by broken glass. Judge Edelman dismissed the case for want of prosecution.

FRENCH AIR MAIL SHIP IS MISSING WITH 22 ABOARD

MARSEILLES, France, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Twenty-two men are feared to have been drowned in the reported sinking of a fast dispatch boat in the air mail service to South America on Saturday. The vessel was en route from Natal, Brazil, to Dakar, Senegal, when it ran into a storm. Efforts to learn the fate of the crew have failed.

The Aero Postal company issued a statement saying that it was feared the vessel was struck by a hurricane and went down before she could send an S O S. The last message received from the ship was on Friday night, when it was about 24 hours steaming from Dakar. The ship had made the trip twice a week for the last two years. It carried no passengers.

19 Die in Jap Collision.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—(AP)—A message to Lloyds today from Tokio said 19 lives were lost when the steamer Hidemaru collided with the Nichi Fuku Maru on the inland sea this morning. The Nichi Fuku Maru sank shortly afterward.

Girl Accused of Giving Bad Checks Gets Delay

Miss Deloris Moore, 19 years old, was arraigned yesterday before Judge Thomas A. Green on the charge that she had given a forged pay check in payment for a dress in a State street store. The case was continued until Aug. 24.

RAILWAY FREIGHT AGENT ROBBED.

Edward Tierney a freight agent of the Rock Island railroad, was robbed of $23 and $300 in checks yesterday by a gunman who threatened him on the platform of the Englewood station, Harvard avenue and 65d street.

9 HELD IN KILLING; 10TH SUSPECT HAS A BROKEN BACK

A police guard was placed yesterday beside the bed of Louis Macek, 21 years old, 9147 Woodlawn avenue, who is lying in the Burnside hospital with a broken back. If he survives, he will be questioned about the slaying Saturday of Francis Marks, 28 years old, at Michiana Shores, a summer resort near Benton Harbor, Mich.

John and Joseph Macek, brothers of the injured man; Stephen Grod, 9219 Woodlawn avenue, and Alexander Berger, 1144 West 91st street, were arrested Monday by Sergt. Charles Moore of the detective bureau, charged with causing the death of Marks. They waived extradition and have been turned over to Michigan authorities.

Marks was a garbage hauling contractor. According to Sheriff Vincent O'Neill of Berrien county, Michigan, he cut his rates and incurred the enmity of five brothers who were in the same business. The brothers, Frank, Charles, Joseph, Paul, and Tony Mazac, are under arrest in La Porte, Ind., on the charge that they hired the five Chicagoans to commit the assault on Marks which caused his death.

Marks was struck by a brick as he was driving his truck, knocked unconscious, and fatally injured when the truck left the highway. Louis Macek was hurt when he was unable to get out of the way of the careening truck, Sheriff O'Neill said.

Baby Girl Falls Fifty Feet; Escapes Unhurt

Two year old Antoinette Anselin, 1021 North Franklin street, escaped with a few bruises yesterday when she fell fifty feet from the third story of her home to a concrete sidewalk. A screen gave way when the little girl leaned against it.

3 GUNMEN POUR ACID ON CLOTHES VALUED AT $1,500

Three armed men entered the Chicago Fashion Tailor shop on the seventh floor of the building at 327 West Van Buren street last night and poured acid on clothing worth $1,500 while Philip Price, 3028 Edgewood avenue, the owner, and his son, Harold, looked on. Price told the police that he kept an open shop and knew of no other reason for the outrage.

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE WANT AD SECTION PROVIDES THE MOST SATISFACTORY SELECTION!

THE easiest and most successful way to find an apartment which will best suit you is to read the Tribune Want Ads, make up a list of those that appeal to you, and then confine your personal inspection to these selected few.

Nothing could be more sensible and business-like than this simple method. It eliminates the time and energy wasted in looking at apartments which couldn't possibly interest you. It is most discouraging to walk from building to building, from neighborhood to neighborhood, without any idea what the next apartment is going to look like, and then after climbing several flights of stairs to discover that the living room is too small or that your furniture won't fit into the bedroom.

If you use Tribune Want Ads, you won't have such disappointment. With a definite list you know pretty well in advance whether the apartments you will look at are what you want.

Not only is this practical method a great convenience but when you depend on the Tribune you are certain you can pick and choose from the best apartments available. For years the Tribune has produced such quick results for landlords and rental agents that they place their most complete and attractive lists in the Tribune.

Tribune advertisers offer apartments at $25, $50, $150, any rental, in fact—and the most desirable available at the prices. Because the Tribune is the most popular newspaper, it is the preferred rental guide. The Tribune reaches over 200,000 more families in Chicago and suburbs than any other Chicago newspaper does, and men and women in every neighborhood depend on it to locate their next apartments. They know it is their best assurance of satisfaction.

If you are planning to move, turn to the Tribune Want Ads.

Fun Day Wins High Praise of Book Reporter

Wodehouse, Hutchinson Are Authors.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Hot Water," by P. G. Wodehouse. [Doubleday-Doran.] Published today.

"Big Business," by A. S. M. Hutchinson. [Little-Brown.]

IF one were renaming the days of the literary calendar certainly one of the most charming and most alluring would be Fun day. The only trouble with Fun day is that one can never count on its regular appearance on the calendar. Glum day, ho-hum day, sex day, crime day are sure to appear regularly, but Fun day in its pure form is at best only a lunar blessing, sometimes only a semi-annual feast.

A. S. M. HUTCHINSON.

Today's offering is a feast in fact and fancy. P. G. Wodehouse, the funniest funster of them all, and A. S. M. Hutchinson, whose "One Aboard the Lugger" is remembered even by some readers who have forgotten his "If Winter Comes" [which wasn't funny at all], both offer their most alluring wares, and red letters should be pinned all over any day that gives readers 620 such pages ["Hot Water" running to 305 and "Big Business" to 315 pages].

It is impossible to define, for those who do not know it, the Wodehouse genius. It is something more than a plot bristling with humorous situations, something more than conversation bubbling with bon mots, something more than description rivaling both plot and conversation for giggling humor. It is just P. G. Wodehouse, and there is no Wodehouse but Wodehouse.

"Hot Water" is one of his most riotous tales. It concerns a house party in the seaside town of Saint Rocque, at the Château Blissac, which is leased by Mrs. J. Wellington Gedge, who is bent on making her husband American ambassador to France and is using as an efficient method of so doing the possession of a very compromising letter from the great dry leader, Senator Opal, to his bootlegger. Mr. J. Wellington Gedge himself is only a bird in a gilded cage, and he has no yearnings to twitter in the drawing rooms of Paris. His only wish is to fly away home to Glendale, Cal.

The young Vicomte de Blissac—accepted by Mrs. Gedge as a guest because the drains are bad and she wants one of the noble de Blissacs to bear witness to same—under a misapprehension allows his friend Packy Franklyn, ex-Yale football star, to impersonate him in the Gedge menage.

Packy's passion to intrude into the house party is traceable to one Jane Opal, engaged at the rise of the curtain to an English novelist of the more superior type.

Assorted servants and visitors comprise the rest of the dramatis personæ, two of which are Soup Slattery and Gordon Carlisle, pillars of the safe blowing and confidence industries. One camp of the chateau's inhabitants is intent upon rifling Mrs. Gedge's wall safe to obtain Senator Opal's compromising document and the other to obtain the "ice" which Mrs. Gedge owns. How they aid and abet [and hamper] each other in their normal pursuits is the plot of one of Mr. Wodehouse's best contributions to a "frabjous" day. If any writing boy is "beamish" P. G. Wodehouse is that boy!

"Big Business" is Mr. Hutchinson's contribution to the slump in the depression. It, too, is a combination of complicated [well nigh unraveleable] plot, amusing talk and gay description, although it is less acutely side-splitting in each of its members than Mr. Wodehouse's opus. The locale of "Big Business" is a quiet spot on the coast of England where nature has chosen to plant [if such things may well be termed planted] a cove where what goes in never emerges and which is, therefore, reputed a boon to the suicide market.

One of its chief protagonists is Boy Bond, who believes that a great hotel and four or five picture palaces along the sands would be a boon both to Lymgate and Super Flats, Ltd., which specializes in—well, Super Flats. But it is neither Big Boy nor the future of Lymgate which is the real Big Business of the title, but the scheme of one Saxon Springe to win for himself the inheritance which he lost through the disappearance of his brother Norman. Toward that end he corrals Mr. Sebastian Pringle, late headmaster of a boys' school, late occupant for one week of a suite and all the allurements of the great Hotel Plantagenet, late owner of fifty pounds and present incumbent of a bench on the Embankment whose chief means of livelihood until fall proves to be his remarkable likeness to the late Norman Springe.

Mixed thoroughly and sautéed in Mr. Hutchinson's special oil of laughter, the ingredients form a rissole which will be as popular [one feels sure] as the famous rissoles of the tale.

Fox Trims Cape

The Shoulders Get Attention in Fall Styles

Capes and Epaulets Mark New Fashions.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

THERE'S a great to do about shoulder seams and shoulder widths this fall. Dresses with one pair of sleeves decide to double the effect with another shorter pair that stick out four or five inches above the elbow, and that means some more width. Other frocks boast of epaulet cape effects or dinky little capes. Anything and everything is used to widen the top level of your anatomy.

If nature neglected you in the matter of wide shoulder sections cape makers apparently have spent hours in thinking up tricky little capelets to hide the omission. You can now buy the greatest selecton of capelets and capes that ever were made for frenzied, harrow shoulder shoppers. Silk crepe creations that button demurely down the back with big bulblike buttons . . . short crisp affairs of sparkling white pique . . . shimmering, satin, deep-swinging capes and other interesting materials will be displayed for your enthusiastic selection.

One thing this economical era has presented to us is the fun of changing the appearance of an old frock into a fresh new fashioned model achieved with the aid of flattering cape collars.

And any kind of a dull gown can be rejuvenated with these capelets—silk, wool, or satin. Take your simplest black wool frock, frost the shoulders with a cape collar made of white silk crêpe ruffles, one lying flatly and smartly above the other in as many as eight rows . . . sew matching ruffled cuffs to the sleeves and you will have a costume that will make fashion history.

Another cape is made of thin silk with scalloped bound edges. It is cut to wear to one side and has a row of upstanding black and white buttons.

Sleek satin capes are worn buttoned down the back with at least twelve or more buttons, the same model can be worn buttoned over the left shoulder steam for a devastating nonchalance that can't be equaled.

After you have shopped for fabric capes you'll prowl around the fur shops and see what the furriers have accomplished for this fashion wave of covering the shoulders. You'll see good looking duets of matching muff and capes of leopard, just the get-together for your swanky green, and brown, and black sports frocks. Some satiny black caracul capes will go out with your new dull silk afternoon and dull black velvet evening costumes.

You can try a gray Persian lamb cape with a flat Persian lamb muff as the sophisticated contrast for black, smoke gray, or almond green and nothing could be more perfect than this gray Persian set worn with the new reds and old gold shades.

One shop is showing some ingenious new scarfs of cross fox and silver fox. Some master designer used a long double fold of deep brown velvet and then twisted and twined around this velvet a gorgeously marked cross fox skin, leaving two long ends of the velvet to hang or tie.

Black velvet was used for silver fox in the same manner of twisting. These scarfs are most effective and are the possible solutions of how to use an old fur scarf as a 1932 fashion accent.

Aids Wheaton Charity Sale

Mrs. Laflin to Entertain at Musical

Forty Are Invited to Lake Forest Home.

ALTHOUGH we who chronicle society's activities write constantly about the fact that society is busy and gay this summer in spite of everything, we mean that the gayety is of a most informal and impromtu sort and there really aren't many parties planned very far ahead. For this reason it is nice to be able to report this morning that a real party is being given today in Lake Forest. Mrs. Louis E. Laflin is having about forty women for a musical this morning on the porch of her spacious residence, Ellslloyd, with luncheon afterward at small tables indoors.

Mrs. Laflin told me yesterday that she had just heard that her son and his bride, the former June Kennedy of Pittsburgh, have decided to take a trip to Germany before returning to Chicago and that they are sailing today, so it will be a month or six weeks before they arrive in Lake Forest. They went to Haiti after their marriage on June 25 and from there they flew to Florida and then up the coast to New York, intending to come on to Chicago and be here by the end of this week.

Dr. and Mrs. James Ross Stevenson (he is president of the Princeton Theological seminary) are to spend the coming week-end with Mrs. Laflin.

Broken Leg Spoils Vacation.

A broken bone has caused a change in the vacation plans of Mrs. Hayden B. Harris, who had to give up the lake cruise she and Mr. Harris and Mrs. Townsend McKeever were planning (they had such a good time together in Mexico last winter that they decided to have another "threesome" vacation this summer) when she fell and broke her leg about two weeks ago.

Although she hopes to be able to come home from the hospital this week, she cannot plan to take any trips, for the leg will be in a cast for some weeks more. She fell in Highland Park on the steps of the house the Charles W. McNears have for the summer just as she was leaving there after a pleasant week-end, which explains why she is in the Highland Park hospital instead of in town nearer the Harris residence at 20 Cedar street.

Valeria, the Harrises' daughter, will be coming home from Camp Michigamme the end of this month and Huntington, the younger son, also will arrive at home about that time from the camp where he is spending the summer. Lincoln, the other son, who has finished school and is a business man, is on his vacation now in the east.

Tent City at Lake Geneva.

A tent colony has sprung up at Lake Geneva this week, I'm told, for some of the boys who are there for the inland lake regatta have put up tents in back of the Yacht club and there they are living during the week's festivities. Most of the trailers that brought the sail boats to the lake are parked near the club, too, and what with sails drying in front of the club all the time and the club house being the headquarters for the sailors in their white ducks and striped sweaters or "middies," the club presents a gay and colorful picture.

Everything but the duck trousers are discarded during a race, however, and the coats of tan or bronze those sailors have are the envy of all the "gals" who have been trying to achieve a fashionable sun tan. A. S. Gallun Jr., and J. C. Tripsiass of White Bear lake won the Class "E" race yesterday and Charles Edwards of Chicago in the O-Mi-O-Mi was the winner in the Class "C" race. H. N. Gifford's Little Smoke, in charge of John Perrigot, won the race for the President O. L. Schmidt trophy.

Last night the Frederick G. Wackers gave a large dinner at the Big Foot Country club preceding the dance for the yachtsmen.

"Tommy" Leiter to Sail Today.

"Tommy" Leiter is sailing today for Ireland to enjoy some of the famous Irish hunting, and his mother and sister, Mrs. Joseph Leiter and Miss Nancy Leiter, are in the east, presumably to see him off, but I am not sure about that last fact, for the English butler at the Leiter residence yesterday told me, "I cawn't suppose, and I cawn't think and I cawn't tell you anything more than that young Mr. Leiter is sailing today."

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas I. Underwood [Frances Coonley Rawson] have taken an apartment at 70 Cedar street and will move in from Glencoe in time for little Nancy Rawson to enter the Chicago Latin school. Mr. Underwood's mother, Mrs. Frederick W. Peterson, who has been summering in England while her husband traveled in the

Lyolene Designs Jacket Ensemble for Schoolgirl

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Lyolene designed the jacket ensemble shown in the accompanying sketch for the schoolgirl. This ensemble also offers ideas for making over an old dress and jacket to look like new for September.

The outfit is made of bright red ribbed jersey, a color and material that Paris likes for the écolière. Even French schoolgirls are a little tired of dark blue for fall. It has been too much worn here in Paris. The rusty red of autumn leaves is gayer and less banal.

The jacket of this suit is a plain hip length jacket, trimmed only with lines of tucks arranged in stair steps on the front and the sleeves as shown in the sketch. The new feature of this jacket is its square cut neckline, which shows the dimity blouse and collar of the dress. Any jacket can be made to look like new by cutting away its high neckline and making it like this. The belt of this jacket is of red jersey, fastened with the same kind of silver clip that closes the jacket and the sleeves.

The dress, shown in the background, is a short sleeved jumper frock of red jersey, worn over a long sleeved dimity blouse having a narrow standing collar and dimity bow tie. The neck of this dress is cut out in stair steps. A cloth belt holds the waistline and the skirt has a front panel with stair steps at the top and concealed knife plaits at the sides.

Tools Should Be Adapted to Use of Young Child

Blunt Edged Scissors for the Smallest.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

It's a far cry from not letting a small child use scissors at all to allowing him to handle any kind, like long shears, for instance, with sharp points, on the ground that he's got to learn some time. There's a happy medium between intelligent caution and fear inspiring precaution.

Have you found that medium? You can do so by watching your little boy or girl and by adding to this observation some knowledge.

Take scissors, for example. Small children love to cut, and they should be allowed to. They should start with blunt pointed scissors and large sheets of paper of a kind that's easy to cut—newspaper, or some kind of wrapping paper. They should not be denied scissors, but given the kind suited to their age and skill.

Or take tools, for another example. Some parents won't allow their young children to have hammers and nails because they've tried it, and tears and mashed fingers result, and the nails won't stand up long enough to be hammered, and unhappiness follows. Children adore pounding and hammering, but the tools must be suited to them from two standpoints—that of danger and that of suitability to their degree of deftness.

For example, blocks or planks of soft wood are preferrable because the nails go in easily. Some people at the beginning even make shallow holes in the wood so the nails will stand up. Sharp pointed wire nails of medium size usually work well. The hammer must be large enough so that it isn't too difficult for a small child to hit the nail on the head—yet it must not be too heavy.

Children can acquire a high degree of manual dexterity at an early age if they are given a chance to develop it.

And here is a caution. Don't think that because you want to protect the children or because they have not yet any skill that poor tools will do. It is both irritating and discouraging to try to cut with something that's meant to cut with but won't, or to saw with but won't. Plan the small children's manual adventures so that they meet with success.

And be patient with accidents and mistakes.

United Jewish Schools to Hold Education Day

Education day, planned as a demonstration of the work of 23 united Jewish religious schools of Chicago, will be celebrated on Sunday, Aug. 28, at Kolze's Electric park, 6353 Irving Park boulevard. About 4,000 pupils of the religious schools and 10,000 adults are expected to participate in the program, which will include picnicking, games, dramatics, recitals, speeches, dancing to the music of a double orchestra, and a special parade of the children.

Follies to Be Continued by Friend of Ziegfeld

New York, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Any doubt about the future of the Ziegfeld "Follies" was dispelled today by the announcement of A. C. Blumenthal that the revue would be continued. Blumenthal, a close friend of the late Florenz Ziegfeld, said he had completed arrangements with the producer's widow, Billie Burke, to continue the "Follies" in her interests. He said the next edition of the revue would go into rehearsal soon and would "follow the ideals of Mr. Ziegfeld in so far as is possible."

Free Ice Fund Facing Crisis; Gifts Needed

Children Make Only Gift of Day.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

If the outlook for THE TRIBUNE free ice fund were gloomy on Monday, the situation approached the hopeless stage yesterday. Heat swept down upon the city bringing distress to sickly babies in every quater of the city where ice is a prohibitive luxury.

It is hard for one who has access to an ice-filled refrigerator and the comforts of airy, well ventilated rooms, to visualize the discomfort in those back-street homes where a half dozen children must sleep in a single room, and spend their waking hours in the combined diningroom-kitchen-living-room. Sometimes there is only one room.

At any rate there is seldom an ice box, or any ice in it if there is. All of which means that the babies' milk supply is always in danger of souring. And sour milk means illness. Then too, the older children should have fresh vegetables. Vegetables can't be kept fresh when the thermometer is stepping into the '90s.

The one contribution reaching the Ice fund yesterday came from the children of the Hotel Windermere. These youngsters put on a minstrel show and made $35.51. In addition to the performance, Elaine James, 8 years old, was presented with a silver dollar for selling forty-four tickets. The runners-up were Anita Franz, 7 years old, who sold 22, and Jeanette Livingston, 4, who sold 15.

The receipts of the children's gift brought the ice fund total to $1,864.39. Last year $7,000 was expended for ice to keep the needy well. This year, although the need is much greater, only a fourth of that amount has reached the fund.

Gifts to the ice fund or to the Camp Algonquin fund may be sent to the cashier of THE TRIBUNE, Tribune Tower. The camp fund provides free vacations for tenement mothers and children.

Good morning!

All signs point to the probability that "westerns" will be much in vogue the coming season. For which—aren't you glad? There's no medicine for a weary mind like the wide open spaces, and more power to the screen, say I, for bringing 'em to us city folks!

That good looking, soft spoken Alabama boy, John Mack Brown, heroes for "The Vanishing Frontier"—which tells a tale of 1850 days in California.

You behold the state under military rule, the citizens unhappy and rebellious and passionately devoted to a Robin Hood guerrilla who, with his outlaw band, foils the soldiers at every turn. Kirby Tornell seeks, by his sensational exploits of one sort and another, to attract the attention of Washington to the condition of his people. This object he eventually achieves—but how, I'll never tell you.

Your suspicion that the presence of blonde Evalyn Knapp in the piece signifies romance is well founded. Also, if you, by any chance, think that Zasu Pitts is thereabouts to make you laugh you think aright. And—may I call your attention to Capt. Roger Kearney, who is none other than our old friend, Wallace MacDonald? He does nice work and has one of the most pleasing male voices yet recorded by the talkies.

Raymond Hatton and J. Farrell MacDonald perform ably as a pair of inseparables attached to Tornell's band. Their specialty is rough and ready humor and pathos. George Irving is stately and believable as the military governor. All roles, principal and minor, are well handled.

"The Vanishing Frontier" has been nicely directed, costumed, and staged, and features some grand scenery and hard riding.

The Roosevelt was comfortably filled at the second morning performance by adults and children who had taken advantage of the low entrance prices and were, apparently, having the time of their lives.

See you soon.

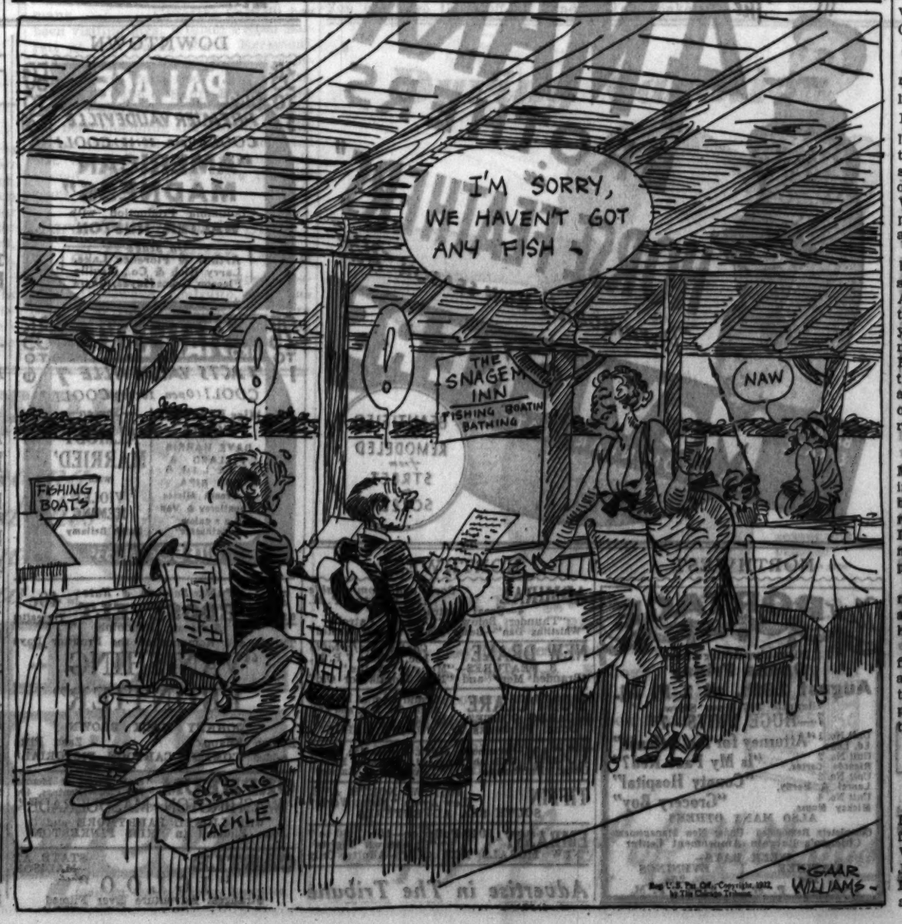
WOTTA LIFE! WOTTA LIFE!



I Like You So Much

BY MAY EDGINTON

SYNOPSIS.

Gold Franklyn calls Dr. Elverton, who has a surgery in a poor district of London, to attend her indolent, dependent, young half brother. The doctor offers to give Barney Pierce, well to do accident victim, a lift to his destination, and Pierce waits while the doctor makes his call. He catches a glimpse of the pretty creature who summoned the doctor. Pierce determines to help the plucky young orphan girl. The doctor is to sail the next week to New York and Havana on a leave, taking the ship doctor's place. Mrs. Doria Hathaway, a widow, friend of Pierce's, is to sail on the same boat. She wants a maid-companion for the Atlantic crossing. The doctor sends Gold to see Mrs. Hathaway and she gets the job. Pierce regrets putting Gold under the demoralising influence of the mercenary Doria. He decides to sail himself. David Dorrance, who wants to interest Pierce in a business deal, sails on the same boat. Gold is angered by Pierce's cynicism and distrust of women. Gip Aken, Gold's half brother, stows away on the boat. Pierce overhears Gip threatening Gold and, unknown to her, arranges to get Gip third class passage, and from New York sends him to his Texas lumber camp for a six months' try out. Gold accepts Dorrance's offer of a position as his secretary on the Havana trip. She also does some work for Pierce, under Dorrance's instructions, but refuses compensation from Pierce. Nevertheless, he places five hundred dollars to her account in the bank. Dorrance wants Gold to make a better appearance and gives her a special dress allowance. Dr. Elverton and Doria fall in love and become engaged.

INSTALLMENT XLV.

ALL LOST FOR LOVE.

For one moment Gold thought of her credit at the Chase National bank, of the unused check book she had thrown into a drawer of her bureau when it had arrived. Should she use it towards the crêpe gown, a white evening coat? A thousand times no!

"What's all the perplexity about?" Dorrance demanded.

"Life's difficult——"

She pulled herself together sharply. Dorrance meant business, he meant career, a future; she had guessed by now, she knew. In his hands, so good natured but so adept, lay power. She said: "I'll get the frock and coat today. How much?"

"What they cost," said Dorrance, turning away. "I'll trust you to make a bargain. I expect that of you, too."

And he turned back to her.

"The job in New York is worth a hundred a week to start with."

"A hundred dollars a week!" she thought, and she thought of Gip. Every day since she had been here she had written to him. No answer had come yet. She could not know if he were well or ill, on top of the world or down under. But money was power to save him, if he needed saving, and a hundred dollars a week was wealth unimagiable.

"So we shall be married?" said Elverton.

She was still reckoning the prospect when, walking slowly along the Prado, with its wealth of trees and shrubs and flowers, she met Elverton and Doria.

They stopped.

"Ah, you, my dear!" cried Doria, a little break of tender excitement in her voice.

"Isn't this wonderful, Miss Franklyn?" the doctor said. "Isn't it all you ever dreamed, and more? Aren't you glad that you and I came away from gray streets and hagridden people to find all this?"

"He forgets he is going back to the gray streets," said Doria in a soft, teasing voice.

"But they won't be gray," said Elverton, "nor hagridden any more."

Gold had barely begun to tell them—since did not the doctor, of all people, deserve the compliment of first news?—of her own impending good fortunes, she had barely begun to agree with them afresh on the enchantment of Havana, to speak of seeing them both at the party at the Plaza de Marianao tomorrow, she had no opportunity to mingle her own rather chaotic happiness with the happiness that they were evidently feeling before they smiled vaguely, gestured vaguely, passed on.

They went on slowly and came to the park. Elverton said, "Let us sit over there." They sat on a seat beneath a flowering tree which then seemed to them the most beautiful possible, even in this land of flowers.

"Yes," Elverton repeated, "I am going back to the gray streets, but you will be with me, shan't you, Doria?"

"I shall be with you," she answered tenderly, and her old self uttered in amazement, quietly, to her heart: "Is this I who speak, Doria?" But it was she who spoke, the new Doria whom this man had incomprehensibly found.

"So we shall be married?" said Elverton. "There are not many more days here, my darling. Shan't it be here if we can manage it, so that the voyage back will be honeymoon?"

"Yes, here," whispered Doria.

"Because you know, my darling, I shall never be able to give you such a fine honeymoon in any other conditions?"

"It would be a fine honeymoon anyhow," said the new Doria.

"I want you to promise me a lot of things," he said; and now it was that grave, keen look of his that he turned upon her—and she loved it—his gravity, his severity, so instinct with tenderness as she knew them to be.

"Go on," she sighed in delight.

"They're mainly summed up in: be a good girl."

"Ah, darling! But how?"

"You're never to borrow money from any man again except me. And I have none."

"So that'll be easy."

"You're not to run wild any more. You're not to flirt nor gamble any more."

"That's easy now."

"Is that a promise?"

"Yes."

"Solemn?"

"Solemn as I can be," she nodded.

"Doria!" he said sternly.

"I'm too happy to seem as solemn as I am," she murmured.

He melted.

"I'm so poor," he said. "So poor."

"Yes."

"You'll be poor. You are poor, aren't you, dear?"

"Yes, I'm very poor. I've really spent it nearly all now."

"My name is Burke," he said, "say it."

"Burke," she echoed, "a good name—fine name. Burke."

"You don't like work," he said, "but there will be such a lot of work to do for me. My work is among the poor and the hopeless and the helpless, Doria, and you'll have to do it with me. And the house is the ugliest house you will ever have lived in; it is only nice by comparison with its neighbors, which are far uglier. Grim streets and grim folk, hard work and hard weather and hard streets, a lot of help to give and little to receive; that'll be our life, Doria."

"No," said Doria, "our life will be when you come home and shut the door."

"It begins now, our life," said Elverton as they still sat there.

But it was interrupted for the evening, their life; a seaman on the Mercuria in harbor had a fall and broke some bones and sustained a bad concussion, so that that night Elverton was necessarily all doctor, on duty beside a very sick man.

Their life was new to Doria, the life of quiet wanderings in the city's byways, still proud with the insignia of old Spain, and the simple open air dinners-dansants which her lover's purse allowed and the wondering pleasure just in flowers and sun. So that when one of her more riotous acquaintances called her up that evening as she fretted, disappointed over Elverton's absence and bade her be gay she put on her most flamboyant gown and went. The dinner was at the Casino Nacionale. The wine flowed. She felt inordinately sentimental and inordinately gay by turns. Toasts were many. She told them all that she was to marry—a poor man, a love match, a great romance! Perhaps, because she knew that Elverton would not have liked that party, and the knowledge prevented her from being really happy, Doria said more, laughed more, risked more than she knew she should.

When Doria had gambled every cent she possessed in the world and lost it, and had borrowed from easy men only too ready to lend, she threw down her rings in a silly frightened endeavor to recoup herself and lost her rings.

Why was she frightened? Hadn't she done similarly a score and more times before? Didn't she love the spectacular? Weren't there about the tables all sorts of what she called "nice mariners" who would rescue her from her rocks; whose money had found its way to her hands and who really hardly expected to see it back? Couldn't she do this once more as she had often done before?

Not now! Not now! And suddenly she knew that she wanted no more to make of herself a lovely spectacle. And she knew that it was Elverton of whom she was desperately afraid. It wasn't the men about the tables—she was now equally afraid of taking help and of refusing it. She was afraid of Elverton's eyes. She went home.

Shrimp, Fresh or Canned, Is Delicious Treat

BY MARY MEADE.

Additional shrimp recipes may be obtained on request. Merely enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

A little note from Miss G. H. came today which interested me so much that I didn't dare leave it till Saturday's question box for fear my answer wouldn't leave room for any other questions.

The matter before the house is—shrimps. How to cook them, what to serve with them, and how to adapt them to other dishes. For Miss G. H. writes from Port Orange, Fla., where delicious shrimps, crabs, and fish can be caught, literally, right at one's back door. Says Miss G. H.: "The circulation of THE TRIBUNE is so general that even though we can't have fresh shrimp in the middle west as inexpensively and plentifully as we do at the coasts, I feel positive hundreds of women would welcome an article of this kind, and those who have to use shrimp and crab canned would also benefit by it."

Shrimps—to plunge right in—are really one member of the crustacean or shell backed family, which includes crabs, lobsters, crawfish, and other mainly aquatic animals. Along with their larger relatives, the prawns, these pink, meaty fellows are to be found in large numbers on all our coasts and in many inland waters. While their flavor is more delicate, shrimps may be used in practically any recipe calling for lobster or crab meat, and for the lucky housewife who can pick them up nearby and has the patience to shell them, hosts of delicious treats are in store. Canned shrimp may be used instead of fresh in any of the following recipes. After taking it from the can wash in slightly salted water, drain, and air before serving.

To cook shrimps, wash but do not remove the shells. Plunge into boiling salted water and cook for from five to ten minutes, depending on the size. Remove from the water and allow cold water to run over them, then remove the shells, heads, and the black vein down the back with a sharp pointed knife.

As a supporting cast for fish shrimps are ideal. Marinate them an hour in French dressing as soon as they are cooked. Then serve as a garnish for boiled trout, pickerel, or whitefish Or shrimps, cooked, chopped and added to a carefully flavored sauce, make a delicious accompaniment for any fried fish.

CURRIED SHRIMP.

Make a sauce of 4 tablespoons of flour, 4 of butter, 1 teaspoon salt, dash of cayenne, 1 teaspoon curry powder, and 1½ cups scalded milk. When thick season with ½ cup catsup and stir in 1½ to 2 cups whole shrimps. Let heat through and serve on hot cooked rice. Sprinkle with 2 tablespoons minced parsley and 1 tablespoon chopped pimiento peppers.

SHRIMP WITH RICE TIMBALES.

Chop two cups of shrimp in small pieces and sauté with a little chopped onion in ¼ cup fat. When browned sprinkle in 3 tablespoons of flour and stir in carefully 2 cups of hot milk. Season with salt, pepper, and 1 teaspoon of curry powder. Cook till thick, then add 1 tablespoon of lemon juice. Serve over baked rice timbales made by pressing seasoned, cooked rice into greased timbale molds and baking 10 minutes in a hot oven. Turn out and serve.

SHRIMP BISQUE.

Shrimp bisque is made like a cream soup, with rich milk, a seasoning of tabasco sauce, and a beaten whole egg whipped in just before serving. The shrimp should be cut in quite small pieces and heated with the bisque in the last 10 minutes' cooking. Serve hot with toasted croutons.

Or for a change use shrimps, egg bread crumbs, and seasoning as stuffing for baked green peppers. Creamed shrimps cut up and seasoned with peppery sauce do delicious things to slices of buttered toast and add a most unusual touch to cooked macaroni.

SHRIMP PERFECTION SALAD.

2 cups boiled shrimps.
3 hard cooked eggs.
1 tablespoon lemon juice.
¼ teaspoon salt.
Dash paprika.
2 tablespoons chopped sweet pickles.
1 tablespoon melted, cooled butter.
1 tablespoon salad oil.
1 cup chopped cabbage or celery.

Chill the prepared shrimps. Mash the egg yolks till mealy and beat in the seasoning, lemon juice, butter, and oil. Add the chopped cabbage or celery and the pickles, together with the finely chopped egg whites, to the shrimps and place in crisp lettuce cups. Add the dressing and chill again before serving.

Edwin F. Goldman Get Baton Used by Famous Sousa

New York, Aug. 16.—[Special.]—Edwin Franko Goldman, the bandmaster, has received from Mrs. John Philip Sousa, widow of the famous band leader and march composer, the baton used in all his concerts.

Mrs. Sousa made the presentation at the Goldman band concert in the Central park mall "in remembrance of the great esteem and deep admiration which my husband held for you."

Mrs. Sousa expressed the hope that "it will lead you to continued and greater success."

Country Sale Is Joyful Time for Collector

Offers Rare Bargains in Antiques.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

IT is hard to predict just what the expressman will deliver at Mrs. Harry Alvin Parkin's door in Highland Park when she returns the end of this month from a summer in upper Michigan. It may be another walnut bed, a rush bottom chair, or a barrel of old fashioned blown glass.

At least there is sure to be a delivery. For Mrs. Parkin never completes a summer without visiting a half dozen old style country auctions. It is something of a seasonal disturbance with her, just as with many another person, recurring regularly as spring and fall fulfill their appointed rounds.

As the result of former visits to country sales Mrs. Parkin has acquired two handsome walnut beds and a number of chairs that are early American originals. One of the chairs, fashioned with a leather woven seat, is reputed to have been used in Abraham Lincoln's home, Mrs. Parkin's daughter, Mrs. William Lewis Winters, told me the other day.

Another auction addict is Mrs. Thatcher Hoyt, who has plenty of opportunity to look up a Hudson plate or a piece of milk glass, "summering" as she does in New England in a house that has belonged to the Hoyt family for at least 100 years. This part of the country seems the best setting for "auctioning," especially the hill farms in Vermont.

I remember how the Palfrey family of Boston, of tennis fame, used to enjoy hunting up country sales at the first flush of autumn. One in particular. It was on a Vermont farm early in September. There was a haze over the hillside and a smell of wood smoke in the air.

And the crowd was a true parade of democracy, everyone from the society matron who arrived in a liveried motor to the roughest farmer out to get another work horse. The auctioneer was a commanding personality with a miraculous capacity for continued oration and an instantaneous eye for the half formed bid. Mounted on an inverted pickle tub, he discoursed of this and that and sold it for what he could.

There was one man, I remember, who told how he had slipped away, as though for golf, and scurried up country instead for the sale. His favorite form of amusement, he explained, was assembling a wagon load of plunder for a paltry three dollars. His family, however, had threatened to change residence if he didn't do something about the scrambled centuries scattered through the house and overflowing into the cellar.

Nevertheless he was at it again. And this time the "plunder" was a couple of chairs of a startling green complexion but with a comfortable "fit" that was certainly the secret wisdom of antiquity. Almost everything sold that day had a history—and how could it be otherwise, with pieces that had seen a century and more drift by in one house with one family?

Mingled with the comedy of a country sale, there is usually a dim background of tragedy. Some one has died, the integrity of long custom is broken, or else the farm has failed and the family must follow the younger members to the city. The auction takes the form of the obsequies, the last rites, as it were.

And as a matter of fact it may not be so many years hence that there will be last rites for the country sale itself. For already you must go far afield to find those of a good old fashioned character. They have retreated from the big towns and the concrete highways. The auctions of the city are only their third or fourth cousins and as unlike their country ancestors as the tango is unlike the old fashioned barn dance.

So if you will have both comedy and drama and a piece or two worth several times its cost, hie yourself into the country this month or next and to the country sale.

HeadGardener Acts as Host for His Studio

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 16.—G. K. Ohara, who comes from an island half way around the world, from the island his name reminds you of, had the big day of his life yesterday.

Ohara is head gardener at the Fox motion picture studios, and there is only one thing he adores more than his cherished shrubs, flowers, and trees—and that is his beloved Japan. There is only one hero whom Ohara idolizes above Winfield R. Sheehan, head of the Fox studio, and that hero is his emperor.

Last Saturday Sheehan, who always makes room in the Fox studio budget for tens of thousands of dollars more for gardening expenses than any other studio, summoned Ohara and told him that the Fox studios had set aside a day for the entertainment of the combined Japanese Olympic athletes—men and women, barons and colonels and school boys—and that it would be up to G. K. Ohara to act as the host, representing the studio.

The proud day was yesterday. One hundred and fifty Japanese gentlemen and ladies—officers, and noblemen, swimmers, wrestlers, and horsemen came forward to be presented to the studio's notables, and lo, an exalted gardener led all the rest.

Fox is trying to make a real all-star film out of the screen adaptation of the Phil Strong best seller, "State Fair," and to this end is angling for Marie Dressler and Wally Beery to add to a cast already ornamented by Will Rogers, Janet Gaynor, Louise Dresser, Sally Eilers, and Phillips Holmes. Miss Dressler and Beery are the screen property of MGM, a rival studio.

Dorothy Wilson, the stenographer who turned into a film star in her first picture on the RKO lot, has been invited to be queen of Salt Lake City's third annual air rodeo, Aug. 28.

There's a feminine leading rôle open in Fox's "Broadway Bad," because, after interviewing 37 candidates, Hamilton McFadden, the director, still hasn't been able to find "a girl who's a combination of Helen Hayes, Jeanne Eagels, and Joan Crawford, with legs and figure like Dorothy Mackaill, but a good voice for singing blues." He ought to hire the follies and use a trick camera to make one girl out of the chorus.

George Palmer Putnam, Amelia Earhart's husband, is one of the four members of the Paramount's studios "story board." This board sifts, culls and recommends stories for the studio to make. There never has been a complete rejection of Paramount's proffer to use Miss Earhart as an actress in an aviation story.

Marian Douglas well known as an actress in the silent days, is seriously ill with pneumonia. She is Mrs. Al. Rogell, wife of the director.

Orphans and Old Folks Will Enjoy Auto Picnic Today

More than 1,000 automobiles and several motor coaches will carry 3,500 orphans and old folks to Lincoln park today for their annual outing sponsored by the Orphans' Automobile Day association. Thirty-two institutions will be represented at the picnic.

A vaudeville show will run continuously from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. and there will be toys for the children, refreshments and knicknacks for the older folks. Funds to finance the outing were raised by private subscription. The groups responsible for the play day are the Chicago Automobile Trade association, Automobile Club of Illinois, Chicago Motor club, Chicago Motor Liverymen's association, South Central association and the Woodlawn Business Men's association.

Mrs. Laflin to Entertain at Musical

Forty Are Invited to Lake Forest Home.

Scandinavian countries, will return next month and open her residence at Ann Arbor.

For the first time in many years the Curtis N. Kimballs and their daughter, Miss Elisabeth Kimball, are staying at home for the entire summer and finding their estate, Hadley Hall, on Green Bay road in Highland Park, an attractive warm weather residence.

Mrs. John Mead Montgomery of Evanston left on Monday for Overbrook, Philadelphia, to be with her mother, who is recovering from an operation.

Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Mason [Elizabeth Louderback], who have been residing with the Henry E. Masons in Highland Park for a year, have taken a house in Glencoe.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherwood Platt [Dorothy Pickard] are busy superintending the details of the completion of their new house in Evanston. Junior leaguers are hoping that dilatory carpenters and decorators will not prevent Mrs. Platt from appearing in the Children's theater production in the fall, as she is a valued member of the players group.

Oakleigh Thorne Lewis, husband of Bertha Palmer, yesterday received formal court permission in Santa Barbara, Cal., to change his name to Oakleigh Lewis Thorne.

Mrs. John Busey of Lynchburg, Va., is visiting her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William Wade Hinshaw Jr., in Highland Park. Mrs. Busey has many friends on the north shore who are giving little luncheons and teas for her.

Marjorie James to Be Bride.

Invitations have been received by Chicago relatives and friends for the wedding of Miss Marjorie James, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Lyman James of 164 East 68th street, New York, and Biddeford Pool, Me., to Edwin Pendleton Stevens, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Parker Stevens of 834 Fifth avenue, New York, and Greenwich, Conn., on Saturday, Sept. 3, at 4 o'clock in St. Martin's in the Field, Biddeford Pool.

Following the ceremony there will be a reception at the residence of the bride's parents. Mr. James is related to the Marshall Field family. All the attendants will be easterners. Miss James is a graduate of Miss Porter's school at Farmington and made her début in the fall of 1928. Mr. Stevens is a graduate of the Hotchkiss school and of Princeton, class of 1931. He is now at the Yale law school.

Miss Bertha Floy Mather, daughter of Mrs. Stephen Tyng Mather of Darien, Conn., and Chicago, and the late Mr. Mather, was married to Edward Reynolds McPherson Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward R. McPherson of Harrisburg, Pa., yesterday at the old home of the Mather family in Darien. Only relatives and intimate friends were present at the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. Clarence G. Silvester, a cousin of the bride and rector of St. Michael's Episcopal church at Brattleboro, Vt.

Wedding Held on Porch.

The wedding took place on the porch overlooking the garden. The bride wore a gown of white organdie with fitted bodice, long full skirt and long tight sleeves. Her hat was of white straw, trimmed with a bow and halo of organdie. Her only jewelry was a seed pearl pendant and brooch worn by her grandmother, the late Mrs. James Floy, at her wedding.

Miss Harriet Henderson Gilbert of Harrisburg, gowned in blue organdie, attended the bride, and John W. McPherson was his twin brother's best man. The bride was graduated from the University High school in Chicago, from Vassar college and from the Cambridge School of Domestic Architecture and Landscape Architecture.

Mr. McPherson attended Phillips Exeter and was graduated from Harvard college in 1929. At present he is a student at the Cornell law school and he and his bride will be at home in Ithaca, N. Y. after a wedding trip to the Pacific coast.

News from the Berkshires—Dr. and Mrs. Robert Metz are giving a large dinner party tonight for their house guests, Dr. and Mrs. Kurt Ossendorff of Chicago, formerly of Baden, Germany. . . . Countess Cardelli has been visiting Mrs. William Felton Barrett at Sky Farm, North Egremont, and is now motoring with her to Provincetown on Cape Cod. . . . Mrs. Walter F. Cobb of Santa Barbara [the former Carolyn Fish of Chicago], who has been splending the summer at the Lenox club at Lenox, Mass., departed last week for a three months' trip abroad. Mrs. Cobb is more than 80 years old.

Lipsticks Made for Every Type of Complexion

They Do Wonders for the Teeth 'n' Tan.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

If the cosmetic trade survived the depression better than other lines of business, it may be because it's one trade ever on the alert for new features.

Take the lipstick feature. Of course, we've always had lipstick in different shades. We's had strawberry, raspberry, orange reds, and so on. But now lipstick shades are being worked out for different types of skin. And we need that. We need to be guided to the right lipstick for the individual skin. And for better teeth coloring.

It's surprising how a shade of lipstick can alter the complexion of the teeth. I saw the change the other day in a girl who transferred from a lipstick of cardinal red to one of a dark red hue. And her teeth looked several shades whiter. Powder will do this, too, if you notice. But you see the difference in the teeth coloring when you get a coat of tan on. Or, on the other hand, when you look all washed up and colorless.

But the lipstick shades worked out for different skins fall into three classes, roughly. There are clear reds for the creamy or rachel skin. There are yellow tinged reds for the golden or sun tanned skins. And for the white or olive skins, blue tinged reds. Then, in these three classifications you'll find shades varying in tone depth to suit the type of skin for which it is intended.

If you come back from vacation and seashore with an entirely different complexion from the one before you went away, you'd better see if your makeup doesn't need stock taking. You can save the stuff on hand for when you're bleached out again. But in the meantime, till the tan fades, try for the complementary tones.

And, as pointed out before, if your summer acquired complexion has made your eyes look funny, you can help here with an investigation of eye makeup.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Aug. 16.—[Special.]—The chargé d'affaires of Great Britain, F. D. G. Osborne, who has as his guest in his Twenty-fourth street home the British ambassador to Chile, Sir Henry Getty Chilton, had a small company at dinner tonight. The ambassador has many friends in Washington, made during his several stations here. He was last here as counsel of the embassy. Lady Chilton and their daughters are guests of her father, the former American ambassador to Italy, Thomas L. O'Brien, in his Grand Rapids home.

Gen. and Mrs. John A. Johnston, who are spending a short time in their apartment here, were the dinner guests last night of the postmaster general and Mrs. Walter F. Brown at Grey's Hill inn, across the river in Virginia.

The banquet of the Catholic Daughters of America, who are holding their annual conference here this week, was given tonight in the Chinese room of the Mayflower hotel. Miss Mary C. Boland, chairman of the Washington committee, gave the address of welcome. The Rt. Rev. William J. Hafey, bishop of Raleigh, N. C., national chaplain, pronounced the invocation, and grace was said by the Rev. Francis X. Cavanaugh, chaplain of the District court.

Friends Advise Divorce; Wife Listens to Them

Doris Speaks Frankly on Gossip Mongers.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Her friends tell her she ought to divorce her husband. They tell her stories about him, things they've seen him doing, things they've heard him say. They tell her if they were in her place they wouldn't take his kind of treatment, etc., etc.

"Should I listen to these friends? In some things my husband isn't so bad. In others, I have a large sized kick coming! I hate the idea of divorcing him on account of my little girl!"

All right, if you hate the idea of divorcing your man on account of the little girl, why listen to what the friends say?

Why lay yourself open to attacks on your husband? Who brings up the subject? Do you start confiding to said friends your grievances about your husband? If so, why do that if you honestly don't want to wind up in Reno?

It's no trouble, you know, to find "friends" eager and anxious to goad you on to a separation. Not that they are friends or give a continental what you do with your life. The divorce idea provides them an outlet for emotions of their own they wish to indulge. They're getting a kick out of your matrimonial "drama."

They're not interested in your youngsters' future welfare. They're not interested in yours. But they like the drama you supply. And so they egg you on to revelations and more revelations about the "villain" you married.

You fall down on the great fundamental of any partnership, which is loyalty. That is the first quality needed to keep marriage together. It's the first quality to crash before the divorce.

Even though you were not getting along so well with your husband, you'd be a more respected woman were you to keep your counsel to yourself. You wouldn't have so many of those magpie friends—but the friends you'd have would be better for your domestic morale.

Your kind of friends would turn to your husband just as quickly did he provide the occasions of drama they love. Don't flatter yourself that those friends have your best interests at heart. They haven't.

Many Letters Prove Interest in Marx Film

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

The huge number of letters I've been receiving every morning are good evidence that the four Marx brothers have a large following among the boys and girls in and around Chicago. And there's every good reason for it, for this family of comedians rank among the funniest and most entertaining in the history of moviedom.

One can't listen to that Groucho very long without having a few good, healthy laughs, for every sentence he utters is dotted with puns and jokes and witticisms. They're the kind you want to remember, too, but there are always so many of them you can't possibly do it.

And one has only to look at Harpo, for he has quite the same effect on you. He never talks but his rolling eyes and his facial expressions convey meanings that one couldn't get over with a mere tongue.

Chico's humor is still another kind and paired with Groucho for a few minutes of dialogue he is enough to send you into paroxysms of laughters. He has a way of playing the piano that's a style all his own and a way of getting his words twisted that's equally original.

Such a collection of comedians in a picture as funny as "Horsefeathers" surely sounds like the best kind of party to me and if you'd like to see it at the Publix-Balaban and Katz's McVicker's theater on Thursday, Aug. 25, you should write me a letter telling me so. The letters must be in tomorrow morning, too, so that I can read them and select my guests.

Remember, every one of you is eligible, the only requirement being that you like a good time. Be sure that your name and address are plainly written in your letter and that it includes your age. Just send it to Sally Joy Brown, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago.

Business Picks Up at Outdoor Show of Chicago Artists

Like the stock market, the outdoor arts fair in Grant park showed rises yesterday. The fair is being held south of Van Buren street.

Two hundred and eighteen canvases and works of sculpture were sold to the public, bringing in $919.25 for the artists. The sales to date amount to $12,980.60. Among yesterday's purchasers was Dr. Ben L. Reitman, friend of the hobo, who paid $60 for a painting of a family group by Jan Witenberg.

Only today and tomorrow remain for those who wish to buy local works of art and help out needy artists.

RUSSIA ASSAILS U. S. FOR REFUSAL TO RECOGNIZE HER

Insists American Policy Holds Up Recovery.

MOSCOW, Aug. 16.—(AP)—The attack on the United States for refusing to recognize soviet Russia was revived today by Isvestia, the government organ, which declared that nonrecognition hurt America economically and increases the danger of world conflict.

The American political régime, the newspaper asserted, is "old and decomposed" because the Washington government refuses to recognize Moscow.

P. Lapinsky, writer of the attack, was vague and obscure about the contention that the possibility of world conflict was increased but his article reflected the official disappointment here that both the major political parties of the United States ignored the recognition question in their platforms.

"U. S. Régime Old and Decomposed."

"The fact that both dominating parties decided not to state the question of recognition openly and clearly, and the general confusion surrounding it, show not only an immovable class irreconcilability toward the establishment of normal relations but also the instability of United States policy," the article said.

"The main source of this policy lies in the fact that its political régime is old and decomposed. One of the elements in the great reduction of the United States trade balance is the decrease in American export to the U. S. S. R.

"The importance of economic relations with the U. S. S. R. lies not in the past or the present, but in the future, because the soviet economic strength is increasing every year.

Points to War Danger.

"Only children could contend that recovery from the depression is possible without participation by one-sixth of the globe. A policy ignoring this fact shows lack of vitality.

"Apart from the economic factor, events in the far east show how dangerous conflicts are in the present period and that in our epoch there can be no major conflict without the whole world being involved. Secretary of State Stimson himself confirmed this truth.

"Those who under such conditions are showing a tendency to continue to surround the recognition question with confusion increase the possibility of such conflict and risk being involved in it.

Cites Economic Relations.

"When the U. S. S. R. is a participant in the Kellogg pact, when it takes part in international conferences with the United States, and when the U. S. S. R. has various economic relations with the United States the question of recognition becomes one of lifeless Byzantine etiquette and contemporary life sooner or later will mock at this etiquette.

"The future will show who is to gain by the United States' policy. Will it be stupid class instinct or sober thought brought by the crisis and its consequences?"

VILLAGE HEADS RUN SPEED TRAP, SAYS ATTORNEY

The village authorities of Wooddale were accused yesterday of conspiracy to extort money from the motoring public through the operation of speed traps. The charge was made by Attorney Joseph H. Braun, representing the Chicago Motor club.

Attorney Braun's charge followed an announcement by the village board that James Carroll, Wooddale's one man police force, had been reappointed for another thirty days and that as many more policemen as needed would be appointed. A petition signed by more than half of the village residents had asked Carroll's removal after the motor club had obtained the dismissal of six alleged speeders in a row.

Attorney Braun said if it became necessary he would file a suit for damages against the officials, charging conspiracy. He cited the case of James P. Haynes, vice president of the Association of Commerce, who testified he was arrested while driving 25 miles an hour and was discharged.

Eight Seized by Police for Quiz on Robberies

Seven men and one woman were arrested early this morning by Warren avenue police and are to be held for investigation in connection with robberies. One of the men, Joe Howard, 24 years old, was carrying three revolvers. Howard, Robert Thomas, 18, of Libertyville, and Robert Johnson, 28, of South Bend, were seized in an automobile at Jackson and Oakley boulevards by Lieut. Patrick Knox and Detectives Frank Brady and John Sweeney. Later the policemen went to 1652 Jackson boulevard, and arrested Mrs. Ruth Woods, 25 years old. John Sundstrom, 22, of Waukegan, and Carl Voss, Reynold Larson and Leo Bradley, all of Libertyville.

Hushka's Insurance Policy Returned to His Ex-Wife

Mrs. Frances Krivenko, 2015 North Winchester avenue, divorced wife of William Hushka, Chicago veteran who was slain in the bonus rioting in Washington, yesterday had the court dismiss a charge of larceny against the brother of her former husband, Charles Hushka, 48 years old, 2316 West 23d place. She told Judge Leon Edelman that Charles had returned a $2,000 life insurance policy of his dead brother, which named her beneficiary. She said the money would be used to support the slain veteran's daughter, Lauretta, 12 years old.

Orangemen's Hall Burned by Incendiaries in Ulster

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, Aug. 16.—(AP)—The Allstagh Orangemen's hall near Armagh City was burned this morning. Explosives and gasoline were used. The Orange hall at Caledon, on the Armagh-Tyrone border, was garrisoned Sunday night to prevent a Hibernian demonstration in the village yesterday. The Orangemen planned to drown out the Hibernians' speeches by beating on huge drums.

INDICT THREE BONUS MARCHERS AS RIOTERS; ONE IS A CHICAGOAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 16.—[Special.]—Three former members of the bonus army were indicted today by the District of Columbia grand jury for their alleged part in the July 28 riots which resulted in the calling out of troops by President Hoover and the eviction of the bonus marchers from the capital.

One of the three men indicted, Bernard McCoy, is a Chicagoan. The other two are John O. Olson, Valparaiso, Neb., and Broadus Faulkner of Kentucky.

The most serious charge was voted against McCoy, who was indicted for assault with intent to kill Policeman James E. Scott, who was struck on the head with a brick and still is in the hospital. Olson is accused of attacking Policeman Richard O. Bankert with a table leg, and Faulkner of attacking Policeman John E. Winters with a brick.

All three assaults occurred during the first part of the riots when the District police were seeking to clear the bonus veterans from partially dismantled buildings along Pennsylvania avenue. It was this earlier rioting that led to the dispatch of troops.

The indictments are the outcome of President Hoover's order to Attorney General Mitchell to see that the riots were investigated and the leaders brought to justice.

The three defendants are in the District jail. Their trials are expected to be held in October.

LAXITY BLAMED FOR INCREASE IN TRAFFIC DEATHS

Safety Board Formed to Advise Police.

A permanent commission which will advise Police Commissioner Allman on matters of traffic safety and conduct a sustained campaign to reduce motor fatalities in Chicago was organized yesterday at a meeting in Commissioner Allman's office.

Elmer Stevens, loop merchant, was appointed chairman of the body, which is called the commission on traffic enforcement and education. A. A. Sprague, commissioner of public works, was named vice chairman and George T. Travers of the Chicago Safety council, secretary.

Statistics Are Studied.

In support of the contention made by several of those present that enforcement of traffic rules would cut motor fatalities at least 25 per cent, statistics for the last four years on arrests and convictions for traffic violations were made public. The statistics showed that an increase in the number of arrests and convictions was reflected in a lower motor death rate in the city and a decrease in arrests and convictions was accompanied by increased fatalities.

The best record of the four years was in 1929. In that year Capt. William Russell, then police commissioner, conducted a campaign against traffic violations with the result that the number of motor fatalities during the year, 803, was the lowest during the quadrennium covered by the statistics.

Tabulation Made Public.

The figures for the four years follow:

Year.	Deaths.	Arrests.	Convictions.
1928	918	57,210	46,574
1929	803	126,708	118,132
1930	935	89,778	80,747
1931	978	66,457	50,360

Members of the new commission were given, as an illustration of present lax observance of traffic rules, the results of a survey conducted July 29 at Kedzie avenue and 24th street, where there is a stop sign for a through street. Between 7 and 10 a. m., the observers found, 187 motorists drove past the stop sign without halting as required by law, and from 2 to 6 p. m. they counted 295 violations.

During the present year approximately 58 per cent of all traffic accidents took place at street intersections, many of them because drivers failed to observe stop signs. From Jan. 1 to July 31 there were 8,143 accidents, of which 4,691 were at intersections. The accidents cost 513 deaths and 9,257 persons were injured.

CHILE APPOINTS BANK PRESIDENT AS FINANCE CHIEF

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Chile, Aug. 16.—Ernesto Barros Jarpa, president of the mortgage bank, was appointed minister of finance today. Stock exchange prices went up and banking circles were optimistic that the project to suppress all mortgages will be abandoned. It was the delay in getting this project passed which was the motive for the resignation of Enrique Zanartu from the finance post. Other measures to create a rebate in interest and an increase in the circulation of paper money are being proposed.

Gone 5 Days; $24,000 in Gems in Bureau Stolen

New York, Aug. 16.—[Special.]—Returning to her apartment at 1049 Park avenue after a five day absence, Mrs. Pearl S. Lapey discovered today that jewelry she had left in a bureau drawer had disappeared. She told the police the value of the jewels was $24,000. There were no marks on doors or windows to indicate forcible entry.

DRAMATIC FINISH TO GRIMM DAY BATTLE SETS 32,000 WILD

Rally Sweeps Aside Margin Piled Up on Warneke.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The first place Cubs put on that newly revived version of the old never say die spirit yesterday afternoon for as glorious a victory as the 32,000 fans present ever will see. Trailing the Boston Braves, 3 to 0, with one down in the ninth and with a record of two harmless singles off Ed Brandt, they broke loose. Before the inning was over the Cubs were the victors, 4 to 3.

Those 32,000 fans had come to celebrate Charley Grimm day. But as the day wore on those celebrants were thinking more and more that the festival was going to be a flop.

They had seen Bill Jurges make a harmless single in the third and Riggs Stephenson knock an equally harmless single in the seventh. That was the Cub attack—and a pretty lean diet for 32,000 pennant hungry bugs.

Braves Abuse Warneke.

The disappointment in the Cubs' offensive became something more than disappointment when the Braves' eighth came along. The way they treated Lon Warneke in that eighth was nothing short of sinful.

Up until that time the Braves had done little more than the Cubs in the way of attack. Only seven men had been on base, five of them on singles, one on the only base on balls which Warneke gave, and another on Herman's error. Only one man had reached third base and one of the other two men to reach second base had gone down in a double play. The brilliance of Warneke's pitching up to the opening of that eighth inning made what followed all the more depressing for the moment.

Triple Is Damaging Blow.

Urbanski and Jordan hit successive singles with one out and scored the first two runs of the game on Berger's enormous triple to the scoreboard. Holland's single scored Berger and Randy Moore's single put Holland on third. Still only one out. Bud Tinning came in to pitch and then Demaree and Hartnett put on a whale of a double play, not that it seemed to make much difference at the time. Later, of course, the double play was recalled as a most vital maneuver. Demaree made a fine running catch of Knothe's fly to left center and Holland tried to score after the catch. Demaree caught him at the plate with a perfect throw to Hartnett.

You know how the fans felt when the Cubs in the eighth failed to add to their two hit record against Brandt. Grimm, Hartnett and Jurges were the easiest outs imaginable.

Tinning Fans Two.

Bud Tinning, never suspecting he was to be the game's winning pitcher, bore down in the first of the ninth. He struck out Hargrave, who had made two hits off Warneke. Brandt tapped to Herman. Then Bud fanned Maranville.

Then the big ninth and the first straw hat shower of the year. Moreover, no ladies' day crowd made half as much noise as those paying customers yelled out.

After Hemsley, batting for Tinning, had been thrown out by Knothe, Bill Herman doubled to left. The 32,000 didn't expect the hit to mean much, but even one extra base hit against Brandt was something to yell about. So the fans yelled and a half dozen hats sailed onto the field. English doubled, scoring Herman. It wouldn't be a shutout. More cheering and 20 straw hats sailed onto the field.

Cuyler Joins in Rally.

Up came Cuyler. Kiki hadn't made a hit in six days. Anybody could figure Ki was due. He cracked the third successive double off Brandt. The hit scored English and put Cuyler out there with the tying run and two putouts to go. In came Cantwell to relieve the melted hero.

Stephenson took a strike that wasn't exactly to his taste. Then he slammed a single to center, right through the pitcher. In came Cuyler with the tying run.

The umpires had to stop the game while groundkeepers and ushers picked up the straw hats.

Johnny Moore batted for Demaree against the right handed Cantwell. He hit the first pitch for a single to center, Stephenson stopping at second. Charley Grimm day and Charley Grimm up. A nice spot for some

How Braves Got Those 3 Runs and That Cub Rally

All the runs in the Cubs-Braves game yesterday were scored in two innings. Here are the details:

BRAVES' EIGHTH.

Maranville flied to Demaree. Urbanski singled to right for the sixth hit off Warneke. Jordan singled to right and scored with Urbanski when Berger tripled to the score board. Holland singled to left, scoring Berger. R. Moore singled to left, putting Holland on third. Tinning relieved Warneke. Knothe flied to Demaree and Holland was doubled at the plate on a perfect throw to Hartnett. Three runs, five hits.

CUBS' NINTH.

Hemsley, batting for Tinning, was thrown out by Knothe. Herman doubled to left for the Cubs' third hit off Brandt. English doubled to center, scoring Herman. Cuyler doubled to left and English trotted in. Cantwell replaced Brandt. Stephenson singled to center, scoring Cuyler with the tying run. J. Moore batted for Demaree and singled to center, Stephenson stopping at second. Grimm popped to Knothe for the second out. Urbanski fumbled Hartnett's grounder and the bases were full. Jurges knocked the ball over Berger's head, driving Stephenson in with the winning run. Technically Judges' hit was a single, but normally it would have been a triple at least. Four runs, six hits, one error.

Notes of the Cubs

Up until yesterday Kiki Cuyler hadn't made a hit since the one he knocked in New York on Aug. 10. But all was forgiven in that big ninth inning yesterday when he doubled to score English and put the Cubs' tying run on second base.

There wasn't the semblance of a scratch or lucky hit in the six hit barrage the Cubs laid down in the ninth. Not a fielder came close to any one of them.

Charley Root will go out after another one this afternoon. He will be opposed by Bob Brown or Huck Betts, both very tough for the Cubs.

The Cubs have won 10 out of 14 from the Braves this season.

Lon Warneke has been lucky in his last two starts in that the Cubs have rallied after he left the game in arrears, thus saving him from adding to his five losses.

Urbanski's fumble made it possible for the Cubs to win in the ninth, but the score was tied before Billy did his booting act. The error made Tinning the winning pitcher. Otherwise Bob Smith would have been the pitcher of record had the game gone into the tenth inning.

In the Grimm festivities before the game Charley was presented with a ton of flowers, silverware, and a platinum watch. The silverware was the gift of Ed Kavanaugh, Frank Ferrell, Hary Kohl, and Ray De Long. The watch was presented by Paul Gerber, Walter Jordan, and Pat Pieper.

After the two previous demonstrations in his honor—in Philadelphia and St. Louis—Grimm was a fielding and batting star. Apparently his emotions bowled him over yesterday. He fielded all right, but was helpless at the plate.

Jack Bramhall's Cub band was on hand with some snappy new numbers. The tuba player stayed right in there until the big doings in the ninth. Then he lost his horn.

The scoreboard fans had a tough time deciding on whom they were for in the Pirate-Dodgers clash. Many who for six weeks have been rooting against the Pirates were said to have cheered when the scoreboard man posted a big "4" for the Pirates after seven innings of goose eggs.

All of the straw hats tossed away were sailors. Apparently the owners of more expensive Panamas are going to wait a while to see how times proceed before they let enthusiasm carry them away.

WEEPEASIES GET MANY A GOOD CRY FOR THEMSELVES AS OLYMPICS END

Turning Out the Gas Is a Very Touching Sight.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 16.—I am afraid we must have seemed a lot of weepeasies, carrying on so over some sad singing, flag waving, and bugle music at the closing episode of the Olympic games, for there was a general sniffling and eye dabbing among those present when the man shut off the gas and turned out the Olympic flame.

Youth has been mentioned as the cause of it all. Youth and the envy and regret of those who are no longer youthful. But if that were all then our people would always be bursting into tears on passing the junior high school.

The new American crush on the Japanese undoubtedly figured in the emotional breakdown, for the Japanese had been remarkably fine athletes and sportsmen and charming people throughout the meet and I apprehend that from now on, for a time, the almond eyes and the merry smile of a Japanese attendant at a roll the ball game on a board walk will stir in our citizens the same strange love pains that used to be aroused by the sight of a spade beard and the sound of a French accent.

It Was Very Touching.

This Olympic ceremony was pretty much pagan—possibly an unconscious worship of Mercury and others of the deity that the Greeks made so much of back in antiquity when the Olympic games began. Certainly there was real religious feeling among the 100,000, despite the fact that no sign or sound in the tableau had any reference to any god or modern faith or ism.

The Olympic flag, as the ushers reverently lowered it from the staff and reverently bore it across the field and out through the tunnel as the sun went down and the flame sank into the burner, was an object of the deepest veneration and any one who had yelled out at that moment that this was not a holy thing, but only so much cotton duck retailing at so much a yard, would have lacerated the feelings of all within earshot and might have been slapped flat for blasphemy.

Incidentally, the two largest crowds, on the opening and closing, went out to see the ceremonies, not athletic competition, for the program on both days consisted almost entirely of rites.

Everything Was Swell.

It was, on the whole, a demonstration of the purest idealism, accomplished without troops or preaching or even a formulated cause or slogan, and it closed out the first set of Olympic games of the modern series to approach the beautiful purpose of the institution. Notwithstanding a few errors and a little bickering in the course of the program, these Olympics were conducted in a manner of chivalry, courtesy, and sportsmanship almost as fine as the ideal which the founders had in mind when they conceived the idea of bringing the nations together in athletic competition back in the nineties.

One of their objects then was to prevent wars—an impossible aim, of course, considering that people young enough to compete in the sports never have any voice in such matters. But in these games nothing occurred to promote a war, and that was a distinct gain.

Mr. Farmer Scores.

For this benefit the citizens of Los Angeles and those who came in from elsewhere may be allowed some credit for the crowds were generally as fine in their own way as the players were in theirs. This generalization naturally excepts the boxing.

Most of the fights were poor. There were more mean incidents in connection with the bouts than in any other department of the games and the conduct of the fight crowds was consistent with the character of the sport, being marked by much heckling of a kind which would have been scandalous in the swimming or track and field meets.

And now you will hear more from time to time of Mr. Zack Farmer, the young man who had general charge of the promotion and management of the games. I have been told Mr. Farmer, when he started out some years ago, was a reporter on a Los Angeles paper and distinguished himself as one of the worst newspaper reporters on the Pacific slope, with neither the nose for news nor talent to write down one little word after another.

Reporting Is Too Tame.

But, in a year of depression Mr. Farmer and his committee carried through a promotion undertaken back in the days of recklessness and plenty, and conducted a show involving nearly 2,000 competitors and an attendance in scattered places of a million or more customers, closing out with a ceremony which stirred the people as they had never been stirred except when the Unknown Soldier was buried in Arlington.

Mr. Farmer's lack of success in the newspaper business seems easily explained. He is no man for little pieces about unidentified men found dead from alcoholism down by the Santa Fe tracks. He should have started out as a publisher.

Japanese Rescue Seven Homeless Finns at Olympics

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 16.—[Special.]—Due to a misunderstanding seven Finnish athletes went homeless and hungry yesterday and today, until taken in by the Japanese team, which provided them with sleeping quarters, meals and some pocket money.

A number of the Finns had been invited to tour Japan at the conclusion of the Olympic games, while most of the team returned to Helsingfors. When the main body of the team checked out yesterday, the managers left a note which Olympic village officials interpreted as permanently closing the Finns' quarters.

Accordingly the doors of the Finn quarters were locked. When the seven stay overs returned from a little trip about Los Angeles, they were left sitting in front of the vacant cottages, hungry and disconsolate. Some of the Japanese learned of their predicament and took them in.

CARDINALS SIGN PETERS, PRENTICE FOR GRID SEASON

Frosty Peters and George Prentice will wear Cardinal uniforms in the National professional football league this fall, according to an announcement by Dr. David Jones, owner of the Cardinals, yesterday.

Peters, a half back, has been playing in the National league since leaving the University of Illinois. Last year he was with Brooklyn, from whom Dr. Jones purchased his contract.

Prentice will be making his debut in the National league. He played guard and full back at Kendaleville, Ind., High; full back and center on the Purdue freshman team, and guard on the varsity. He probably will play in the Cardinal line. He is 25 years old, 5 feet 10½ inches tall, weighs 218 pounds.

Dr. Jones, who was confined to bed with a severe attack of bronchial pneumonia, has recovered and left his home for the first time in ten days yesterday.

STAGG OBSERVES 70TH BIRTHDAY MAKING MOVIE

A. A. Stagg, who will start his 41st year as coach at the University of Chicago next month, celebrated his 70th birthday yesterday. Mr. Stagg now is at work at Los Angeles, Cal., acting as technical adviser for a football movie.

Reports from the coast yesterday said Mr. Stagg was in good health and will leave for Chicago next week to prepare for the opening Maroon practice.

OLYMPIC GAMES RECEIPTS REACH PROFIT STAGE

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 16.—(AP)—The organizing committee of the tenth Olympic games announced today the games were so successful financially a surplus will remain after all expenses are paid and bonds of $1,000,000 voted by the state are retired.

The exact amount collected at the turnstiles has not been computed, but enough progress has been made to ease any worries.

Lehman's Par 144 Best in Amateur Trial

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Johnny Lehman of Olympia Fields, who has been one of the town's leading amateurs since he won the Western conference championship in 1928, performed a simple sum in addition yesterday and thereby won himself the medal in the Chicago district trials for the national amateur golf championship. He went out to the Bryn Mawr Country club, where the local elimination round was played, and discovered that 72 plus 72 equaled 144, the 36 hole par for the course.

Lehman proceeded to shoot just that to lead 13 others into the tournament proper, which will be played over the Five Farms course of the Baltimore Country club Sept. 12 to 17, inclusive.

The others who won their share of Chicago's 14 places in the big show at Baltimore included: George Dawson, Glen Oak, 74—72—146; Art Sweet, Ridgemoor, 74—74—148; Frank Justin, Edgewood Valley, 73—75—148; Gus Fetz, Lawrence Grove, 75—73—148; Ira L. Couch, Chicago Golf, 78—71—149; Chick Evans, Edgewater, 74—75—149; Johnny Van Nortwick, Chicago Golf, 74—75—149; S. A. Williams Jr., Evanston, 72—78—150; Doug Casey, Riverside, 73—77—150; Kenneth Beukema, Grand Rapids, Mich., 72—79—151; Allan Loeb, Lake Shore, 75—76—151; Robert Baldwin, Bloomington, Ill., 74—77—151, and Jack Westland, Sunset Ridge, 72—79—151.

Eighth Jinx to Westland.

That 151 of Westland's, which just squeezed him into the chosen fourteen, may be surprising to those who have watched him play, but they would have had to see him play the eighth at Bryn Mawr yesterday to understand it. He took seven strokes on it, which gave him a 42 going out on his afternoon eighteen, and it appeared as if the Sunset Ridge star would not be among the elite. But Lehman bore down with the same game which enabled him to win last year's Chicago medal and then go to the final against Francis Ouimet. He took a 37, one over par, coming in, to make the grade.

Sweet and Van Nortwick played in a threesome with Lehman, making the only trio out of the forty-eight who competed to qualify as a whole. Lehman played near perfect golf to get his par 144. He was over par on eight holes, but included six birdies and an eagle to balance these mistakes. His card follows:

Two Better Par.

Two golfers bettered par in one round efforts, but only one qualified. He was Ira Couch of Chicago Golf, who used a 78 in the morning but dashed around in 71 in the afternoon. Don McKenna of Waukesha led the field at the end of the morning round as the result of a 71, but could do no better than 82 in the afternoon and so failed to qualify by two strokes. Billy Sixty, the Milwaukee journalist, had the most unfortunate total of the day, the only 152 turned in.

Among the nonqualifiers were Johnny Banks of Lawrence Grove, western junior champion; Hank Bowbeer, of Riverside, runner up in the district amateur; Henry Hafer Jr. of Flossmoor, Earl Jager of Ridgemoor, Ben Stevenson of Beverly, George Thomas of Lincolnshire, John Ames and Constant Hopkins of Glen View, Yonts Bonnett of Bloomington, and Gordon Kummer of Milwaukee.

PORTLAND QUALIFIES FIVE.

Portland, Ore., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Frank Dolp, Oregon state champion; Johnny Robbins, Joe Brown, Don Moe, western amateur golf champion, and Eddie Hogan, all of Portland, qualified today to represent the Pacific northwest district in the national amateur tournament.

SAWYER LEADS JOHNSTON.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Harrison Johnston of St. Paul, 1928 national amateur champion, and Pat Sawyer, state amateur champion, qualified for the national amateur golf tournament in sectional play today. Sawyer, with 150, led Johnston by two strokes.

EICHELBERGER'S 142 LOW.

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Harry Eichelberger of Los Angeles led the qualifying play for the national amateur golf tournament today with a total of 142. Other qualifiers are Charles Seaver, Los Angeles, 147; Har-

Bud Tinning comes through with his third victory for the Cubs. He relieved Lon Warneke with one out in the eighth and halted the Braves. And in the ninth they again failed to get a hit off him.

Nurmi Leads Finns Here for Post-Olympic

Foreign Olympic teams yesterday continued to arrive in Chicago for the international post-Olympic track and field meet, which will be held at Soldiers' field tomorrow night. The representatives of Finland, Hungary, and Greece joined Poland's squad, the first to come to Chicago from Los Angeles.

More teams are expected today, Germany's by plane and several others by rail. By tomorrow afternoon athletes from all countries which were represented in the 1932 games will be in Chicago to climax their American visit.

Hill's Chance for Revenge.

Finland's squad, which was led into Chicago by Paavo Nurmi, went through a light drill at Dyche stadium yesterday afternoon together with Hungarians and Poles. Nurmi is ineligible for competition. Among the Finns in yesterday's practice was Lauri Lehtinen, who defeated Ralph Hill of the United States in the 5,000 meter Olympic race.

Hill will get another chance against Lehtinen, for he has accepted an invitation to compete in the post-Olympic games. Other American stars in the meet will be Ralph Metcalfe, colored sprinter, and Jimmy Johnson, Illinois State Normal runner.

Evelyn Hall of Chicago and Mildred [Babe] Didrikson of Dallas, Tex., head the American woman athletes. Miss Didrikson telegraphed yesterday that she will arrive by plane tomorrow.

Williams to Run.

Stanislawa Walsiewicz, who, as Stella Walsh, competed in American meets, but ran under Poland's colors in the Olympic games, will be the favorite in the women's sprints. Miss Walsiewicz established new world and Olympic records in winning the 100 meter race in 11.9.

Percy Williams of Canada, 1928 Olympic sprint champion, will arrive tomorrow with two other Canadians, Alex Wilson and Phil Edwards, middle distance runners.

SWEET SCENT IS SWEET HOSS, SIR, —AT HAWTHORNE

Comes Back After a Year to Score First Victory.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Hawthorne is the happy hunting grounds for the 4 year old bay filly, Sweet Scent, which sports the canary and maroon jacket of the Coldstream Stud stable, a Chicago owned turf establishment.

A year and six days ago she beat a crack band of sprinters over the old Hawthorne course. Then the Hawthorne meeting ended before she had a chance to win another. And she hadn't won a race from that day until yesterday.

Yesterday she stepped out in the Lake Hills purse, a sprint affair at 6½ furlongs. She was meeting an all star band of sprinters. Right at home in the Hawthorne going, she took the track as Starter Morrissey shouted "Come on" and the race was over.

Just a Breeze.

She didn't give any of her half dozen rivals a chance. Golden Prince challenged and fell back. So did Don Leon, Stock Market, Sweep All and Durango. Col. E. R. Bradley's Battling Knight was so far back from the beginning, he never got close enough to challenge.

So Sweet Scent went sailing calmly past the finish line, three and one-half lengths in front of Stock Market, much to the delight of most of the 11,000 spectators who had made her the odds-on favorite. Don Leon was running gamely near the end and saved third money. The others were all whipped to perfection.

Sweet Scent ran the 6½ furlongs in 1:19, which was only fractions off the track record. In the mutuels she paid $3.50 for a two dollar ticket. Jockey Lewis rode her and he didn't have to hustle her at any stage of the run down the stretch.

Old Timers Fail.

A lot of old timers tried to show some of their one time ability during the afternoon, but not one of them succeeded. The first to fail was Tadywawa, the one-eyed mare from J. D. Mikel's stable. She was made the favorite, but she fell before the stretch dash of the younger Fort Dearborn. Golden Prince, the old snow bird, failed to conquer Sweet Scent.

Then in the sixth race, such well known old timers as Ervast, Good and Hot, Finic, and others tried their hand in gallop of a mile and a sixteenth. They were all beaten by Barney Sexton, a 25 to 1 shot, much younger than any of them. Barney Sexton held the lead all the way.

Watch Tower, a 3 year old, probably was the best horse. But when the start came he propped, almost bumped his head on the top of the starting gate, and was away a dozen lengths behind all the others.

And Was He Coming?

Then he proceeded to run a whale of a race. They were turning for home before he made much progress. At that stage he began running past horses, and he was going after Barney Sexton just as the battle ended, gaining at every stride. He could have won in a few more jumps. Barney Sexton was lucky Watch Tower was so slow getting into motion. Watch Tower finished second and Foolhardy was third.

Barney Sexton races for Jake Lowenstein of Chicago, and the long shot players were hilarious when he paid $53.14 for a $2 ticket.

They needed that kind of a lift, for Printemps, an even money favorite on which nearly everybody wagered, falled them when he finished third in the first race. He was beaten all the way by the speedy Miss Brilliant and LeBruyere.

ITALIAN BOXERS ARRIVE FRIDAY FOR TEAM BOUTS

The Italian Olympic boxing team will arrive Friday for its match with Chicago amateurs at the Chicago Stadium next Monday night. The squad will be met by a committee of Italian citizens, headed by Dr. Antonio Forme, acting royal consul of Italy.

Chicago's boxers went through spirited drills yesterday. Among those who worked out was Frankie Sanello, holder of the Central A. A. U. flyweight championship. Sanello will meet Edelweis Rodriquez in the first bout of the evening. Rodriquez has had 25 international bouts, winning 17 of them.

REFEREE HANDS POREDA DECISION OVER CARNERA

Newark, N. J., Aug. 16.—[Special.]—Referee Joe Mangold of Atlantic City, gave Stanley Poreda, Jersey City heavyweight, the decision over Primo Carnera of Italy in a ten round bout here tonight and almost precipitated a riot among some 10,000 fans.

With the verdict, a one man award in this state, there came a storm of boos and jeers and a shower of straw hats into the ring. Referee Mangold, immediately after he made his award, disappeared from the ring. Many observers thought Carnera won eight of the ten rounds.

CHANGE IN TIME BEAT GERMANS IN OLYMPICS, NOW

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, Aug. 16.—There is a new explanation now for the failure of the German Olympic team to win more medals, which has baffled experts and provoked severe criticism.

Dr. Otto Grosse of the University of Erlangen holds that the difference of nine hours between German and Los Angeles times was the reason for the failure, as German representatives were forced to start at a time when ordinarily at home they would have slept. Grosse believes that at least five weeks are necessary to get fully accustomed to changed hours.

Test Juveniles for Handicap at Hawthorne

Twelve eligibles for the Hawthorne Juvenile handicap come together in the Fox Valley purse this afternoon. The race is at six furlongs which is to be the distance of the Juvenile stake. Eighteen were named overnight for this afternoon's contest. Those entered who are eligible for the Juvenile are Big Red, Bubbler, Go Fetch, Uncle Donald, Meloy, Fayette Prince, Mr. Joe, North Galis, Ted Clark, Hope To Do, Spichon, and Marvan.

The Eclipse handicap today also brings many of the western handicap stars into action, including Polydorus, Fairbypair, Charleigh, Gold Step, Mad Pursuit and Annimessic.

If there were any crapshooters in the crowd at Hawthorne yesterday they could have made a nice cleanup by playing No. 7. The No. 7 horses, Fort Dearborn, Shaker Lady, and Sweet Scent won the second, third, and fourth races.

Martie Flynn, the old timer from Stuyvesant Peabody's stable, found his running legs and, with one of his old time dashes down the stretch, won the sixth race, which was at a mile and a sixteenth. He had some backers and paid $10.52 for a two dollar ticket.

Word came yesterday to the Hawthorne officials that Faireno, the winner of the Hawthorne handicap, will be here for the Hawthorne Gold cup, to be renewed on Aug. 27. The shipment from the east for the Gold Cup is expected to include Equipoise, Faireno, Mate, Gusto and St. Brideaux.

Entries for the Governor's Derby to be run Aug. 27 at the Springfield State fair close Saturday at the Hawthorne racing secretary's office. A number of Chicago owners will enter their best horses in the race.

SPEED! THAT'S WHAT DON GETS ON HIS ARRIVAL

New York, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Police sirens screamed reluctant traffic aside, motorcycle officers roared around elevated pillars, the automobiles in the escort careened madly through the maze of crowded New York streets at a mile a minute clip.

"My goodness," gasped Kaye Don, ace of British speedsters on land and water, his face blanching as he gripped his hat. "What terrific speed, what daring. What a reception. My goodness."

Thus it was that the slender, smiling Englishman who fought the Germans in the sky over France, roared down the sand beach at Daytona, Fla., at 188 miles an hour, and only last month pushed his speed boat, Miss England III., up to 120.5 miles an hour on Loch Lomond in Scotland, returned to the United States after a year's lapse to try again for the last great speed trophy denied Great Britain.

He will leave tomorrw for Detroit where on Lake St. Clair, over a new seven mile course, he will pit his Miss England III. against Gar Wood's latest Miss America Sept. 2, 3 and 5 in a series of 35 mile races. Last year Don turned over on the second race of his attempt to add the Harmsworth cup to his own speed boat record of 119.81 m. p. h., Lieut. Stainforth's 407.5 miles an hour through the air, and Sir Malcolm campbell's 253.96 on land.

BAER REACHES CHICAGO TO OPEN DRILL FOR SCHAAF

Max Baer, who beat King Levinsky in Reno July 4, arrived in Chicago yesterday and started training for his ten round bout with Ernie Schaaf Aug. 31 at the Chicago Stadium. The Californian looked over his training quarters at the Arcade gymnasium and declared that his training grind would be in full swing by the end of the week.

"I don't need a whole lot of work," he declared. "I didn't lay off after my fight with Levinsky at Reno, so about ten days of drill will fit me for Schaaf."

Baer plans only light work for a couple of days to rest up after his train ride from the coast. Friday or Saturday he will call out his squad of sparring partners and get down to business.

Rothier Wins Decision Over Cleveland Boxer

Henry Rothier, international Golden Gloves lightweight boxing champion, defeated Billy Burns, Cleveland, in a three round bout at Kerwin's stadium, Western and Devon avenues, last night. Duffy Dvonch, Great Lakes heavyweight, won a three round decision over Jack Kowa. Other results:

Bill Treast beat Tony Sutton [3].
Joe Esposito beat George Engle [3].
Joe Palozzalo beat Nick Serrandos [3].
Jim Caputo beat Billy Lorens [3].
Henry Bueker beat Harry Fredericksen [3].
Joe Finkelstein beat George Maleck [3].

Wolfe Fights Sisk Tonight; 4 Other Bouts

Tonight's Card

Eddie [Kid] Wolfe vs. Dick Sisk [10].
Paul Dazzo vs. Paul Dempsey [6].
Billy Gladstone vs. Phil McQuillan [6].
Bob Groshek vs. Freddy Langford [6].
Jack Ripp vs. Jack Tui [4].

Eddie [Kid] Wolfe, Memphis, Tenn., boxer, and Dick Sisk of Chicago will meet in the ten round windup of the boxing show tonight at Mills stadium, Kilpatrick avenue and Lake street.

Wolfe, a contender for the junior welterweight crown worn by Johnny Jadick of Philadelphia, improved his rating by defeating King Tut at New York early this month. Sisk has lost once in 52 professional fights.

Three bouts at six rounds and one at four comprise the supporting card.

Charley Retzlaff, Duluth heavyweight, who will head a card at White City Friday night, will fight Paul Pantaleo of Chicago, instead of Roy [Ace] Clark, Philadelphia Negro. Young Stuhley, Kewanee, Ill., boxer, will appear in a supporting bout.

Andy Callahan, junior welterweight stablemate of Ernie Schaaf, will fight on the Schaaf-Baer card at Chicago Stadium Aug. 31. Frankie Petrolle, Prince Saunders, or Louie [Kid] Kaplan will be his opponent.

Roy Williams, south side light heavyweight, will box in the semi-windup to the King Levinsky-Johnny Risko 12 round match at Cleveland, O., Sept. 1. His opponent will be George Pavelick of Cleveland. Williams sparred several rounds with Levinsky at Trafton's gymnasium yesterday.

Jack Kilbourne, Chicago middleweight, fights Vincent Forgione at Wilmington, Del., tonight.

FATOR RIDES 4 WINNERS; BOOTS 2 INTO 3D PLACE

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 16.—[Special.]—La Verne Fator, veteran jockey, celebrated a field day at Connaught park today, riding four winners. Two others of his mounts finished third and one ran out of the money.

Fator's winners all were well backed, the longest price being $9.20 for $2 paid by Bob Blackburn in the third race. Fator also scored aside Fleeting Fire in the second race, returning $8.95; Beth Hogan in the fourth, returning $4.80, and Tout Feu in the sixth, returning $3.40.

In the fifth race, Fator finished third with Master Stroke as he did with Bounder in the seventh. He was up on Daisy Bunga, al long shot, in the first race and finished out of the money.

YANKEES BEAT TIGERS TWICE FOR NINE WINS IN ROW

Lazzeri Gets 3 Homers; Scores: 13-8, 7-3.

New York, Aug. 16.—(AP)—The Yankees returned home today and took two games from Detroit, 13 to 8 and 7 to 3, to equal their longest winning streak of the year, nine straight games. The Yanks also gained the longest lead they have held this season, 10½ games.

The first game was a slugfest, with Tony Lazzeri and Harry Davis hitting two homers apiece and Joe Sewell and Billy Rogell one each. Lazzeri hit a third homer in the second game.

INDIANS BEAT A'S, 3-2.

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 16.—(AP)—By the margin of one run the Cleveland Indians today defeated the Athletics and squeezed past the Mackmen into second place. The score was 3 to 2.

The Indians were aided by a costly error by Bing Miller in the second inning. Morgan, Indian first sacker, lifted an easy fly to Miller, who watched it come out of the sun and then let the ball drop at his feet. Cissell followed with a double that put Morgan across.

DICK TRACY—Between the Fangs

CUBS TRAIL, 3-0, THEN SCORE 4 IN NINTH INNING

drama, but Charley couldn't drive home that winning run. He popped to Knothe and there were two out.

Gabby Hartnett then shot a hot grounder to Urbanski, who juggled the ball. The bases were full. Jurges stepped up and drove the ball over Berger's head to the score board. Because the winning run scored from third, Bill got credit for a single, but what did he care about a triple that won't get into the books?

The Cubs maintained their lead of one game over the Pirates and they increased their lead over the menacing Dodgers to 2½ games.

The standings of the first three contenders became:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Cubs	61	50	.550
Pirates	61	52	.540
Dodgers	62	56	.525

Jurges Singles in Third.

The end of the first three innings saw each team with no runs and a record of a single apiece. The Braves' single was made by Berger to start the second, but Wally progressed no farther than second. The Cubs' single was made by Jurges with one out in the third. Bill waited till Warneke had fanned and then ended the inning by getting caught in an attempt to steal second.

The action phase picked up considerably in the fourth. Urbanski pushed off the inning with a single to center and stopped at second on Jordan's loop single to left. Berger then grounded to English, who stepped on third to force Urbanski and threw to Grimm to double Berger. Holland lined to Stephenson.

Herman walked to start the Cub half of the fourth and moved to second on English's sacrifice. Cuyler drew three balls and then took two strikes, after which he flied to R. Moore. Stephenson popped to Maranville in short right.

Herman Commits Error.

The fifth inning started with R. Moore landing on first as a result of Herman's fumble. Knothe flied to Demaree, but Hargrave singled to right, R. Moore stopping at second. Brandt forced Hargrave and the inning ended when Maranville forced Brandt, Herman unassisted.

Berger walked with two out in the sixth and Hargrave singled with two out in the seventh for the only warning of the brutality the Braves were brewing for the eighth.

It's Ted Lyons' Turn to Oppose Senators Today

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 16.—Ted Lyons will try to give the Senators something to worry about tomorrow in the second game between the White Sox and Senators. He will be opposed by Dick Coffman, who hasn't won a game since he was shipped away by the Browns several months ago.

Tommy Thomas, who, with the Sox did nothing to earn his $12,500 per annum, has been doing well since coming here, but now is establishing an alibi for the remainder of the season. He is complaining about a sore arm and may not be able to face his former mates.

The Sox are carrying an unlisted pitcher in the person of Lester Bartholomew, a southpaw who several years ago started the season's opener for the Pirates. He didn't have a job so the Sox took him on in hopes his arm might have recovered from an old ailment.

Jack Hayes started off in the field as if headed for a fielding record. He handled eight chances in the first three innings, but then slowed down and finished with a total of 12. He also contributed a single, double and triple on attack, but the single was the only hit of the three that helped in the scoring.

HELEN JACOBS LEADS ADVANCE OF NET FAVORITES

Forest Hills, N. Y., Aug. 16.—[Special.]—The favorites in the national women's tennis championship tournament, led by Helen Jacobs, California, who is seeded No. 1 in the absence of Helen Wills Moody, America's queen of tennis, swept through the second round today.

Miss Jacobs faced an old opponent this afternoon—Virginia Rice of Boston—and had little difficulty in advancing to the third round. Miss Jacobs won, 6-1, 6-0. She captured the last 11 games in sucession.

Other seeded players entering the third round included Mrs. John Van Ryn, Philadelphia; Mrs. Lawrence A. Harper, Oakland, Cal.; Virginia Hilleary, Philadelphia, and Josephine Cruickshank, Santa Ana, Cal.

Mrs. Van Ryn defeated Clara Louise Zinker, Cincinnati, 6-1, 6-3, while Miss Hilleary won from Mrs. Carolyn Hirsch, New York, 6-1, 6-2. Mrs. Harper, who has competed in several eastern tennis tournaments, triumphed over Mrs. A. J. Lamme Jr., Rye, N. Y., 6-3, 6-2, and Miss Cruickshank went into the third round at the expense of Mianne Palfrey, Sharon, Mass., 6-3, 6-4.

Mrs. Elsie Goldsack Pittman and Joan Ridley, England's stars, also triumphed. Mrs. Pittman won from Marjorie Sachs, Cambridge, Mass., 2-6, 6-4, 6-1, and Miss Ridley eliminated Allson Harrison, Philadelphia, 6-1, 6-3.

SOX PUPILS GET ANOTHER 'D' IN DAILY QUIZ, 5-3

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 16.—This was another bad day for the White Sox portable baseball school now in the hands of Head Professor Lew Fonseca. For quite a stretch, due mainly to Milton Gaston's twenty-four karat pitching, it appeared as if the afternoon's lessons would be profitable, but the kid pupils finally got in their work. A couple of them perpetrated grievous errors and the Chicagoans were nosed out by the Senators, 5 to 3. It was the seventh straight jolt for the western boys.

If Gaston had been permitted to follow the plans he laid out he might have registered a shutout triumph. A three run splurge by the Sox against old Gen. Alvin Crowder, who was banged hard throughout, gave Gaston a 3 to 0 lead in five innings. During that time he toyed with the Senators on a yield of three hits. But in the sixth young Charley English came up with a throw that was a record for distance. It gave the Senators a run without a hit. And in the eighth Luke Appling made his contribution. It spread like a plague and didn't halt until four runs had turned the game around.

Close, but Not Quite.

For a while at least the Sox gave the impression of actually trying to see how close they could come to a run without really scoring. This peculiar work started in the first inning. Hayes tripled with one out and after Blue's demise was caught, for some unknown reason, between home and third. The second was even more promising. Appling led off with a hit and went to third on Seeds' safe tap, but the latter made the mistake of thinking he could make two bases. He was nailed at second. Then English fanned and Kress hoisted to Manush. There was another opening in the third when Berry kicked off with a triple. Gaston was thrown out and Funk laid down a perfect squeeze bunt, but Berry stopped for refreshments or something along the way and was tagged out at the plate.

Business finally picked up when Kress started the fifth with a single to right. Berry popped out and Gaston fanned. Funk then singled to right, Berry taking third. Hayes, who was busy all afternoon both at bat and in the field, then showed his old mates a bit of trickery. He dropped an unexpected bunt in front of the plate and beat it easily, Berry scoring. A pass to Blue filled the bases. Appling stepped into the picture at this point with his third hit—a single to center—scoring Funk and Hayes and advancing Blue to third. The uprising subsided with Seeds' fly to West.

What to Do? What to Do?

Gaston's pitching for five innings was of such a high grade that his mates didn't have a chance to put on any ill timed errors. But it was just a matter of waiting and the sixth brought the inevitable. With one out it became necessary for English to make a hurried throw on Myer's grounder. The kid wound up as usual, and let one go in the general direction of the right field pavilion. When the ball was located Myer was on third, whence he scored while Manush was being tossed out by Appling.

Members of the White Sox Alumni association were involved in the incident which, with the aid of Appling's daily error, let the Senators capture four runs and the decision in the eighth. Carl Reynolds started it by batting for Spencer. He walked. Dave Harris, another former Chicagoan, slapped a grounder toward short. English tried to stick his glove in front of the ball and this probably disconcerted Appling. Anyway he let it trickle through his paws, Reynolds going to third and Harris to second. Reynolds scored on Rice's infield out. Myer singled to score Harris. Manush tripled to center and Myer scored. Faber then appeared and Cronin nicked him for a long fly, on which Manush scored.

Tommy Armour, the touring golfer, and Joe Sturm, professional at Glenbard, will play an exhibition at Glenbard today with the two golfing Dawsons, John and George. The match will start at 3 o'clock. Preceding the match Armour will give a half hour's talk and demonstration on golf shots.

Stars of Catholic League Choose Coast Universities

Several former Chicago Catholic High school league athletes will be among the candidates when the call for the first football practice is sounded at the University of Southern California and St. Mary's university at Oakland, Cal. Two athletes of the group of five picked as the best of last June's graduates have announced that they will leave soon for the Pacific coast.

The two, unlike the Chicago Public High school league stars, who have chosen schools near their homes, will be accompanied by several teammates. The two are William Hayes, De La Salle institute, who will enter St. Mary's, and Ray Adams, St. Patrick High, who will matriculate at Southern California.

Three Stay in Illinois.

However, the other three of the quintet chosen as outstanding by league officials—Johnny Martin, Loyola; Buddy Gonya, Mount Carmel, and Larry Corrigan, Loyola—will remain in their home state. Martin will attend Loyola university, Gonya has chosen the University of Illinois, and Corrigan has selected Northwestern university.

Hayes, a member of the De La Salle football and baseball teams, will join Bill Cassidy, a former teammate, at St. Mary's. Cassidy left several days ago. Hayes played left half back for three years.

De La Salle's last chance at the league football championship was in 1929, when the squad included the Krause brothers, Phil and Ed, Ray Boland, and several others who now are regulars at leading colleges. Hayes played in every contest that year, the team's winning streak being snapped by De Paul in the championship game.

Win Sectional Title.

Last season Hayes led the team to three consecutive victories in the south section of the league, but it was eliminated from the title race by a strong Mount Carmel squad. Hayes also won letters in baseball, playing in the outfield and pitching. Baseball, however, was discontinued two years ago.

"Buddy Gonya is one of the best players we have ever seen," said Father Urban, Mount Carmel athletic director, when he was informed that he had been placed on all-star quintet. "Buddy led a strong team last year—the strongest in Catholic league history."

Buddy, a brother of Bob Gonya, who probably will be a regular at Northwestern this year, was on the football team for three years, playing quarter back. He also was a member of the baseball team.

Adams, captain of the St. Patrick football team and a member of the basketball squad which won the national Catholic High School tournament at Loyola university last spring, participated in both sports for three years. With Adams when he matriculates at Southern California will be Eddie Hayes and Bud Asher.

Corrigan a Swimmer, Too.

Loyola academy's stars—Martin and Corrigan—both were members of the 1930 football team which scored ten straight victories to win the Catholic league championship. Martin played end, while Corrigan was in the backfield.

Last year Corrigan played full back. He also captained the swimming team, which was coached by Dick Thompson, who managed the French Olympic team in 1924 and the Spanish Olympic squad in 1928. Corrigan was unbeaten in 50 yard and 100 yard free style races for three years in league competition. He is spending the summer as a life guard at the Foster avenue beach.

Martin took up football after playing basketball for a year. He also participated in track, competing in the high jump and hurdles. He was named by his teammates as the best player during the last football season.

CHICAGOAN STILL IN BATTLE FOR PARKS NET TITLE

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Sixteen players remained in the national public parks men's singles tennis championship as the result of matches decided on the Shawnee park courts today.

Seeded players left in the singles play are Dooley Mitchell, Washington, D. C.; George O'Connell, Chicago; Ted Drewes, St. Louis; Arnold Simons, Louisville; Lloyd Tobe, Buffalo, and Weston Painter, Minneapolis.

Tobe, Buffalo park champion, defeated Fred Englerth of Dayton in a five set battle.

In other matches requiring the limit of five sets, Earl Boosong, Cincinnati, defeated McNelli Smith, East St. Louis, Ill.; Price Colvin, Baltimore, won from Seymour Felder, New York, and Wiley Van Wagner, Louisville, gained a victory over Vincent Meunier, Indianapolis.

In a second round doubles match Gordon M. Brandt and Carl Irenus, Chicago, defeated William L. Macassin and Louis H. Lange, New Orleans, 6-0, 6-1, 6-4.

MORON, ANNOYER OF GIRLS, FINED $200 BY JUDGE

Park Board Chief Tells Court of Threats.

After commissioners of the old Portage park district had appeared before him yesterday and demanded that he punish an alleged moron who had annoyed small girls in the park, Municipal Judge Alfred O. Erickson fined the prisoner, John Italia, 2420 North Parkside avenue, $200.

Judge Erickson also imposed a $100 fine on Sylvester Italia, brother of John, for representing himself to be the defendant last Saturday, when Judge Erickson, it is charged, dismissed the case after a perfunctory hearing. At the end of the hearing Policeman Harry Rozanski, father of one of the girls, arrested Sylvester in the courtroom and marched him off to a lockup for impersonating his brother. The case was then reinstated and a hearing set for yesterday.

Neither brother was able to pay his fine, and they were sent to the Bridewell to serve them out.

Business Men Protest.

Business men in the district surrounding the park, at Belle Plaine and Long avenues, protested to the old Portage park board at the manner in which the previous hearing was conducted, and President John Butler of the park board and State Senator Frank J. Huckin Jr., a member, appeared yesterday in court.

They informed Judge Erickson that there had been a number of complaints that women and small girls had been annoyed by morons in the park recently, and pointed out that John Italia had a record of three previous arrests and one conviction for similar offenses. Mr. Butler told the judge that attempts had been made to "fix" the case.

Tells About Threat.

"Robert M. Boyd, physical director of the park, assisted a park policeman in pursuing and capturing John Italia," said Mr. Butler. "Later a man whom Boyd did not know approached him and asked him to drop prosecution of the charges. Boyd refused, whereupon the man, as he left, told him, 'If you know what's good for you, you won't show up in court.'

"Italia himself came to the park last night and asked me, as president of the park board, to stop the prosecution. He also asked me for the addresses of the arresting policemen. I told him we were going to push the prosecution, and refused to tell him where the policemen lived."

FACES CHARGES TODAY OF LURING GIRLS TO POSE

Harvey Raymond Spencer, 31 years old, 5510 Harper avenue, who is alleged to have lured girls by promise of jobs as models to pose in the nude in his apartment, will appear this morning in the Jury court to answer four charges. He is accused of contributing to the delinquency of a 16 year old girl, of possessing and selling obscene photographs, of disorderly conduct, and of a statutory charge.

Arraigned with him last week was Constance Selbach, 23 years old, who lived with him in his apartment and aided him in inducing the girls, most of whom were in their teens, to pose in the nude.

He made photographs of the girls, saying they were for a prominent artist to choose a model from, and, unknown to the girls, sold the photos for distribution on the street at 25 cents each.

HAROLD TEEN—SHADOW IS ALWAYS FIRST WITH THE LATEST

SAYS LANCASTER BROKE 4 OF 10 COMMANDMENTS

Prosecutor Charges He Slew, Stole, Lied.

Miami, Fla., Aug. 16.—[Special.]—Capt. W. N. Lancaster, noted British flyer, on trial for the murder of his former friend and rival in love, Haden Clarke, was accused of breaking four of the Ten Commandments by State's Attorney Vernon Hawthorne in his closing argument to the jury late today. A recess was taken when Hawthorne had finished and the case will reach the jury tomorrow morning.

"Defense Attorney Carson," said the prosecutor, "says this man's moral code shines like a star in a background of filth. He has broken four of the Ten Commandments—Thou shalt not kill, thou shalt not steal, thou shalt not commit adultery and thou shalt not bear false witness."

The prosecutor went into a rage in replying to Attorney Carson, who compared Lancaster to Robert E. Lee and the "Man of Galilee," and praised Mrs. J. M. [Chubbie] Keith-Miller, mistress of each man, for baring their tangled love affairs.

The state charges that jealousy was the motive for the alleged murder, while the defense contends the triangle resulted in a suicide.

"There is a threat on every page of Lancaster's diary," shouted the prosecutor. "It shows him as a cold, designing, crafty person. I am not here to pick out popular heroes and not prosecute them. I have respect for a war hero until he exercises his ability in crime.

"Mr. Carson, in his argument, has reflected upon the character of all but three persons in this case, Carson, Mr. Albert Hamilton, and the defendant. He has cried down a man who cannot defend himself and tried to drag down the mother of Haden. It's unholy and unclean."

Carson expressed pity for Mrs. Keith-Miller. "Her bravery is an outstanding feature of this trial," he said.

Attack on Girl; Threat Told Ex-Convict Is Held for 2d

Michael Sciales, 35 years old, who was released Saturday from Joliet penitentiary after serving nine months for rape, was held to the grand jury in $15,000 bonds yesterday by Judge Leon Edelman on a similar charge. Florence Carroll, 14 years old, 1122 Altgeld street, charged that Sciales attacked her in August, 1931, while he was at liberty pending the disposition of his appeal on the original case. Sciales threatened her and she did not sign a complaint until February of this year, she said.

REV. WENFORD G. SCHURMAN DIES AT THE AGE OF 61

The Rev. Wenford G. Schurman, for more than 30 years a minister in the Church of the Nazarene, died yesterday at the Washington Park hospital after a brief illness. He was 61 years old. He had been pastor of the First Nazarene church in Englewood for the past fourteen years. His home was at 6100 Princeton avenue.

The Rev. Mr. Schurman was former president of the Englewood Ministers' association and at one time district superintendent of the Chicago central district of the church. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Grace Schurman, and eight children.

Funeral services will be conducted on Friday at 2 p. m. at the church at 64th street and Eggleston avenue by Dr. R. T. Williams, national general superintendent of the Church of the Nazarene. Burial will be in Mount Hope cemetery.

MRS. EDWIN LAWRENCE WRIGHT, 42 years old, of 628 Christiana avenue, died yesterday at the home of her parents in Springfield, Mo. She had been visiting there for the summer. Funeral services will be held at Springfield.

S. SILBERMAN, 81, PIONEER WOOL MERCHANT, DIES

Sigmund Silberman, pioneer wool merchant, and chairman of the board of S. Silberman & Sons, 1117 West 35th street, died yesterday at his home at 4801 Ellis avenue. He was 81 years old.

Mr. Silberman was born in Bavaria, Germany, and came to America when he was 17 years old. He settled in Quincy, Ill., where he started in the wool business. In 1882 he moved to Chicago, where, with two brothers, he founded his present company. He engaged actively in business until his death and was one of the oldest members of the wool industry. Mr. Silberman was a member of the Standard club and the Lake Shore and Ravisloe Country clubs. He was interested in numerous charities.

Surviving him are his widow, Mary, and six children, Hubert, David, and J. D. Silberman; Mrs. Louis Kaufman, Mrs. Fuller Rothschild, and Mrs. Theodore Friedlander, the latter of Milwaukee. Funeral services will be held at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon in the chapel at 936 East 47th street. Burial will be in Rosehill cemetery.

WOMAN FRIEND OF ROCKEFELLER DIES AT AGE OF 93

Lakewood, N. J., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Mrs. Cornelia Brinley, who attained local fame through an acquaintanceship with John D. Rockefeller Sr., died today from the infirmities of age, which was the same as Mr. Rockefeller's, 93.

The capitalist, driving through in an automobile one day five years ago, saw her working in her garden and stopped to talk. Since then he usually had visited her at least once a year.

They would sit on her porch in rocking chairs, Mrs. Brinley said, and "gossip like two old cronies." They usually talked about the weather and "old times," she explained.

"He used to give me money," Mrs. Brinley once said. "Greenbacks. Five and ten dollar bills. They helped a lot."

Hold Funeral Rites Today for J. W. (Bud) Kennedy

Funeral services will be held today for John Ward [Bud] Kennedy, veteran employé of the Illinois Bell Telephone company and widely known among real estate men and property owners on the south side, who died of a heart attack Sunday in his home at 7425 Dante avenue. He was 50 years old and is survived by his mother, Mrs. Annie M. Kennedy, with whom he made his home, one brother and a sister. Interment will be in Mount Olivet cemetery. He was employed by the telephone company for 31 years, the last 15 as a right of way agent.

Funeral of Ray Graham Held at Washington, Ind.

Washington, Ind., Aug. 16.—[Special.]—Funeral services were held here today in St. Simon Catholic church for Ray A. Graham, one of the three brothers of automotive fame. Major figures of the automobile industry, as well as hundreds of friends from other states attended the solemn requiem high mass for Mr. Graham. He was a native of Washington.

TWO KILLED AT CROSSING.

Verona, Ill., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Mrs. Garland Dransfeld, 22, and her five months old daughter were killed last night when Mrs. Dransfeld's automobile was demolished at a railroad crossing here by a Santa Fe train.

FLAT BUILDING AT 905 GLENGYLE IS ORDERED SOLD

Protective Committee to Bid on Property.

Holders of certificates of deposit for Glengyle Beach apartments first mortgage bonds were notified yesterday by the bondholders protective committee that a decree of foreclosure has been entered against the property and it has been ordered sold at 1 p. m., Sept. 2, in the board of appeals rooms of the county building.

The property is located at 905-11 Glengyle place, near Sheridan road. The ground, 100 by 143 feet, is improved with a three story and English basement apartment house containing 36 flats of three to five rooms built around 1924. A bond issue of $185,000 was underwritten on the property by H. O. Stone & Co. This has been reduced to $166,500. The bonds have been in default since 1928.

The present rental income is about $1,300 a month and the operating expenses are about $1,000 a month. It is stated that the building is about 80 per cent occupied.

Will Bid on Property.

In its communication of yesterday the protective committee stated it will be represented at the foreclosure sale and will attempt to bid the property in at the lowest price at which it can be purchased to protect the interest of the bondholders who have deposited their securities.

"If, at the foreclosure sale, any bid is made, which in the opinion and discretion of the committee, represents a more favorable settlement for the depositing bondholders than the purchase of the property by the committee, the committee will permit the sale to the highest bidder," the communication states. "In such event the net proceeds received from the property will be distributed pro rata to the holders of all outstanding bonds and coupons of this issue."

The committee states that in view of present market conditions, it is not likely that outside bidders will get the property and it will be acquired for the benefit of the bondholders. The communication is signed by Avery Brundage, chairman of the committee of which the other members are: Horatio B. Hackett, Francis R. Bloesom, J. L. Kraft, and Charles M. Moderwell. The depositary is the Chicago Title and Trust company.

Would Renew Loan.

Holders of Constance Apartments 6 per cent bonds have been notified by the committee acting for securities sold through the Woodlawn Trust and Savings bank that it is arranging with the owner of the building to make an extension of the loan for a five year period at 6 per cent interest. The loan matured Aug. 15. The property is located at the northwest corner of 73d street and Constance avenue.

The issue was originally for $55,000 and has been reduced to $41,500. All prepayments of principal and interest have been met on due date and all taxes have been paid up to and including 1930. The committee has requested holders of these bonds to deposit them in the committee office, adjoining the safety deposit vault of the Woodlawn bank, when a receipt will be given. After all bonds are deposited they will be returned to the owners with the extension agreement and new coupons attached. Martin C. Haedtler is secretary of the committee.

The Edgewater Presbyterian church yesterday deposited $25,000 of principal and interest on its first mortgage bond issue with the Peoples Trust & Savings bank as trustees. The issue, originally for $200,000, has been reduced to $150,000. The payment was due on July 1.

Germany's Foreign Trade Surplus Cut to $16,000,000

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 16.—Germany's foreign trade surplus dropped to less than $16,000,000 in July whereas in June it exceeded $21,000,000. The decline was due to the falling off in exports of finished goods, which was $5,000,000 below the previous month's total.

While exports were practically unchanged at $87,000,000, exports declined $5,000,000 to $102,000,000. Reparations deliveries in kind no longer appear in the returns since they were eliminated at Lausanne.

OFFICIAL WEATHER FORECAST.

The official forecast for today and tomorrow and yesterday's table of records follow:

Indiana—Partly cloudy Wednesday, followed by local showers and cooler in north portion; Thursday partly cloudy, possibly showers in south portion.

Lower Michigan—Local showers and somewhat cooler Wednesday; Thursday generally fair.

Upper Michigan—Partly cloudy with moderate temperature Wednesday and Thursday.

Wisconsin—Partly cloudy with moderate temperature Wednesday, preceded by showers in extreme southeast portion; fair Thursday.

Ohio—Partly cloudy, probably local showers in west and north portion Wednesday; slightly cooler in north portion Wednesday night; Thursday local showers.

Missouri — Partly cloudy and unsettled Wednesday and Thursday; not so warm Wednesday night.

Iowa — Partly cloudy and not so warm Wednesday, preceded by showers in southeast portion; Thursday fair.

Net loss for June was $4,26,328 after charges, against $126,728 in the same 1931 month; and for the first six months, $720,752, against net income of $196,141 in the first half of the year.

CANADIAN GOLD MINING GAINS SHARPLY IN 1932

New records for Canadian gold production are again being set in 1932, the output for the first half of the year being nearly 20 per cent ahead of 1931 figures for the same period, says a bulletin just made public by the department of immigration and colonization of the Canadian Pacific railway.

"Such rapid strides have been made in Canada's gold production during the past three years that this precious metal passed coal to become the Dominion's most valuable mineral," the bulletin asserted.

"The production of gold for the first five months of the current year was 1,230,294 fine ounces, an increase of 18 per cent over the same months in 1931 and or nearly 60 per cent as compared with the first five months of 1929.

"Meanwhile, the figures for June production in Ontario, chief gold-producing province, showed a gain of 18 per cent over June, 1931, indicating that the upward trend is still in progress and that total production throughout the dominion may be nearly 20 per cent over 1931, which was a record-breaking year."

Canada, the bulletin pointed out, has recently passed the United States to become second largest gold-producing country in the world, being surpassed only by the Transvaal fields of South Africa.

PARK OFFICIALS PLAN TRIBUTE TO ALFRED E. PARKER

A tribute to the memory of Alfred E. Parker, director of the Lincoln park zoo, who died on Monday, was planned by park officials yesterday for the funeral this afternoon.

The funeral services will be conducted at the home at 4632 Kenmore avenue. Then the cortege, under an escort of Lincoln park police, will move south in Kenmore avenue to Montrose and east to the park and past the fieldhouse. As the procession moves past the fieldhouse the new chimes will play Chopin's funeral march.

The body will be taken to Graceland cemetery for cremation.

Sheriff Tiffany Seizes Guns and Booze in Raid

Sheriff Lester Tiffany of Lake county yesterday seized 13 guns and 360 bottles of home brew in a raid on the home of William Brenner, on St. Mary's road west of Libertyville. Brenner and his son, William Jr., were arrested and charged with possession and sale of liquor. Brenner said that the seven shotguns, four pistols and two rifles were the property of a Chicago friend who hunts in the neighborhood.

EXPECT A. T. & T. WILL DECLARE ITS DIVIDEND

C. & O. Will Pay 62½c on Common.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Action of the Chesapeake and Ohio railway directors yesterday in declaring the regular dividend of 62½ cents per share on the common stock for the fourth quarter strengthened the belief of the financial community that American Telephone and Telegraph company will make no change in its dividend rate at the directors' meeting today.

The advance of 4¼ points in the price of American Telephone stock on the New York Stock exchange yesterday was regarded as a reflection of the public's confidence in the maintenance of the regular dividend rate. The stock closed at 114, near the high for the day.

With other leading concerns indicating by the maintenance of dividends some degree of confidence in a moderate revival of business this fall, observers in New York and Chicago yesterday were expressing the opinion that there would be no reduction by American Telephone.

Despite the progressively larger loss of telephones each month this year and the lack of income from Western Electric, earnings of American Telephone for the first half of 1932 were equivalent to $4.02 per share on the capital stock, compared with $4.89 in the corresponding period of 1931.

A Good Showing.

This has been regarded as a relatively favorable showing, although profits for the half year fell 48 cents per share short of covering the two quarterly dividend payments totaling $4.50 per share.

Moreover, as a result of severe retrenchment and a substantial reduction in operating costs, the actual earnings of the subsidiary companies during the second quarter were more favorable than in the three preceding months.

The operating units of the Bell system were forced to dip into surplus to the extent of about $5,000,000 to maintain their regular dividends to the parent company during the first quarter of 1932, but during the second quarter their deficit after dividends was only about $3,000,000.

The outstanding reason, for the financial district's optimism regarding the outcome of today's meeting, however, is the belief that the directors of America's biggest corporation would not be likely to do anything to impede the return of public confidence which seems to be well under way.

Would Not Eat Surplus.

Particularly is it pointed out that payment of the regular dividend by American Telephone would not eat nearly as far into surplus as U. S. Steel's recent declaration of its preferred dividend. Steel has been running a big deficit before preferred dividends, whereas American Telephone has covered its dividends up to the beginning of 1932, and since that time come fairly close to covering them.

Chesapeake & Ohio's declaration of its regular dividend yesterday was a surprise. A reduction had been anticipated inasmuch as Chesapeake & Ohio is the only large railroad in the country that has not reduced or discontinued its dividend during the last three years. The annual rate has been $2.50 per share since 1930 when the company's stock was split four-for-one, and is equivalent to the $10 annual rate paid on the old $100 par stock.

The railroad yesterday reported July net income of $1,217,183, an increase of about $200,000 over the June net, but even so earnings for the month were about 20 per cent short of dividend requirements. Net income for the first seven months was equivalent to $1.30 per common share.

Lehigh Portland Action.

Directors of Lehigh Portland Cement company, in connection with the declaration yesterday of the regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 per share on the preferred stock, issued the following statement:

"In view of the substantial impairment to surplus and current available resources of the company within the last year it is apparent that improvement in earnings of the company, which will be possible only in the event of increased volume, must in the future determine dividend action on the preferred stock."

Aluminum, Ltd., omitted the quarterly dividend on the six per cent cumulative preferred stock due at this time. In the previous quarter the dividend had been reduced to 75 cents from $1.50.

Central Takes Over Security Life Business

Central Life Insurance company of Illinois has taken over the business of the Security Life Insurance company of America which went into receivership April 18, 1932.

Announcement of the negotiation of a contract for the complete reinsurance of the business of Security Life was made yesterday by John A. Massen, receiver.

Security Life has 30,000 policy holders and 55 million dollars of insurance in force. In bidding for this concern's business Central Life Insurance company of Illinois met strenuous competition from a number of eastern life insurance companies.

President Alfred MacArthur of Central Life said that the acquisition of the Security Life's business would nearly double the volume of his own company's business.

Death Claims Will Be Paid.

Death claims will be paid in full now and in the future on the Security Life policies on which premiums have been paid, it was announced. Cash surrenders, loans, and other nonforfeitable features will be held in abeyance pending actual experience in liquidation.

The arrangement follows an order entered by the United States District court here on Aug. 5. Under the terms of the contract all of the assets of the Security Life Insurance company will remain under the control of the court for liquidation and such application as may be most advantageous to the policy holders. The Central Life is to administer the business at cost, with a maximum limit of $3 per $1,000.

"Policies issued by Security Life Insurance company of America and continued in force by payment of premiums will be assumed by the Central Life Insurance company of Illinois and will be administered at a minimum of expense," the receiver states.

Action on Profits.

"All of the resulting net profits will be applied for the benefit of Security Life Insurance company policy holders. The Central Life Insurance company is to receive none of the profits derived from this business during the next fifteen years unless, before that time, the impairment on reserve assets has been completely eliminated.

"While the contract calls for the payment of approved death claims as indicated, cash and loan values and other policy benefits will, of course, reflect the present impairment of reserves which, however, will be substantially reduced from time to time, and policy values thereby increased."

Total new life insurance production for the first seven months this year totaled $5,711,137,000, against $6,743,672,000 last year, a decrease of 15.3 per cent, the Association of Life Insurance Presidents reported yesterday. For July the total new business of all classes was $692,113,000 against $905,042,000 in July, 1931, a decrease of 23.5 per cent.

Argue Over Merger Plans.

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 16.—(AP)—State insurance officials of Kansas and Missouri were on opposite sides today over the proposed merger of the Kansas Life Insurance company of Topeka, with the Pyramid Life Insurance company of Kansas City.

After the proposal had met with the approval of Joseph B. Thompson, superintendent of the insurance department of Missouri, Charles F. Hobbs, Kansas commissioner of insurance, said he would not sanction it. He added that the "Supreme court of Kansas will have to approve the merger if it becomes effective while I am insurance commissioner."

Commissioner Hobbs said the Kansas Life, the name under which the combined concerns proposed to operate, had a $450,000 surplus and the Pyramid a surplus of a similar amount, but that the effect of the merger would be to give the continuing company a surplus of only $100,000. The 20 year old Kansas concern, he said, had $27,000,000 of insurance in effect, while the Missouri one had only $500,000.

Baltimore and Ohio Asks to Issue Refunding Bonds

Washington, D. C., Aug. 16.—(AP)—The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad company today asked the interstate commerce commission to authorize issuance of $63,250,000 worth of general and refunding mortgage bonds. The bonds are part of an issue already nominally authorized. They are to retire an equal amount of 20 year 4½ per cent convertible gold bonds due March 1, 1933.

COTTON PRICES ADVANCING AT CHICAGO STORES

Raw Material's Rise Aids Dry Goods.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

King Cotton appears to be staging a comeback. In the markets of Chicago and New York December cotton yesterday touched top prices for the season. At the close it sold at an advance of more than 50 per cent over prices in effect on June 9. In addition, the prices of the finished cotton are growing steadier. The price of gray goods—cotton cloth just as it comes from the mills—has advanced about 20 per cent.

Cotton on June 9 sold at 5 cents a pound at American ports and at 4½ cents or lower in the interior of the country. These prices were the lowest since the '40s.

Yesterday December cotton closed at 7.79 cents a pound at Chicago and at 7.70 cents a pound in New York.

U. S. Report Boosts Prices.

Cotton prices gradually have been creeping upward, receiving their greatest impetus with the recent government estimate that this year's production will total 11,306,000 bales—a short crop.

The result of the gradual strengthening of prices for raw cotton has been an improvement in the prices of cotton goods. While the prices of raw cotton were declining merchants followed a hand to mouth policy of buying, naturally being loath to purchase wares in any amount when by waiting they could get them cheaper.

Now with prices moving forward merchants have returned to the market and are buying to supply their wants for months to come.

An official of Marshall Field & Co. said yesterday his company has sold the greatest amount of cotton goods of any years since moving into the Merchandise Mart. The company's mills are working overtime to supply the demand.

Will Advance Cost.

"We have been having hundreds of cotton goods buyers in from the south," this official stated yesterday. "The reason there are so many southern cotton buyers here is that they understand the real cotton situation in the south and are acting accordingly to fill their needs. Our present prices for cotton goods will be withdrawn at the end of this week and an increased price schedule substituted.

"The price of gray goods has advanced from something over 4 cents a yard to around 5 cents a yard, the general increase being about 20 per cent."

W. R. Meadows, cotton registrar for the Chicago Board of Trade, reviewed the prevailing situation.

"This year's estimated crop of 11,306,000 bales will be about 1,000,000 bales lower than expectations," he said. "Back in 1921 we had somewhat similar conditions, with world disturbances and a general feeling of depression. The price of cotton dropped from 43.75 cents a pound in July of 1920 to about 11 cents in June, 1921.

"Then came the short crop of 1921 and prices advanced rapidly, more than doubling in about six weeks' time."

Mr. Meadows stated that the carryover this year will be about 13,000,000 bales, making a total supply of better than 24,000,000 bales.

Like Rubber Situation.

Mr. Meadows likened the situation in cotton to that of rubber when British interests sought to stabilize the price of crude rubber. The result of the British action was to stir the whole world to resistance and $1,000,000 was appropriated in this country to experiment in rubber growing. The action of the farm board aroused the world against our cotton market.

Banks Debate Commodity Finance Today

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 16.—Decision is likely to be reached tomorrow or Friday whether to go ahead with the plan for a commodities credit corporation, as proposed by Eugene Meyer, governor of the Federal Reserve bank, or to let the project lapse on the ground that the recovery in the commodities markets has made such a corporation unnecessary.

What their decision would be, bankers closely connected with the project would not undertake to predict today. It was remarked, however, that the prospects of carrying through the plan were somewhat more promising.

The majority of the heads of the clearing house banks, including those who are only lukewarm toward the proposal, believe some good could be accomplished by the organization of a corporation to facilitate the financing of raw material purchases by manufacturers.

Some Call It Needless.

A few of the larger institutions have taken the stand that credits such as the corporation would provide are already available through the regular banking channels and that the only benefit to be expected from the creation of such an institution would be in the direction of increased confidence in the commodity markets. It is argued, however, that events of the last few weeks, including the government cotton crop report estimating a yield one million bales less than had been forecast previously, the rise in prices, and the general improvement of sentiment in financial and business quarters, have made it unnecessary to resort to any such device for instilling confidence into users of raw materials.

Those bankers who favor the plan suggest that, although the majority of manufacturers can obtain ample credits from their banks, there are some deserving companies which are not so situated and which the corporation could help.

Basis of Early Plans.

As originally conceived, the corporation was to have been organized along the lines of the National Credit corporation, and to have capital funds of about 100 million dollars subscribed by New York clearing house banks on the basis of a certain percentage of their deposit liabilities. It is possible, however, that if the plan is put into effect it will now be in a somewhat modified form.

Caterpillar Tractor Co. July Sales Are $931,453

The Caterpillar Tractor company reports July sales of $931,453. Net loss for the month was $159,875.

Bright Spots in Day's Business News

Three mills in the Carolinas voluntarily have increased wages; others are running full time or building additions to their plants. The Durham hosiery mills, as previously reported, have ordered a blanket increase of 10 per cent in wages. Silk mills at Greensboro and Kernerville, with enough orders booked to run them until Oct. 1, have increased wages 10 to 12 per cent. In Rockhill, S. C., six of the largest mills reported that 2,300 employés are working on a full night and day schedule. With orders enough to keep it busy on full time for eight months, the High Shoals cotton mills at Lincolnton has reopened after running spasmodically for the last year. Mills in the vicinity of Anderson, S. C., announced last week additional orders would enable them to operate full time for several months.

On the strength of new orders, the Statton furniture factory of Hagerstown, Md., has resumed its ten hour working day after operating for several months on a part time schedule. About 100 men will be put to work within a week or ten days.

At Cleveland, O., twelve industrial plants announced pay rolls will be increased next week.

At Warren, Mass., the outlook of the textile industries is brighter than for many years. The Ohio Carpet company, West Warren, soon is to operate at full capacity; the Warren Woolen company is on day and night schedule; the Maryland silk mills soon are to add a night force.

The opinion that America is experiencing the first signs of business recovery was expressed by W. P. Kenney, president of the Great Northern railway, in Seattle, Wash., yesterday. "There is no question that in the last 30 days the nation has been stimulated by optimism and confidence," he said.

Illinois Central railroad's July statement is expected to show net operating income of more than $600,000, compared with $260,495 in June and $1,116,616 in July, 1931.

Ready to Slake Coffee Thirst, Milnor Avers

Whether the Grain Stabilization corporation will sell all of its coffee holdings next month or dispose of smaller lots in accordance with the original marketing plan has not been decided, George S. Milnor, president of the corporation, so declared yesterday.

It was reported last week that the government agency had decided to place the entire holdings of 132,000,000 pounds on the market next month because of the threatened coffee shortage in this country. The fear of the coffee famine had arisen because of the continued embargo on exports from the Brazilian state of Sao Paulo.

Brazil Halts Exports.

The export ban was placed on the Sao Paulo ports early in July by the Brazilian government because of the revolutionary activities in that state. The coffee supply in the leading importing centers in this country has been drawn on until now it is estimated that there is less than a month's requirements on hand. The country's normal consumption is about 1,000,000 bags, or 132,000,000 pounds, a month, which is equivalent to the stabilization corporation's present holdings.

Mr. Milnor said that it has not been clearly demonstrated as yet that an acute shortage is impending. He said that unless such a shortage should develop the corporation will follow its original plan, which calls for the sale of 62,500 bags a month beginning next October.

He pointed out that the corporation still is bound by the agreement it concluded with the Brazilian government, whereby it received the coffee in exchange for 25,000,000 bushels of wheat. The original marketing plan was made to conform with that agreement.

Would Avert Shortage.

Mr. Milnor said, however, that if an acute coffee shortage develops in this country the agreement will be terminated and the corporation's holdings made available for immediate consumption. While the coffee trade has not been sounded out by officials of the corporation as to what course is favored, Mr. Milnor indicated that certain New York traders hope to profit on their holdings if the scarcity should become acute.

"Shorts" in the New York coffee market were the long distance victims of a revolt in Brazil yesterday. Coffee futures' prices advanced sharply and those traders who were forced to cover their contracts did so at substantial losses. The sugar market also advanced.

Metal Trade Journal Sees Quickening Steel Demand

Some quickening in demand for iron and steel products is reported by Daily Metal Trade. Sellers are encouraged by the pickup and see in it a forerunner of an active September demand. Considerable building steel tonnage is pending at the moment and it is expected much of this will become active next month. As a result of the slight pickup in steel inquiry the last few days some irregularity has developed in prices, largely in the flat rolled products. Such irregularity had been expected in view of the steadiness of the market over recent weeks when a test of prices was almost entirely absent.

New York, Aug. 16.—Bullish enthusiasm continued to run high in Wall street today. The stock market drove ahead for fresh gains of 1@4 points in greatly increased trading.

News from Chicago of a sharp break in wheat prices about the middle of the afternoon turned the list about for a while, serving materially to reduce the margin of advance run up in the earlier trading.

Constructive forces regained control in the last thirty minutes of trading, however, and the closing gong found the rally once more in full swing, but the leaders closed anywhere from a fraction to a couple of points below their best levels of the day.

Whirlwind Half Hour.

The high mark of activity was reached during the first half hour. Sales reached a total of 800,000 shares, making that thirty minutes the liveliest, with one exception, in nearly two years.

Brokers reported evidence of increasing public participation. Much of the first hour's rush of business represented an overnight accumulation of orders. The absence of offerings, revealed in the late dealings on Monday, created a feeling of apprehension in the ranks of the shorts and prompted urgent covering at today's outset. The result was one of the most sensational openings of the entire forward movement. United States Steel ran up nearly 5 points, Allied Chemical rebounded 7. Jumps of 1, 2, and 3 points were numerous.

Strength increased throughout the list as a whole, until well into the afternoon. Then wheat, which had started off with an advance of a cent a bu, turned abruptly down to register a loss almost as great.

Leaders Close Higher.

Final buying operations were concentrated largely in such stocks as American Telephone, which finished the day showing a net gain of 4¼ points; American Can, up to 2¼; Allied Chemical and Dye, up 4, and New York Central, up 2⅝.

Railroad shares took the play away from the industrials today. Some of

RAIL SIGNALMEN VOTE TO FIGHT FURTHER PAY CUT

Delegates to the biennial convention of the Brotherhood of Railway Signalmen, now in session at the Knickerbocker hotel, voted unanimously yesterday to resist to the utmost any attempt by the railroads to further reduce their wages, now scaled at 70 to 75 cents an hour.

The action was taken in anticipation of the meeting here tomorrow of representatives of most of the class 1 carriers of the country, whose reported mission is to prepare exhibits showing that the declining cost of living justifies not only an extension of the 10 per cent wage cut accepted for one year by the rail unions last February, but a further 5 per cent cut.

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers feels much the same as the signalmen on the wage question, according to R. E. Edrington of Chicago, assistant grand chief engineer. To meet the operators' figures on lower living costs, it is understood the unions will cite the high salaries paid to railroad executives, as disclosed by Senator James Couzens of Michigan in a study of the records of the interstate commerce commission.

Price 100 and Interest, to Yield 7%

Interest payable without deduction for any normal Federal income tax up to 2%.

The following information is taken from official sources and is subject to the more complete statements contained in the circular, a copy of which may be obtained upon request:

The Company (name changed from Iowa Railway and Light Corporation) owns and operates important electric, gas and other utility properties in Iowa, serving Cedar Rapids, Ames, Marshalltown and other important communities located in the heart of the Iowa corn belt, one of the finest agricultural sections in the United States.

As officially reported, gross earnings including other income of the Company for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1932 were $4,981,826 and net earnings, before depreciation, $2,577,295, or over 3.14 times the annual requirements of $820,000 for interest on the total first mortgage debt of $13,600,000 to be outstanding with the public after giving effect to present financing.

This financing provides for a reduction of over $2,000,000 in the Company's mortgage debt. The proceeds of the sale of these bonds will be used to pay in part $8,072,000 of Iowa Railway and Light Company First and Refunding Mortgage bonds due September 1, 1932 and minor obligations. The additional funds will be derived from the sale of $2,250,000 of junior notes, which are to be retired serially during the next three years, and $750,000 of stock.

These bonds will be secured, in the opinion of counsel, by a direct first mortgage on all of the physical properties now owned by the Company.

We recommend these bonds for investment.

KREUGER'S KIN SUED TO REGAIN SWEDISH STOCK

More Details of Career in U. S. Finance.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 16.—Action against the late Ivar Kreuger's father and sister, wherein receivers of the Kreuger & Toll company and of the Kreuger estate seek to nullify the transfer of shares in the newspaper Svenska Dagbladet was begun today.

The plaintiff alleges that Kreuger arranged numerous transactions shortly before his suicide, with the object of providing for his friends and relatives after his death.

Kreuger realized very early in 1932 that he was fighting a losing battle, and on Feb. 20, it is alleged, he realized all was lost. He already had begun transferring his assets to friends and relatives before that date, but the greater part of these transfers was made then.

Some transfers were open gifts, while others had the character of bona fide deals in order to hide their real nature.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 16.—A balance of less than $500,000 remained in brokerage accounts maintained by Ivar Kreuger with Eastman, Dillon & Co. to offset a loan of $1,000,000 made to that Swedish financier. That was brought out today at an examination of Herbert L. Dillon, senior partner of the firm, and Roy B. Tomlins, its chief accountant, before Referee Henry K. Davis at his offices at 140 Nassau street.

American certificates for 650,000 participating debentures of the Kreuger & Toll company, deposited as collateral on Jan. 25, 1932, when the accounts were opened, and an additional 55,000 certificates deposited on March 14, after Mr. Kreuger's suicide, were liquidated, leaving a deficit of $504,173, it was testified.

Mr. Dillon, under examination by Jacob K. Javits, counsel for petitioning creditors, said Mr. Kreuger had told him he wanted to open the accounts as a preliminary to taking three large blocks of "over-hanging" Kreuger & Toll stock off the market, so the stock would not be "depressed."

Detailed Statement Lacking.

Mr. Kreuger promised an itemized statement of his affairs, Mr. Dillon said, but it never was produced. Mr. Kreuger had declared the net worth of his holdings was about $12,500,000 in Sweden and from $25,000,000 to $30,000,000 outside Sweden, principally in Amsterdam.

The contract by which Mr. Kreuger opened the account with the deposit of 650,000 shares and received the $1,000,000 loan deposited to his account with the Chase National bank specified that he deliver as additional collateral 100,000 shares of International Telephone and Telegraph stock which he told Mr. Dillon he expected as his personal share of a deal by which a large block of L. M. Ericsson & Co., a Swedish telephone company, was turned over to International.

Mr. Dillon testified that, in a conversation about March 1, Mr. Kreuger said, "There had been some hitch in the negotiations," whereupon Mr. Dillon suggested that a large block of Diamond Match stock be substituted.

Mr. Kreuger, Mr. Dillon testified, was "chary about giving information," but he was favorable to the substitution of the Diamond Match shares. Later, Mr. Dillon said, it was arranged for 300,000 additional Kreuger & Toll shares to be put up by Anders Jordahl, Mr. Kreuger's confidential agent here, who was a signatory to the Kreuger accounts with Eastman, Dillon & Co.

Mr. Kreuger said he had 80,000 shares available, but that he had promised some of it to another firm with which he had an account, and 55,000 shares were deposited with the Dillon firm on March 14.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE SEAT AT $150,000, UP $30,000

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 16.—The vastly increased business in the stock market, which has shown turnovers well above 2,000,000 and 3,000,000 shares a day was reflected today in the sale of a New York Stock exchange seat at $160,000, an increase of $30,000 over the previous transaction.

From the low level of the depression when daily turnover was 500,000 to 600,000—$68,000 registered on May 31—seats have been enhanced in value 120 per cent and have regained about 13 per cent of the ground lost from the peak of $625,000 in 1929. The drop in values from that peak was about 85 per cent.

Estimated receipts in Chicago today: Cattle, 8,000; hogs, 10,000; sheep, 14,000.

An increase of 15 per cent in Chicago hog receipts for the first two days of this week proved too much.

Prices yesterday veered suddenly lower. The sharpest break in three weeks was registered, with the general average for the day at $4.35 within 10c of the lowest spot since June 25.

Losses ranged from 5c to 25c, light weights leading the way down after a few limited shipping orders had been filled.

Receipts were unevenly distributed. Hogs rushed in by truck from nearby sections comprised a big share of yesterday's arrivals. A sharp break in prices at smaller markets further east tended to swing supplies toward Chicago where the market has been relatively high for several days.

The farmers' strike in Iowa also served to swell local supplies. Trouble with striking farmers along highways leading into Iowa markets caused truckers to go around these points and head into Chicago instead.

Less than Week Ago.

Despite the increase here, the aggregate total at the 11 leading eastern and western markets for the two days, including Chicago, was 6 per cent smaller than a week ago and 21 per cent smaller than a year ago. The Chicago total is exactly the same as a year ago. The local yards handled 35 per cent of the two day total at the 11 markets against 28 per cent a week ago and 27 per cent a year ago.

Only a small share of yesterday's hog receipts were eligible to the $5.00 top, the bulk of high quality 225@250 lb. averages going at $4.50@4.80, while heavier butchers ranged downwards to $4.00. The rank and file of 400@500 lb. smooth "packers" sold at $3.25@3.80, with the bulk of those on the butcher order at $3.65@4.00.

Cattle Prices Are Strong.

Notwithstanding the setback in hogs the tendency was higher in cattle again yesterday. Best grades gained 10@15c and action proved better than on the preceding sessions. The peak of $9.85, the season's new top, was paid more often. The general market for beef steers reached a new high point for the year when the bulk of sales were made at $7.50@9.50. At the low time in May the bulk of steers sold at $5.25@6.45, indicating the substantial advance made by cattle in three months. Large local packers were in hot pursuit of top classes of steers right from the start, outbidding some of the leading New York houses for "stick out" shipments of beeves. Armour took the biggest shipment of top steers here at $9.85, the peak price. There were 80 head averaging 1,302 lbs in the sale at this figure. Swift obtained 1,215@1,400 lb averages at the same prices. New York butchers also had top money for steers. In all, about 150 head of steers reached the maximum price. Butcher stock held fully steady to strong throughout yesterday's session. Calves ruled steady to 25c higher. Not many stockers and feeders were available, and with several country buyers present strong sales were reported in this division.

Lamb Prices Hold.

The lamb market successfully withstood the pressure of generous receipts yesterday and finished strong on the majority for the range offerings. Buyers evidently were eager for western lambs which have been coming in exceptionally good killing flesh, but wholesale prices warranted only a steady market.

Sellers recognizing the strong feeling in the trade pushed for a higher level of quotation, but only succeeded in slowing down the trade. The high quality of stock being offered at Chicago has attracted the largest shipping orders of the season. Monday's shipments from here were largest since early in May for that day.

WHEAT DECLINES AFTER ADVANCE EARLY IN DAY

Mystery Selling Wave Hits Market.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Long wheat came into the pit on the Chicago Board of Trade in volume yesterday and smothered every effort on the part of bulls to bring about a higher level of prices.

A strong start, in sympathy with the radical advance in stocks and unexpected firmness in Liverpool, ran the December up 1⅝c over Monday's finish to 57¾c, but heavy selling by houses with eastern connections, as well as against offers, turned the market downward.

Prices declined slowly at first, but gained momentum on the way down. The selling was persistent. Toward the last the bulls were in full rout, with stop loss orders uncovered. December wheat dropped to 54⅝c, or 2¾c under the early high and to the lowest figure since August 6, showing 5½c under the high of last week. Buying against bids checked the break, but the finish was within a fraction of the bottom with September closing at 51¼@51⅜c; December, 54¾@54⅞c, and May, 59⅛@59⅝c. Net losses for the day were 1c.

Selling Mystifies Trade.

The source of the selling of wheat futures yesterday, which had such a depressing effect, was a mystery to the traders. Some were inclined to the belief that it represented liquidation of a large line of long wheat for professionals who were recently active on the buying side. There was nothing in the general run of news to account for the selling, as the stock market remained strong the greater part of the day, and there was little change in the reports regarding foreign demand. The latter was again very slow as far as hard winters were concerned, but 750,000 ou or more Manitobas was said to have been taken.

A reaction in Liverpool after the market had advanced around 1c from Monday's finish had some effect on sentiment, but the finish there was ⅜@½c per bu higher with the December wheat at 57⅝c. Winnipeg resisted pressure and lost only ⅜@⅝c with December at 60¾c in Canadian funds. The latter were around 13 per cent discount, indicating a price of around 52¼c, taking exchange at par, or 2½c under Chicago.

Late weakness in the Liverpool wheat market was reported as due to speculative profit taking combined with a slow demand for cash grain. There has been some buying of futures abroad recently against sales at Chicago owing to the small difference prevailing between the two markets, only ⅝c at the time Liverpool closed yesterday against 1⅞c on Monday. At one time last week Liverpool was ¾c under Chicago.

Corn Resists Pressure.

A moderate advance in corn yesterday was regarded as due to sympathy with wheat, but the market broke away from the latter grain later and failed to develop any weakness of consequence, closing unchanged to ¼c lower, the laater on September. Pressure from cash interests who were hedging against purchases of 130,000 bu to arrive depressed the nearby future, which finished at 31½c. December was 33c and May 37⅛@37⅜c at the last.

A leading buyer of cash oats practically withdrew from the market yesterday with the result that the cash grain dropped ¼@½c as compared with the September. No. 3 white, which constitutes the bulk of the receipts, was quoted around September price at the last. The December sold at a new low for the season, touching 18⅝c. Net losses for the day were ⅛@⅜c, with September, 16⅝c; December, 18⅝@18¾c, and May, 21½c. Rye lost ⅝@⅞c on selling induced by the weakness in wheat. September was 31½c; December, 34¾c, and May, 39¾c at the close.

PRODUCE MARKETS

Fresh eggs were in active demand and advanced ½@1c to a new high on the present movement. Receipts, 6,329 cases. Butter was steady. Receipts, 7,773 tubs. Live old heavy ducks were ½c higher and other poultry unchanged. Receipts, 43 trucks. Potatoes, dull. Receipts, 14 cars, with 205 cars on team track.
